All About Desert Alfalfa. Skip, if Not Interested. Farming in Philanthropy. Coyotes and Rabbits Walk.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

HODGE, Cal., Jan. 21.

FARMERS East might be interested in desert alfalfa farming. This is written on the writer's own ranch, 60 miles east of the Pacific, 2,000 feet above sea level, beside the Santa Fe road on the Mojave desert.

YOU dig a well, instead of driving it. That gives work to homesteaders, and makes a better job. The well, eight feet in diameter, is 100 feet deep, lined with concrete rings, dropped down, one above the other, as the digging progresses. Plenty of water, only 50 feet down, but you go 50 feet deeper for enough to feed a 40-horsepower electric pump. The pump throws 60,000 gallons an hour to a concrete reservoir 130 feet above the bottom of the well, thence the water flows over the alfalfa "lands," by gravity, 500 pounds of water, for a ton of alfalfa.

THE result from six to eight cuttings a year, depending on the season's sunshine. Good sunshine ripens a crop in 21 days. It is hot in March. Average season's yield, seven tons to the acre. Average price for good green alfalfa, cut young, $24 a ton, and more if you can afford to store and keep it until now.

TWO trucks from Los Angeles have just taken away eight tons, paying $29 alone on the ranch. Inside the corrugated galvanized iron store barn the alfalfa, in bales, is as green as the day it was cut, the large green leaves and blue opening blossoms cling to the stem so that creates the value. That high grade alfalfa is fed to rabbits where skins, later, produce 22 different kinds of fur. Cutting alfalfa young, never letting it go to seed, saves the energy of the plant.

THE average gross yield of 50 good alfalfa acres should be not less than $6,000. Do not, however, try desert farming, even on this wonderful desert, unless you are prepared to spend plenty of money, or work very hard, and wait. Grading, seeding, well digging, pump installing, irrigating, especially on a small scale, are costly. Electric current eats one-quarter of your gross receipts, although you can overcome that, producing your own current with a Diesel engine, if you can utilize a 40-horsepower or more. Co-operative farming here could be made to pay, a dozen real workers combining, working together.

THIS writer proposed to test the matter by planting an experimental square mile of alfalfa, having tried the preliminary 50-acre patch. Further news about that in due time. At best, all farming should be classified as a form of philanthropy, not as a business.

ABOVE all, buy no desert or any other land by mail, or on promises. There is abundant water on this ranch, because the submerged Mojave River flows close by, rising to the surface in the rainy season. There is no proof that water, in irrigation quantities, can be found on this desert, except close to the river. Schemers have sold desert acres to gullible buyers that will never dig to water. Many homesteaders break their hearts digging for water that is never reached.

IT IS suggested to President Hoover that the government, in allotting lands to homesteaders, should give them exact information as to water possibilities, establishing the facts by preliminary digging of wells. This would save wasted effort and an occasional tragedy when some homesteader, too poor to protect his well properly, has it cave in and kill him.

The well-paved road through Southern California, leading over the Cajon Pass to the Pacific, takes you past these green alfalfa fields. Look at them, between Barstow and Victorville, as you pass, BUT DO NOT BUY LAND.

FOR health, some chickens, grape vines and turkeys especially. This is a good country for the man of modest income. All the West Coast lies open to you here. You climb over the mountain pass, and a few hours takes you to Pasadena, Los Angeles, Hollywood, San Diego, or north to Santa Barbara, San Francisco, and on far along two thousand miles of perfect highways to Portland and Seattle.

IF YOU like heat, you can turn northeast to Death Valley, so hot that in the summer, according to Miss Pack, of Lakewood, N. J., when a coyote chases a jack rabbit they both walk. Whatever you do, come and see this country, don't leave the earth without seeing its biggest ocean, its biggest tree and its super-biggest future. See also Florida, the Gulf Coast states, the Mississippi Valley. In fact see your country, and be in a position, later to tell Columbus what he really discovered.

9 CHILDREN DIE AS TRAIN HITS BUS

Bodies Strewn Along Tracks At Grade Crossing Near Cleveland; Driver Victim

CLEVELAND, Jan. 22.—(AP.)—The worst railroad crossing accident in Ohio in a year today killed nine small children and the driver of the bus in which they were riding, at Sheldon road, near Berea, O., 15 miles from Cleveland. One other child was seriously injured.

Rushing toward Chicago, 45 miles an hour, a New York Central mail train struck the bus squarely in the middle. Wreckage and bodies were strewn along the tracks for 500 feet before the train could be stopped.

The bus driver had halted at the edge of the crossing and waited for a freight train to pass. A moment later he drove into the path of the mail train. There was a crash, a grinding of ripping metal and wood, and then the screams of dying and injured children.

IN LOWER GRADES

Eight students at Berea High School had left the bus at their school just a few minutes before the vehicle was struck. All of the children who were killed had been students in from the first to the sixth grades at the Brook Park School in a Cleveland suburb.

D'Arcy, Film Star, Wife Part Again

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Jan. 22.—(INS.)—Roy D'Arcy, screen and stage actor, and his wife, the former Laura Rhinock Duffy, a wealthy widow, have again come to the parting of the ways, it was revealed here today by the actor's attorney. Upon telegraphic orders from the actor, his attorney filed a newspaper notice, saying D'Arcy would not be responsible for his wife's debts henceforth. The attorney also said he was instructed to prepare a divorce action against Mrs. D'Arcy. The couple were divorced once before, but remarried.

Objects to Cut

MRS. GRACE HEGGER LEWIS

LEWIS SEEKING ALIMONY CUT

RENO, Nev., Jan. 22.—(AP.)—Sinclair Lewis, the author, is seeking a reduction from $1,000 to $200 a month in his alimony payments to Mrs. Grace Hegger Lewis, whom he divorced here a year ago, prior to his marriage to Dorothy Thompson, writer and lecturer.

In an affidavit accompanying his motion to have the alimony reduced, Lewis says he expects his income to be $10,000 or less this year because he will devote nearly all his time to a labor novel. He asks that he be allowed to pay his former wife $200 a month, and later if his income justifies it to increase this so that she will receive one-fourth of his gross income.

Lewis exchanged several letters with his former wife in an attempt to have her accept the smaller payments, but she has declined, and will resist the motion when it is heard here Saturday morning. At the time Lewis and his former wife separated he gave her outright $50,000 in securities, and set aside another $50,000 as a trust fund for his son, Wells.

Lewis says his former wife has an income of $8,000 a year independent of the alimony payments, but Mrs. Lewis in her answer says she has lost the position she formerly had.

The agreement at the time of the divorce provided that Mrs. Lewis should receive one-fourth of the author's income if his annual earnings were less than $48,000. Otherwise she was to receive $1,000 a month.

DRY QUERIES DODGED BY MELLON

Declines to Give Views on Law; Backs Transfer Of Prohibition Bureau

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—Andrew W. Mellon, secretary of the treasury, today indorsed the transfer of the government's prohibition enforcement army to the Department of Justice, declared the change would improve enforcement of the dry law, and then underwent a mild "third degree" at the hands of House liberals.

Appearing before the House Committee on Executive Expenditures, Mellon came as close as a cabinet officer in a dry administration can come to admitting that prohibition has not been effectively enforced in the past. He also avoided a direct question on whether the dry law can be enforced in the future. Such pertinent questions he dodged under a hammering cross-examination.

DODGES QUESTION

When asked the direct question whether the prohibition law can be enforced, Mellon made the significant reply that "it is not a question of my opinion. This is a very controversial subject. I don't see that this is any time to express my opinion."

The spotlight at the hearing, held on the proposal of President Hoover for transfer of the Prohibition Bureau from the Treasury to the Department of Justice, was virtually stolen by Rep.

Al Smith's Pronunciation Of Radio Held Correct

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—(AP.)—Classical indorsement of former Gov. Alfred E. Smith's much-debated pronunciation of "radio" with a short "A," was adduced in a letter to Smith from Nathan Haskell Dole, author and translator of the works of Tolstoy.

Dole, who signed himself "A Transplanted Bostonian," and now lives in upper Manhattan, wrote:

"In the Latin word 'radius' the "A" is short, as is proved by a line in Ovid's Fasti, where it appears as 'radio' in the ablative case. Consequently, the pronunciation rad-i-o, which you made famous in one of your speeches, must be regarded as correct.

"There seems to be no more sense in 'raydio' than there would be in changing rad-i-cal to raydical."

Window Cleaner Injured in Fall

Charles Edwards, a window cleaner employed by the National Window Cleaning Co., was injured early today while cleaning a first floor window at 438 Third avenue when a ladder slipped and he fell. He was removed to the Allegheny General Hospital.

Trainman Burned To Death in Crash

FARRELL, Pa., Jan. 22.—Charles A. Freniere, of 3143 West Carson street, Pittsburgh, flagman on the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad, was burned to death last night in a collision of two freight trains.

Freniere was riding in the caboose at the time of the crash. The caboose was knocked from the tracks and then caught fire.

Freniere had been an employe for 37 years. He was a freight conductor for a number of years, and in 1920, after the railroad strike, he returned to work as a flagman. He leaves his widow, Mrs. Ellen Freniere, and two children, Charles, Jr., and Miss Darnett.

BLONDE ROBBED HIM, MAN SAYS

"Irene Schroeder has the face that holdup victims can't forget," is the way in which Bernard A. Patterson, manager of Kroger's grocery at 835 East Ohio street, North Side, today characterized the so-called blonde "trigger woman" arrested in Phoenix, Ariz., in connection with the slaying of a motor patrolman near New Castle.

Patterson's store was held up by a man and a woman, November 26. The cash register was rifled of $40, after the pair had bound the manager and forced him to lie behind a counter. Recalling the robbery, he said:

"If I lived another 100 years I'd never forget those cold eyes. I am positive from their pictures that the woman they call Irene Schroeder and the man they say is W. Glenn Dague are the pair that held up my store.

"Dague was white. I didn't fear him. The woman—her look chilled me. When she pointed the gun at me, cursed me, ordered her companion to bind me, and then demanded to know where the rest of the money was, I knew she'd shoot. I said that I was afraid of her that day, and I meant it.

"Say, I'll identify her in court any time.

"'Tell me where the rest of that money is, or I'll blow your brains out, you so-and-so,' she told me.

"I believed her. I told her, and I told her the truth. My wife was just depositing it about that time in a bank. She had left 10 minutes before with $250.

"Her companion I didn't fear so much. He tried to hit me with the butt of his gun, but I ducked. The barrel hit my forehead.

"During the robbery, Mrs. Jean McKinley entered, and the woman robber told her the manager was busy in the rear and that he'd be out soon."

W. Va. Kin Plans Action on Kidnaping Charge Against Officers Who Took Boy

WHEELING, W. Va., Jan. 22.—(AP.)—Mayor L. M. Morningstar, of Benwood, W. Va., today said former Congressman Ben Rosenbloom had been engaged by Joseph Crawford, grandfather of Donnie Schroeder, four-year-old son of Mrs. Irene Schroeder, held for the slaying of a Pennsylvania state highway patrolman, to take action against Pennsylvania state police, alleging they kidnaped the child.

Morningstar said friends of Crawford had contributed funds to prosecute the action, and that Rosenbloom would leave for New Castle, Pa., today to institute suit.

The action will contend, it was said, that Mrs. Schroeder left her son in her father's care, and that Pennsylvania state troopers took the boy from Crawford at Bellaire, O., where he was found.

TAXIS TO RUN IN 'FLEETS'

The 11-day taxicab strike as far as ever from settlement, the Green Cab will try to operate its cars tomorrow with imported drivers, according to reports prevalent today. It was said that the new drivers will operate cabs in groups to frustrate possible attacks.

Both the Green and Yellow Cab companies today imported additional drivers from Philadelphia, it was learned. Forty men left a train at East Liberty this morning and were taken to the Green Cab garage in Ellsworth avenue.

This action follows the meeting of the striking drivers in the Moose Temple last night when they voted, 281 to 116, to ignore the settlement suggested by Secretary of Labor James J. Davis and stand by their original demands for recognition of their union and 40 per cent commissions rather than 37½ per cent.

ZERO SWEEPING ON PITTSBURGH

Near zero temperature is predicted for Pittsburgh tonight. Weather Forecaster W. S. Brotzman said that more snow was in store. Yesterday afternoon the temperature hovered between 25 and 30 degrees.

There were numerous accidents yesterday and last night due to icy streets. Two persons were reported injured in the East End from falls. Mrs. Anna Everhart, 50, of 1845 Jancey street suffered body bruises in a fall at Negley and Penn avenues. After being treated at a physician's office she was taken home.

Louis Schubert, 57, of 510 Wallace avenue, Wilkinsburg, fractured his shoulder in a fall at Frankstown avenue and Station street. He was taken to the Pittsburgh Hospital.

Youth in Auto Sacrificed As Victim to Dry Law

Here is another case of an innocent victim sacrificed in the name of prohibition enforcement—another name on the ever-mounting roll of those who have died in a vain effort to enforce an unpopular law.

WASHINGTON, Jan 22.—John Harold Sollars, a young clerk in a hardware store at North Platte, Neb., on May 14, 1926, took Miss Goldie Robb, a North Platte school teacher, riding in his automobile. Fred Frahm, Harry Johnson and C. H. Runyan, liquor undercover agents, were out that night looking for rum runners about two miles from the city. Here is how C. P. Beck, coroner of Lincoln County, Neb., described the killing of Sollars in a report to the Washington Herald, July 3, 1929:

"Sollars and a girl friend were riding in his car just after dusk near this city. He was hailed by these undercover agents dressed in rough clothing. Thinking they were holdup men, he stepped on it. Then Johnson, incited by Runyan, fired several shots from a rifle. Sollars was hit in the back and died the next day, an innocent victim."

Coroner Beck's report further disclosed that the coroner's jury recommended prosecution of all three of the men.

FRENCH CLAIMS FOR FIGHTING SHIPS STIR NAVAL PARLEY

MACDONALD, STIMSON CONFER

Tardieu Demands 800,000 Tons of Auxiliary Craft For Colonies' Protection

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service.

LONDON, Jan. 22.—The importance of the French position at the five-power naval disarmament conference was speedily demonstrated today, the first "working day" of the parley.

Although it was announced that the day would be given over to an exchange of "purely personal" views of the chief delegates, as a preliminary to tomorrow's plenary session, it soon became apparent that the French claims, as put forward by the chief French delegate, Premier Tardieu, had caused something more than a small flurry throughout conference circles.

TONNAGE DEMAND

Chief of these claims, it was understood, is France's demand for approximately 800,000 tons of auxiliary fighting ships. At a private dinner given last night Premier Tardieu indicated this was the minimum figure acceptable to France, which bases this demand upon her far-flung colonial possessions. Trade routes and lines of communication to these colonial outposts must be protected by French warships, the French delegates declare.

The specific issues raised at the meeting between the French and British delegations at 10 Downing street today were obscured by the wording of the "news lead" which came out of the meeting that "points of wide interest to all the delegations attending the five-power naval conference were raised at the British-French meeting."

While it was intimated that the Anglo-French discussions centered upon the recent French memorandum to the British government reaffirming the French government's position that any agreement arrived at by the present conference must be merely preliminary to a more comprehensive review of the entire armament question by the League of Nations, it was also believed that the French claim for a minimum of 800,000 tons of auxiliary ships had been under discussion.

STIMSON VISIT

Credence was given to this belief when it became known that a visit of Secretary of State Stimson to 10 Downing street this afternoon was in response to an urgent request from Prime Minister MacDonald, who wished to discuss with the American chief delegate the issues brought up at the Anglo-French meeting.

All day long the delegates were busy exchanging calls.

Stimson, after seing MacDonald, held a consultation with former Premier Makatsuki. During the afternoon, Ambassador Dawes and Senators Reed and Robinson visited the Japanese delegates. This morning there was a conference of all the American delegates and technical advisers.

Later MacDonald was to receive Foreign Minister Grandi, of Italy, in the House of Commons. This evening the Premier was to receive Wakatsuki at Downing street.

BATTLESHIPS FIRST

International News Service understands that at tomorrow's closed plenary session, Secretary Stimson, chief of the American delegation, will propose in the name of the United States postponement of all battleship replacements until 1936, thus giving the conference something tangible to chew on.

This proposal being accepted in principle by the British and Japanese, which are the only powers concerned, it is estimated this naval building "holiday" will save the trio of naval powers approximately $2,000,000,000 during the next six years.

Three Auto Thieves Given 5 to 45 Years

Three confessed auto thiefs were given penitentiary sentences today when they pleaded guilty before Judge Harry H. Rowand.

They were Ed Hessler, 21, of 2318 Carson street, sentenced 22½ to 45 years; Steve Krenicky, 20, 2021 River avenue, Braddock, 18½ to 37 years, and James Conroy, 21, New York City, 5 to 10 years. They admitted three automobile thefts and one burglary during November and December.

which marked the session Tuesday, at which strikers voted 538 to 108 to ratify the Davis agreement.

"We demand full recognition of the union and 40 per cent," Paul Toole, chairman of the striking drivers' committee, said last night. "The strike will continue, and there will be no disorder."

Today Toole visited Chief Deputy Sheriff B. V. Coffey to assure him that the strikers would not countenance violence.

FATHER COX SPEAKS

The Rev. James R. Cox, pastor of St. Patrick's Catholic Church, was the only speaker other than Toole.

"You can win this strike by keeping public opinion with you," he told the drivers. "Live up to your organization in the name of God and the flag. Stick for your demand, 40 per cent and the closed shop."

He cautioned the men against violence.

"Keep up as you have been doing. Do not take part in or countenance any violence, and your cause is won," he continued. "If the company can pay 8, 10 and 12 per cent dividends, they can give you men living wages and conditions. This is the biggest battle unionism has ever had in Pittsburgh. Do nothing that will hurt your reputation as American citizens and gentlemen. Let there be no violence."

PRAISES DAVIS

Father Cox explained to the men that the Davis agreement was a "scrap of paper," something to be accepted or rejected.

"Out of respect for the greatest Labor man the country has ever had James J. Davis, we considered his suggestions in detail," he said. "But you men felt that he was not conversant enough with conditions to really advise the course popular with all of you. I am absolutely with you to the bitter end. I feel that your are unqualifiedly justified in asking 40 per cent and a closed shop."

Paul Houston, president of Green Cab, and Walter S. Laird, president of Yellow Cab, issued a statement after the meeting in which they declared:

"The position of the companies has been clearly set forth to the public in its advertisement which appeared in last night's and this morning's news papers. The apparent repudiation of Secretary Davis' proposal which had previously been ratified will necessarily change our plans of resuming operation somewhat. We will keep the public advised of our plans."

WINDOWS SMASHED

Charged by police with breaking windows in the headquarters of striking taxicab drivers in the McGeagh Building, Webster avenue, John Boston, of 4907 Broad street, was discharged in the Central Police Court today. He agreed to pay $25 for the windows.

Toole appeared against Boston, whom he said, was a superintendent of the Green Cab Company. Toole alleged that Boston and four others attempted to wreck the headquarters. Boston was released on a $300 forfeit.

Snow Shovelers Save House From Fire

BLOOMSBURG, Pa., Jan. 22.—(AP.)—A group of neighbors used snow shovels to save the house of Mrs. J. C. Moore, at Cambra, from destruction by fire.

The fire was said to have been started by a boy smoking in the woodshed. Several outbuildings were destroyed. Neighbors, with no supply of water available, hastily shoveled snow upon the house as it also took fire.

HOPE FAILS FOR THREE IN MINE

SCRANTON, Pa., Jan. 22.—(INS.)—Digging through 50 tons of coal and rock that collapsed in the mine of the Hudson Coal Company at Jermyn, near here, rescuers early today discovered the feet of one of three missing miners sticking out from under the fall.

Four men were at work in that part of the mine when the cave came late yesterday.

Patrick McAndrew was rescued alive after being entombed two hours. His brother, William McAndrew, Harold Van Sickle and James Charles, all of Jermyn, are missing and believed dead under the debris.

An hour before McAndrew was rescued, Father Edmund Langan, priest of Jermyn, administered the last rites of the church through the wall of coal that separated him from the trapped men.

strategy, leaving attorneys who had represented Irene and Dague at the hearing in Gov. J. C. Phillips' office scurrying around in a frantic search of Maricopa County with a writ and no person on whom to serve it.

ASKS ABOUT SON

Lieut. Thomas Boettner, state policeman at Butler, and H. Martin (Peck) Lee, Lawrence County detective, were responsible for the ruse.

On the train bringing her nearer to home and Donnie, who has been in the custody of Lawrence County authorities since a few days after the slaying, Irene inquired about her son.

It was the first time she had shown any interest in the child.

Her first reply to comment on the boy once was:

"Why ask me about him—why don't you find his mother."

Last night, after climbing into her berth with a goodnight kiss from Dague still warm on her lips, she turned over and sobbed into her pillow.

"THINKING ABOUT DONNIE"

"What's the matter, Irene," she was asked.

"Oh, nothing. Just thinking that's all."

"Thinking about Donnie," her questioner insisted.

"Well—yes; and my old man up there in that berth. He's so nice—he kissed me goodnight and I'm happy."

"But what about Donnie?"

The sobs broke out anew.

"Oh—do you think they will let me see him? I would like to hold him in my arms. I love him so!"

She buried her face in the pillow for several minutes and then she turned back again.

"Perhaps your father will meet you when you get back, too," it was suggested.

"No! Don't let him do that—He's got a bad heart. Tell him to stay away," she pleaded.

Dague leaned down over his upper berth.

"Don't talk too much, honey," he urged. "Why don't you let her sleep?" he demanded turning to her questioner.

CARESSES

Out in the desert, alone with Lieut. Boettner and Detective Lee, they were happier than at any other time since their capture. They held hands, smothered each other with kisses and otherwise showered each other with affection and terms of endearment.

Time after time, Irene would lift Dague's manacled hands to her lips and kiss them fervently.

When meal time arrived the officers found a small restaurant in a little settlement off the beaten trails. The cuffs were removed from Dague's wrists, and he was given unrestrained freedom during the meal. They paid more attention to each other than to the meal, the officers declared.

After the meal they talked, and Irene then admitted for the first time to authorities that she was Irene Schroeder and not Mildred Winthrop as she has steadfastly insisted since the first day after her capture.

They talked of many things, mostly of themselves. Irene told of her experiences in the Phoenix jail with Dague caressing her hands, her hair and her overrouged cheeks, and sympathizing with her while they talked.

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Jan. 22.—Irene Schroeder, blonde trigger woman, when she arrives here from Phoenix, will be placed in a cell that has been occupied by three other women who have been charged with murder. She will be kept in solitary confinement. Glenn Dague will be placed in solitary confinement until the trial is held.

they had been taken to hospitals seriously injured. Many of the fathers were unable to restrain their grief.

Mrs. Rosie Davidson, of Brook Park village, was a witness of the accident in which two of the children killed were her own. They were William, 10, and Vernon, 7. She was about a quarter-mile away when the crash occurred. Rushing to the crossing, she found the bodies of her children in the wreckage. Screaming in grief, she was taken home in a state of collapse.

Among the dead were three children all of one family. They were Rita Zelinski, 9; her brother, Vincent, 6, and her sister, Dorothy, 11.

John Hand, the engineer, said, "I didn't see the bus until we hit it." He is in a state of collapse.

STATE ORDERS INQUIRY

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 22.—(AP.)—State Utilities Commission today ordered two railroad inspectors to Berea, to investigate the school bus train accident today.

The commission has no jurisdiction over school buses but will make its investigation from the railroad end. It has jurisdiction over the railroads.

Gov. Cooper directed John L. Clifton, state director of education, to set up immediately a program of safety for control of school buses.

The accident at Berea today brought the death toll from bus accidents in Ohio to 20 and the injured to nearly 30, in less than a month.

January 21, 1929, a Lake Shore Electric train struck and demolished a bus at a crossing near Bellevue, killing 21 persons, as a result of which the State Utilities Commission directed all railroad crossing state highways to protect their lines with automatic flasher signals.

DRY QUERIES DODGED BY MELLON

Schafer (R.), of Wisconsin, a leader of the liberals. He subjected Mellon to such a cross fire of questions that the chairman of the committee finally came to the Secretary's rescue and shut off the inquiry.

Schafer startled the committee and Mellon, too, with charges that the Treasury Department was "covering up" crimes among prohibition agents; that an enforcement scandal was current in the state of Washington; that industrial alcohol leaks in Chicago came from perfume and cologne manufacturers; that hundreds of dry law cases were lost in the courts because dry agents themselves violated the Volstead Act, and that dry agents were guilty of "wholesale violations" of the constitutional guarantees around the home.

DEMANDS RECORDS

Schafer sought light particularly on the sixth section of the Volstead act, which incorporates the constitutional guarantees of the home. He said dry agents had lost hundreds of cases by violating this section.

The Wisconsin man also called on the Treasury to produce its records in the state of Washington, where a "scandal is brewing." Such information, said Schafer, is vital to Congress if it desires to provide effective enforcement of prohibition.

James M. Doran, prohibition commissioner, who also indorsed the transfer of the prohibition bureau to the Department of Justice, was likewise subjected to a severe cross examination by Schafer. Doran held up his end, however, and declared prohibition enforcement had been effective in the treasury. He denied there were any wholesale violations of law by dry agents and declared the treasury had promptly punished all agents who broke the law. Doran, according to current reports in Washington, will quit the government service as soon as the proposed transfer takes effect. He has offers of several highly-paid jobs as a commercial chemist.

When Mellon concluded his statement he faced a barrage of questions.

DECLINES OPINION

Rep. Igoe, (Dem.), of Illinois, asked him bluntly if he thought the prohibition law was enforceable. It was then that Mellon declined to give his opinion on this "controversial subject."

Representative Williamson (Rep.), of South Dakota, committee chairman, asked Mellon about the provision of the pending legislation which would allow the attorney general to act jointly with the Treasury secretary in authorizing issuance of industrial alcohol permits.

"I'd like to inquire if that might not at some time create difficulties between the two departments," he said.

"I don't think so," Mellon replied.

"Do you think advisable," he was asked, "a provision that if there is a disagreement between the secretary of the treasury and attorney general, the President should dispose of the matter?"

"I don't think that is necessary," Mellon said.

Igoe asked the Secretary if he believed prohibition was efficient under his department. The Secretary said he thought the department had tried to enforce it. He said:

"It doesn't seem to me that the question of efficiency of any organization is pertinent to a consideration of the structure of the organization."

Schafer, in starting his barrage of questions, asked Mellon whether the diversion of industrial alcohol was the big trouble for those trying to enforce prohibition. Mellon did not directly reply.

"COVERING UP"

Schafer asked if it were not a fact that when prohibition agents became involved in a case reports on the incident were sent to the bureau for "covering up."

"I know nothing of anything like that," Mellon said. "If such a condition exists it has never been brought to my attention."

During the session Schafer urged amendment of the bill providing for the transfer to require a report to Congress on any violation by prohibition agents of search and seizure laws.

He also moved to compel the prohibition bureau to furnish the committee with information on the amount of withdrawal of industrial alcohol. The committee became embroiled over this proposal and finally postponed action on it until tomorrow.

CLASHES WITH DORAN

Schafer and Doran clashed over the former's charge that no action was being taken against prohibition agents who violate the law by raiding homes without search warrants.

"In Milwaukee last week they convicted two of your agents and I think more convictions are coming," Schafer roared.

In sisting that there had been no lack of action against federal agents when necessary, Doran asserted he would not accept responsibility for raids made illegally by every constable, reputy constable and sheriff.

Paulina Longworth Sits For Two Portraits

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—(AP.)—For the first time in her life little Paulina Longworth is having her portrait painted. The event is in honor of her fifth birthday on February 14.

With true Rooseveltian thoroughness, the small daughter of the Speaker of the House and Mrs. Nicholas Longworth is having it done "double." Two Hungarian artists, Elena and Berta De Hellebranth, sisters, are painting Paulina from their individual viewpoints, both working at the same time.

Elena has caught the little girl in a mischievous mood. Berta's portrait is more serious. Paulina looks at both portraits. After sober reflection she nods her head at each and says:

"Yes, that's me."

In the first one she looks like her mother. In the second there is the determined and energetic expression which characterized her famous grandfather.

Mrs. Longworth is said to like both of the portraits. The Hellebranth sisters have already started work on twin portraits of Mrs Longworth in a red dress.

They say Paulina is an ideal subject, quiet, natural and giving them every aid in catching a good likeness. Once, she presented Elena with a purple cord and tassel saying:

"Here is some color for you."

She wrote her name in their guest book. The simple printed signature, Paulina, stands out boldly along with autographs of princesses, millionaires and society leaders of both countries.

SOUTH-WEST SUFFERS IN ZERO WAVE

Cold Extends to Arkansas; Snow Isolates Towns; Floods Peril Hundreds

CHICAGO, Jan. 22.—(AP.)—Winter held merciless vigil over the land today.

From the cotton fields of Dixie to the Northwest territory stretched a sheet of ice, blinding under a cold sun. Zero weather stunned the southwest as it struggled against snow, and worse than zero weather visited death and misery upon the central and western prairies.

Sixteen hundred families in Southeast Missouri and Eastern Arkansas were sufferers from the cold and flood, 200 of them marooned in the Big Lake (Ark.) region. The levees of the rising St. Francis and White Rivers were weakening. Ten-below-zero temperatures reached over today into Southwestern Missouri.

An ice gorge spanned the Wabash River at Riverton, Ind. Aviators were to survey the situation today. Citizens of Mt. Carmel, Ill., and Vincennes, Ind., protested yesterday against the blasting in fear of the flood.

Charles City, Iowa, was the coldest spot on the map at 30 below. The mercury was in the subtwenties in Nebraska today. Chicago and its suburbs reported 10 below. Four persons were frozen to death in the Chicago area.

Meanwhile, up on the seawarmed Alaskan coast, the mercury ranged from 36 to 40 above zero.

CLARA, HARRY MEET IN N.Y.

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—(INS.)—Clara Bow, the "personality pronoun girl," got in today from Hollywood and fell into the arms of Harry Richman, her announced fiance, who was waiting at the train to meet her.

"When are you going to marry Harry?" she was asked.

Clara, who had a bad cold, cleared her throat and whispered:

"I can't talk above a whisper."

Richman, dressed in a collegiate raccoon coat, answered the question for her.

"In about two or three weeks, or maybe longer," he said.

Clara, hugging an inflated doll with one arm and Harry with the other, said that she had lost 15 pounds. Crowds nearly mobbed her as she passed through the Grand Central Terminal.

No Seat for Elephant, Crandall Turned Down

Prof. Milton D. Crandall, publicist extraordinary, expositor of dance marathons and other events of a more or less dignified nature, has been refused the use of "Sarah," the city Zoo elephant, in his forthcoming "Bring Your Own Pet Show," which will be held at Motor Square Garden for a week, beginning next Monday.

The request was refused yesterday when Council heard the recommendation of the Committee on Parks and Libraries.

"We'll give it to him, if he guarantees to return the pachyderm in good health and if we're not sure it isn't a stunt to increase the sale of peanuts at the show," Councilman Robert Garland suggested.

"No, let's don't let him have it," Councilman Herron said, "because the elephant might have to sit on its own trunk." The other members concurred that it might be a bad policy for a big "efemulflunt" to have to sit on his own trunk.

Meanwhile, entries are pouring into show headquarters at the Kirkwood Hotel.

Among the entrants so far are pet turtles, a white cat, a crow, fox terrier pup and a flock of pigeons.

Crandall plans to make the show an annual affair. No entry fee is to be charged, but $500 in gold will be given the winners.

A girl's bicycle race and a piano playing marathon will be features.

SIX ARRESTED IN DRIVE ON LOTTERIES

Downtown Shoeshine Shop Is Raided; Gardner Won't Stage Campaign in City

Public Safety Director James M. Clark's campaign against the clearing house lotteries today netted six arrests, all Negroes.

The first downtown raid was in a shoeshine shop at 441½ Sixth avenue, where Arthur Lewis, 45; George Lee, 24, and Edward Captain, 44, were arrested as the operators.

At Broad and North Sheridan streets, East End, police arrested three youths said to be bearing lottery books. They are listed as Granville Jones, 22; Robert Jones, 21, and Brady Bridges, of North Brushton avenue.

While the police were effecting these arrests, District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner denied that he intended to invade the city with a drive against the lotteries.

"If, however, there are complaints against such lotteries in the county," I will act," Gardner promised.

PAROLE VOTED DR. COOK

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., Jan. 22.—(AP.)—The Leavenworth Times says today that a parole has been recommended for Dr. Frederick A. Cook, Arctic explorer and oil promoter, who is serving a sentence of 14 years and 9 months in the federal prison here for using the mails to defraud. Members of the parole board would not confirm the report, but it is known that no opposition was offered to Dr. Cook's release.

The parole was voted unanimously, according to the Times, which says that Dr. Cook will be released in February unless adverse action is taken on the recommendation in Washington.

Dr. Cook's case was studied deeply by the three members of the board. His excellent prison record, coupled with apparent failing health, was favorable to the parole.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—(AP.)—The Department of Justice said today no recommendation for a parole for Dr. Frederick A. Cook, Arctic explorer, serving a sentence in the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth, had been received from the parole board of the prison.

MURDER JURORS BARE 'COERCION'

HARRISBURG, Jan. 22.—(INS.)—Ten of the 12 jurors who found Frank Barber, Fayette County, guilty of murder in the second degree, have written letters saying they were coerced into agreeing on such a verdict, according to the plea of barber's counsel before the State Board of Pardons here today.

This immediately resulted in a flood of queries from board members.

Counsel quoted Mrs. Anna Darby, of Uniontown, as asserting that two members of the jury insisted on the conviction of Barber "because he was an Italian."

Barber's counsel said the convicted man had witnessed the killing of Samuel Manley, but that he had no part in the slaying.

The prisoner has served five years of a 10-to-20-year term.

AUTOIST FOUND DEAD IN PARK

A 35-year-old candy salesman, the father of four children, drove his automobile into the Pearce road entrance of North Park today, turned off the motor, locked both doors of the car, placed a note on the adjoining seat and swallowed poison.

He was dead when county employes discovered the machine an hour later. Deputy coroners broke off a door of the car to reach the body. They learned that the man was W. E. Hartman, 35, of 24 Bly street, North Side.

The note was to his wife. It read:

"Dear Eva: Please take care of the children the best you can as I am going. When I left this morning I told you I would, but you didn't believe me."

Mrs. Hartman said he hadn't told her of his intention and declares she knew of no reason why he should take his life.

Weather Conditions.

The low pressure area that produced the snow over this section is now centered over North Carolina and Virginia, moving northeastward. It is causing cloudy weather over the Coast states, and snowfall over the North and rain over the South. The rainfall during the last 24 hours was light except over Southern Alabama and Louisiana, where moderately heavy rains occurred. The eastward drift of the western high pressure caused a drop in temperature over the lake region, the Ohio Valley states, and the Central and Southern Mississippi Valley states. The center of the high is over Idaho, highest barometer, 31.00 inches, at Pocatello, and 31.06 inches at Boise. It is causing low temperature far into the South. Below zero over Oklahoma and Arkansas, and 20 degrees along the southern coast of Texas. Over the Dakotas, Minnesota, Wyoming and Western Nebraska and over the Canadian Northwest the temperatures are rising.

River Conditions.

The rivers are falling. Stage at Franklin is 4.9 feet; Lock No. 7, 11.4; Pittsburgh, 12.1; Dam No. 4, 7.3; Dam No. 8, 8.4; Dam No. 9, 9.4, and Dam No. 12, 7.5. The dams are down. The upper rivers are frozen over, and an ice gorge has formed in the Sixth Pool, near Kittanning. There is also a gorge forming in the Youghiogheny below West Newton.

COURAGEOUS IN FACE OF SORROW

Follows Parent's Philosophy, Finds Consolation in Labor At Her Office as Usual

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—(AP.)—Because she gives her mother's philosophy complete credit for her own creed, Representative Ruth Bryan Owen, of Florida, will continue her work despite her mother's death:

A midnight telephone call told her that her mother, Mary Baird Bryan, the widow of William Jennings Bryan, had died in California, yet Mrs. Owen appeared at her office as usual today, and threw herself even more diligently into the work she found before her.

"I never saw my mother lack courage in anything," said Mrs. Owen. "I couldn't fail to follow the philosophy she scheeled me in.

MOTHER MAPPED WAY

"When my husband died, I thought I couldn't go on. I intended to drop all my political plans. Then I went to California and spent several months with my mother. I shall never forget the manner in which she met me.

"'The philosophic person, in the face of trouble, finds work the best consolation,' she said to me.

"She had handed me my equipment, just as she had formerly done with my father. She had given me my task, and that's why I'm here."

MAY SPEAK SUNDAY

Mrs. Owen asserted she might even fill a speaking engagement at Youngstown, O., Sunday, if it would cause great inconvenience for her to cancel it.

Mrs. Owen said her mother's body would be cremated at her own request and that the ashes might not be brought to Arlington, where the body of William Jennings Bryan rests, until spring.

"Arlington is bleak and drear right now," she said.

Bryan's Widow to Rest Beside Him in Arlington

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Jan. 22.—(AP.)—Mrs. William Jennings Bryan, widow of the late Democratic leader, today is joined in death with her famous husband, whose constant companion she was, in victory and defeat, from that October day in 1881 when he led her to the altar and slipped on her finger the ring inscribed "Won 1880; one 1884."

Mrs. Bryan, whom the Great Commoner called "my mental safety valve," died last night in the home of her daughter, Mrs. Grace Bryan Hargreaves, wife of a Beverly Hills (Cal.) banker. She had been suffering from arthritis for about 12 years, and her condition became suddenly worse upon her return here a short time ago from Miami, Fla., where she visited another daughter, Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen, member of Congress from Florida. Mrs. Bryan was 69 and survived her husband by four years.

With Mrs. Bryan when death came were her daughter, Mrs. Hargreaves, and a son, William Jennings Bryan, Jr., Los Angeles attorney, and their families.

NEAR RIOT AT SCHOOL GAME

With the final whistle last night as South Fayette Township High School basketball squad defeated the Oakdale team, 36 to 23, in the South Fayette gymnasium at Morgan, police say a general fight between both players and spectators was averted.

Feeling had been running high all through the game, and threatened to break out in the third quarter when Oakdale was leading, 15 to 13. Then Referee Alex Deblander was accused of striking Capt. Lawrence Beggs, of the Oakdale team.

Deblander, police say, accused Beggs of fouling.

"Why?" asked Beggs.

Deblander replied with a blow to Beggs' right ear, police said. Spectators poured from their seats to the floor in protest, but Patrolman Everett Hartneff, of Oakdale, succeeded in restoring order.

Soviets Blow Up Ancient Monastery in Moscow

MOSCOW, Jan. 22.—(AP.)—Simanov Monastery, which in former days was the most important and richest in Russia, was blown up with dynamite last night to make room for a gigantic new Soviet workers' club and "cultural center," The monastery was founded nearly 600 years ago by St. Sergius.

Five thousand red workers carried away the debris, each pledging himself to remove one stone and throw it into Moscow River. This action followed the recent conversion by communists of the famous St. Isaac's Cathedral in Leningrad into a huge anti-religious museum. The hundred-ton bells of the cathedral were so unwieldy that the authorities had to demolish them piecemeal in the belfries.

More than a score of other churches in Leningrad and Moscow now are in progress of demolition and are being replaced by commercial buildings, schools and workers clubs. The bells are being turned back into copper, silver and bronze for commercial use.

The scene around Simanov Monastery, with its castellated walls and high-spired belfries, was a vivid one. While workers placed sticks of dynamite under the monastery, thousands of persons gathered to witness the successive explosions and the toppling of the massive walls and 400-foot-high belfry.

MANY OFFICIALS ATTEND AUTO SHOW HERE

Importance of District to Motor Industry Shown By Interest of Leaders

By H. W. DIETRICH, Automobile Editor

The importance of Pittsburgh to the automobile industry is being given recognition in the attendance at the Automobile Show, being held all this week in Motor Square Garden, of many prominent motor car manufacturers' representatives.

Robert Grahan

Among those here yesterday were C. W. Matheson, general sales manager of Dodge Brothers; J. A. Bohannon, president; Don P. Smith, vice president; R. B. Nettleton, sales manager, and H. L. Hubbard, special representative, Peerless Motor Car Corporation; S. W. Monroe, director, Chrysler Sales Corporation; K. Ray Spencer, regional manager for Plymouth; J. W. DeBow, field supervisor, and J. D. McGarry, sales supervisor, Marmon Motor Car Company, and R. C. Reichel, sales manager for Jordan. Included among those here today will be Robert Graham, of Graham-Paige Motors, H. J. Shorter, of Durant, and Russell Gardner, Jr., and R. M. Lyons, of Gardner Motors.

DISPLAY PRAISED

"Your show is very beautiful and most illuminating," these executives said as they made notes on the extent of Pittsburgh's approval of the new motor creations. They see in this spoken approval by show visitors success for the improved motors, developed after long periods of research. More manufacturers' representatives are attending the show this year than have attended any show held here within the last decade.

Bohannon, Smith, Nettleton and Hubbard, of the Peerless factory, in addition to attending the show, also addressed a luncheon for Western Pennsylvania Peerless dealers in Hotel Schenley. The luncheon was presided over by H. D. Eierman, vice president of the Steel City Automobile Company, distributor here for Peerless.

J. A. Bohannon

In his talk, Bohannon stated the Pittsburgh Automobile Show, at which it is introducing three new eight-cylinder lines, marks an important occasion in the history of Peerless.

"This year," Bohannon said, "will determine, for a number of manufacturers and dealers, who will remain in the industry. It will be a narrowing of the lane as business stabilizes itself from previous over-optimism. What is needed most today is a fighting spirit and a will to work hard.

"Peerless has answered the question of confidence in the industry for 1930," Bohannon continued, "by completely retooling and redesigning its factory at an enormous cost within the last four months. During that time also it has reorganized its personnel on a more efficient basis and designed and built three entirely new lines of eight-cylinder cars. Automobiles of the future must be better built and in the new products by Peerless, one of the oldest manufacturers in the industry, are reflected the company's colorful background."

Matheson also addressed a gathering of dealers here yesterday. The occasion was a luncheon for Western Pennsylvania Dodge Brothers dealers and was given in the Pittsburgh Athletic Association by Frank D. Saupp, Inc.

INTEREST HIGH

Automobile Day was celebrated by the East Liberty Chamber of Commerce yesterday, when the Pittsburgh Automobile Dealers' Association took charge of the meeting. H. F. Gleason, president of the dealers, was toastmaster. Entertainment was provided by Joseph White, the Silver Masked tenor, and Charles Marsh and his Symphony Players, who also are heard at the Auto Show. Gleason outlined the importance of the industry to Pittsburgh, stating that automobiles contributed about one-fifth of the steel industry's payroll.

Interest in the show, which is open daily from 1 to 11 p. m., continues high, the crowds surpassing in numbers those of the record year of 1929. Color is one of the principal points of interest. In the Chrysler group are a number of cars that were prepared for the annual display by Bishop and Ports, one of the oldest automotive body and paint organizations in the city. Other exhibits that are attracting attention because of their color work are those of Franklin, Cadillac, Marmon, Studebaker, Durant, Chevrolet and Willys-Knight.

'DEAL' DENIED IN BIDDING

A denial of unfair tactics and collusion was made by Walter F. Weberg, president of the Fort Pitt Electric Company when he appeared before the Board of Education last night to explain his bid for electrical work on the addition to the Taylor Allderdice High School.

All bids had been thrown out by the school board Monday night at which time board members charged "apparent collusion" among the electrical contractors of this city to destroy competition. The bid of Weberg's company was $42,807, the lowest submitted.

Weberg told the board that the only function performed by the Electrical Contractors Association was a quantity survey on all work open to bidding to insure contractors estimating on the same amount of material required. He said the association receives a small sum of money for this service and the members pay a fee of $10 a year.

He offered to go over his estimates with any representative of the board. It was decided he and an engineer selected by the board would submit their estimates to James Bonar, superintendent of buildings, who after comparing the two was to submit a recommendation to the board.

Pope Attends Mass For Benedict XV

VATICAN CITY, Jan. 22.—(AP)—Pope Pius this morning attended a solemn requiem mass in the Sistine Chapel, chanted for the repose of the soul of his predecessor, Benedict XV, who died just eight years ago today, having reigned from 1914.

Cardinal Mistrangelo, archbishop of Florence, officiated, since he was the first of the living wearers of the purple to be raised to that dignity by the late Pope. The mass was witnessed by about 20 cardinals of Curia, residing permanently in Vatican City or Rome.

POSTOFFICE BID ACTION SOON

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—Treasury officials today indicated that bids will be advertised soon for the construction of the proposed $6,000,000 postoffice at Pittsburgh. The details holding up the advertisement are expected to be completed within a few days.

Secretary A. W. Mellon and Ferris Heath, assistant secretary in charge of public buildings, discussed the matter yesterday after which Mellon expressed hope that project would be speeded as rapidly as possible. James Francis Burke, of Pittsburgh, also discussed the Pittsburgh building with Heath.

Burke declared that Pittsburgh's new postoffice will be the first project undertaken in President Hoover's construction program.

2 IN SEWICKLEY COUNCIL QUIT

Sewickley citizens today were discussing the borough councilmanic dispute wherein C. D. Bevington resigned both as president and a member, and R. R. Kuhn as vice president of the body. Due to the shakeup, Councilman J. C. Chaplin was chosen president and James Arrott elected a councilman to fill Bevington's unexpired term. The changes occurred Monday night.

Bevington was named president at the re-organization of Council a week ago on the strength, according to reports, that Chaplin be not named to committees with which he was identified under the old Council. Bevington's letter of resignation was received and the ensuing shakeup took place at the special meeting Monday night.

Dry Informer Who Helped Jail Young Mother 'Vanishes'

Because he found two cases of home brew in her home in Monterey County, California, a raider arrested Mrs. Arthur "Sue" Brown, who was about to become a mother. Shocked into a serious condition, Mrs. Brown gave birth to a baby in jail. The baby died and the young mother is now seriously ill in a hospital.

Arthur Brown, her husband, says she signed a paper she thought was a confession they made home brew, but which, he declares, proved to be a confession that she sold beer and whisky.

In this, the third of a series of articles on the case, Winifred Black, noted writer, tells of the disappearance of "Henry Miller," mysterious informant responsible for Mrs. Brown's arrest.

By WINIFRED BLACK.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 22—So "Henry Miller" has disappeared.

"Henry Miller," the mysterious individual whose testimony scrawled on a piece of dirty paper put an inoffensive little woman in jeopardy of her life and made her fight the agonizing battle of motherhood alone in a filthy cell.

Who is "Henry Miller" really? Is there any such man at all?

None of the neighbors has ever seen him and in all the broad County of Monterey nobody can even suspect who he is, except Judge Baugh, who signed the warrant for Sue Brown's arrest and signed it on the strength of the affidavit of the honest, courageous, high-minded "Henry Miller," and D M Laughrey, the prohibition agent who left all Monterey County celebrating New Year's Eve with wine, whisky, gin, brandy—and some of them perhaps with dope—and went eight miles down a lonesome road and broke into Art Brown's home like a thief in the night and frightened little Sue Brown almost to death.

It isn't the first time "Henry Miller" has signed an affidavit against a neighbor in Monterey County, and, strangely enough, he never appears at the trial.

Who helps him to make his "getaway?"

It can't be Mr. D. M. Laughery, that good and chivalrous man who waits until he sees the husband drive out of the yard and then breaks down the door and tells the wife, alone in a lonely farm house, that she will have to pay a $300 fine or go to jail.

No, no—never Mr. D. M. Laughery. Why there's nothing cowardly about him; he's six feet three in his stocking feet, and broad shouldered and husky enough to be a prize fighter—why, he isn't afraid of any woman in the world—why should he help the witness who was helping him to keep his job, to escape—when all the state is crying out for a sight of said witness?

Not Judge Baugh, the astute politician, the clever little man who stands "in" with the powers that be in Monterey County.

You know who this mysterious "Henry Miller" is, Judge Baugh. Why not issue a writ of habeas corpus and bring him to court?

It's a simple thing to get a sworn statement against a neighbor down in Monterey County. An ex-official explained it all to me. He said:

"They want to go after somebody, and they pick up some 'friend' or 'neighbor' with a spite or a little envy in his heart, and they get him to swear out the warrant. Maybe it's the man who spent the evening at his neighbor's house the night before. Maybe he waved a friendly goodbye to that very neighbor as he went to meet the 'undercover man' and sign his warrant for him.

"Does he sign his own name, this obliging, kindly fellow who's looking for a few dollars on the side, no matter how he gets it?

"He does not—not so you can read it.

"He scrawls a signature that he couldn't identify himself if his life depended on it—something like 'Miller, or Muller or Thriller, or something——.'

"If the agent finds the stuff he is looking for in the house, the kind neighbor points out to him—the affidavit is torn up, and that's that.

"If it turns out to be a false alarm the affidavit disappears mysteriously—and there you are.

FATHERS AGAINST SONS

"That's one reason I got out of the game. I couldn't stand brothers informing against brothers and fathers signing some queer illegible signatures to a complaint against their own sons.

"Who had a grudge against young Brown or against his wife? Did Brown work so hard night and day that he made some lazy neighbor ashamed of himself? Did little Sue Brown turn her head the other way when some country 'sheik' looked in her direction—.

"Keep your eye on the neighbors—you'll find 'Henry Miller,' but he won't be signing that name to any more checks."

On the day that I went to see Prohibition Officer Laughery to ask him how in the world he came to pick out Art Brown's neat little farmhouse for his "raid" he tried to make me believe all kinds of things about little Sue Brown, who is known as one of the most devoted little mothers and wives in Monterey County.

So I am quite ready to believe a good deal I hear about prohibition officers and the friends they have to swear out warrants for them.

LOYOLA NAMES NEW COUNCIL

CHICAGO, Jan. 22—(AP.)—What is believed to be an innovation in management of Catholic educational institutions, was announced here with the selection of an Administrative Council of Laymen, non-secretarian in its makeup, to supervise the business and financial operations of Loyola University, a school conducted by the Jesuit Fathers.

The announcement was made by the Rev. Robert M. Kelley, president of Loyola, who explained the move was necessary because of the growth of the school which now has more than 7,000 students enrolled.

"The council, because of its widespread activities, will enable Loyola to form closer contacts with men and women of all faiths, in civic and public life," he said.

State Police Shift Sub-Station Force

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., Jan. 22.—Corp. George F. Pierce, of the Pennsylvania State Constabulary, yesterday succeeded Corp. J. R. Dodson in charge of the barracks at New Salem. Pierce came to New Salem from Bedford, Pa., and Dodson returned to Greensburg.

Five new privates, R. F. Walsh, C. W. Taylor, N. W. Zeigler, C. A. Erickson and C. Handmore, were also assigned to New Salem.

Funeral for Driver Killed in Overturn

ENDEAVOR, Pa., Jan. 22.—Funeral services were held here for George M. Howe, of East Hickory, killed when the truck he was driving plunged over an embankment. He had used the machine to convey Endeavor basketball players to Pleasantville, and had just turned off the Warren-Tidioute road to go to his home when the accident happened.

The car overturned, crushing him beneath it. His son, Warren, accompanying him, escaped uninjured. Hilliard Lodge, I. O. O. F., had charge of the funeral. Howe was born at Tylersburg on March 18, 1885.

Well-Known Pianist Will Give Concert

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Jan. 22.—Mme. Elly Ney, one of the outstanding pianists in Europe, will appear in Waynesburg January 27 under auspices of the Waynesburg College Conservatory of Music.

Small Still Seized, Accused Owner Held

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., Jan. 22.—Whitelaw Harrold of North Union township was arrested after police seized a 15-gallon still, 300 gallons of mash and 10 gallons of liquor in his home, they reported.

When BABIES are upset

Baby ills and ailments seem twice as serious at night. A sudden cry may mean colic. Or a sudden attack of diarrhea—a condition it is always important to check quickly. How would you meet this emergency—tonight? Have you a bottle of Castoria ready? There is nothing that can take the place of this harmless but effective remedy for children; nothing that acts quite the same, or has quite the same comforting effect on them.

For the protection of your wee one—for your own peace of mind—keep this old, reliable preparation always on hand. But don't keep it just for emergencies; let it be an everyday aid. Its gentle influence will ease and soothe the infant who cannot sleep. Its mild regulation will help an older child whose tongue is coated because of sluggish bowels. All druggists have Castoria; the genuine bears Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the wrapper.

In Seven Days Fiery, Itching Skin Gets Sure Relief

Here is a surgeon's wonderful prescription now dispensed by chemists at trifling cost, that will do more toward helping you get rid of unsightly spots and skin disease than anything you've ever used.

Not only does this great healing antiseptic oil promote rapid and healthy healing in open sores and wounds, but boils, abscesses and ulcers are almost immediately relieved and cleanly healed.

In skin diseases its action is little less than magical. The itching of Eczema is instantly stopped, the eruptions dry up and scale off in a very few days. The same is true of barbers' itch, salt rheum and other skin eruptions and inflammation.

You can obtain Moone's Emerald Oil (full strength) in the original bottle at May's & Liggett's Drug Stores all over Greater Pittsburgh, or any modern drug store. It is safe to use, and failure in any of the ailments noted above is rare indeed.

STOP BAD BREATH

Thousands of people afflicted with bad breath find quick relief through Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets. The pleasant, sugar-coated tablets are taken for bad breath by all who know.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets act gently but firmly on the bowels and liver, stimulating them to natural action, clearing the blood and gently purifying the entire system. They do that which dangerous calomel does without any of the bad after effects.

Olive Tablets bring no griping pain or any disagreeable effects.

Dr. F. M. Edwards discovered the formula after 20 years of practice among patients afflicted with bowel and liver complaint, with the attendant bad breath.

Olive Tablets are purely a vegetable compound; you will know them by their olive color. Take nightly for a week and note the effect. 15c, 30c, 60c.

AUTOIST BALKS OVER SQUIRE

WASHINGTON, Pa., Jan. 22.—Testing the provisions of the automobile code which provides that an offender must be haled before the nearest justice of the peace or other competent official, W. C. Askins, of Stockdale, has appealed from a summary conviction before Justice of the Peace J. D. Hornbake, of California. Askins is alleged to have offended in an automobile accident in Stockdale, but instead of being arraigned there, was taken to California, several miles away. Askins claims he should have been arraigned in Stockdale.

Judge Howard W. Hughes ordered the case put on the argument list. There has been some complaint that some officers have offenders arraigned before certain justices of the peace or aldermen to guarantee summary convictions.

VICTIMS FIRE ON ROBBERS

Two masked and armed robbers cornered five persons in the prescription room of the Baier & Fleming Drug Co. store at Franklin and Swissvale avenues, Wilkinsburg, last night and, after gathering up $300 in cash, fled amid a hail of shots fired by one of the victims.

The robbers escaped in the automobile left at the curb and driven by the third member of the band. One of the trio is believed to have been wounded.

Twenty-six dollars was obtained from Harold Digby, of 810 Holland avenue; K. H. Glaesner, of 1114 Franklin avenue, saved his bankroll by dropping his wallet back of a safe during the excitement. Nothing was obtained from W. L. Alward, of 1002 South avenue, or Frank Gordon, 453 Ella street.

Fights Wife's Suit, Indiscretion Charged

Indiscretions on the part of his wife, Etta L. Mason, are charged by John E. Mason, Millvale confectionery store proprietor, in an answer to her divorce suit today. He alleged that in 1928 she and their son and daughter went to Texas by automobile with J. A. Ketler and that the four occupied one bedroom. At tourist hotels on the way back, he sets forth, there was "shocking freedom and unconventionality." The wife in her suit averred that she was compelled to support the family. This he denies.

U. S. DRUG WAR WINS PRAISE

By STANTON B. LEEDS,
Universal Service Special Cable.

GENEVA, Jan. 22.—Unstinted praise was accorded the United States today when the Advisory Committee on traffic in opium of the League of Nations listened to the reports of various governments on what they had done this past year to suppress the illicit traffic and manufacture of drugs.

America's record was 4,773 convictions for sentences aggregating 8,810 years. Only such drastic penalties are effective, Committee Assessor Lyall declared, taking occasion to excoriate a policy of fines and short sentences. Lyall pointed out that when Italy accorded amnesty to 5,000 prisoners at the marriage of Crown Prince Humbert and Princess Marie Jose, only convicts imprisoned on drug charges were excepted.

Encouraged by the praise accorded America, John Kenneth Caldwell, unofficial observer for the United States, launched a bitter attack on the French administrative control of drugs, stating:

"In violation of her treaty pledges under The Hague convention of 1912, France last year permitted the export of one sixth of a ton of heroin to the United States. All this, despite the absence of import certificates from the United States and despite the knowledge that the United States does not permit the importation of heroin. France also permitted a ton of opium to be imported into China."

KILLED IN HOME IN RUM FEUD

CLEVELAND, Jan. 22.—(AP.)—Charles S. O'Neil, 31, a chauffeur, was killed last night when five shots from a shotgun roared through the window of his home while he sat reading. Police blamed a bootleggers' feud.

O'Neil, his wife said, returned home shortly before midnight with a man known to police as George Asher. Mrs. O'Neil said Asher went into the kitchen to mix a cocktail while her husband sat down to read.

She said she heard the shots and rushed into the front room to find O'Neil's body wedged under the table. Asher had gone and $160 was missing from the dead man's pockets. Three shotgun shells were found outside the window.

Asher, police said, recently was released from the state penitentiary.

BOOTH'S CHOICE DISDAINED

LONDON, Jan. 22.—(AP.)—The Daily News today says that a sealed envelope containing the name of the late Gen. Bramwell Booth's nominee to succeed him as head of the Salvation Army was burned unopened by the solicitor of the Army in the presence of several commissioners.

According to the newspaper the act of burning followed immediately after the Chancery Court had ordered executors of the general to turn over Army property, valued at $5,000,000, to the present head of the Army, Gen. Higgins. The property had been sequestered by the Booth family, pending outcome of the litigation started by Gen. Higgins, because of Gen. Booth's disposition of the Army assets, consisting mainly of real estate, as a family trust.

American Salvation Army property was not affected.

Roads Balk Fire Trucks, Home Burns

ELLWOOD CITY, Jan. 22.—Fire, thought to have been caused by an overheated furnace, destroyed a one-story frame dwelling belonging to Harry Lutz, south of here. The family was away at the time and lost all household possessions.

The fire trucks were unable to get to the scene due to the condition of the roads and neighbors fought the flames with a bucket brigade.

Six Men Injured As Mine Cars Crash

GREENSBURG, Pa., Jan. 22.—Six men were hurt, and 19 others escaped injury when a trip of empty mine cars on which they were riding into the St. Clair Fuel Company mine near Ligonier collided with a loaded train.

Chic Rig for Youngster

Pattern 1829

Sun-Telegraph 15c Practical Pattern

By ANNE ADAMS

The little lady sketched today is extremely smart in her bolero outfit of blue serge and white linen. The sleeveless bodice is separate as it will need frequent launderings, and the cunning pleated skirt is attached to it with bone buttons. The smart jacket fastens at the neck, under the collar of the blouse, and the cuffs are separate.

Design 1829 would be stunning in red kasha with white linen, in brown jersey with natural pongee or in checked tweed with linen or silk crepe bodice. Buttons should match the woolen fabric in color.

May be obtained only in sizes 4, 6, 8 and 10. Size 4 requires 1¼ yards wool and 1⅛ yards 36-inch fabric for bodice.

No dressmaking experience is necessary to make this model. The pattern has ample and exact instructions. Yardage is given for every size. A perfect fit is guaranteed.

Patterns will be delivered upon receipt of FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins carefully wrapped or stamps. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, STYLE NUMBER and SIZE wanted.

The NEW WINTER FASHION BOOK is FIFTEEN CENTS, but only TEN CENTS when ordered with a pattern. Address all mail and orders to Sun-Telegraph Pattern Department, 243 West Seventeenth street, New York City.

HOME OWNERS MOST THRIFTY

"Home-ownership is the basic principle of good citizenship and the instrument of sound progress," Robert T. Houlden, past president of the Allegheny County Building and Loan League, said at a luncheon of the Building and Loan Council in the Chamber of Commerce yesterday.

The address was a part of the program of National Thrift Week which ends Friday.

More than 7,000 owners, Houlden said, procured their dwellings in Allegheny County in 1929 through the building and loan. The tendency toward national thrift, regardless of utterances to the contrary, is expressed in the figures of 12,000,000 who represent share-holders of building and loan stock in America, Houlden declared. The assets of the associations in the United States aggregate over $8,000,000,000.

Included in the groups is a fire company committee, which will act as a conference group to deal with the Waynesburg Volunteer Fire Company. Those on the committee are A. I. Exploding Gasoline Burns Man Badly

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., Jan. 22.—James Cashbar, Tower Hill No. 2, was severely burned when a bucket of gasoline exploded in his cellar. He was thawing a frozen water line with a burning paper when the flames came in contact with the gasoline. He was burned about the arms and legs.

$25 is all it takes . . . .

to have one of these beautiful Grand Pianos put in your home under this cooperative plan

THE PRICE OF THIS PIANO IS $435

The balance is payable 12 dollars and fifty cents monthly, plus a small carrying charge. This gives you almost 3 years in which to pay for the piano.

Mr. Hamilton writes of the plan

(A Personal Card)

This plan of buying and selling appeals so strongly to me that I am constrained to add a personal word to our advertisement.

In the first place, it is sound economically. Any plan for reducing that great enemy of low prices — "the overhead" — has my wholehearted endorsement. We welcome the opportunity of joining in this cooperative movement. A merchandizing plan based on such sound economic principles, and backed by an organization of the Aeolian Company's standing, is sure to be successful.

Then, the ethics of the whole idea appeal to me very much. The FAIR and SQUARE proposition offered the buyer, and the 100% protection he enjoys under this arrangement is certainly a big step forward.

And I feel that the biggest feature of the whole campaign will be its popular appeal. It is right in line with the most up-to-date sentiment of the buying public. As R. H. Macy puts it — "It is Smart to be Thrifty".

Mgr. of C. C. Mellor Co.,
604 Wood St., Pittsburgh, Pa.

How to Obtain One of These Pianos

To take advantage of this unusual sale, all you have to do is to send or bring in twenty-five dollars, for which we will at once give you a receipt.

This twenty-five dollars is credited to your account on the co-operative books—leaving four hundred and ten dollars to be paid.

The co-operative plan then allows thirty-four months (almost 3 years) in which to pay this amount—at the rate of twelve dollars and fifty cents a month. There are no further payments except a very small carrying charge.

You can select your piano at once—to-morrow—next day—next week or any other time convenient to you. It will be delivered immediately—next week or next month. The time you select your piano and the date of delivery are wholly optional with you.

If not convenient for you to personally select your piano, we will make the selection for you under your instructions.

During this Sale the Store will be Open at 8:30 a.m. and Remain Open Until 5:30 p.m.

GET this first fixed in your mind. That under this cooperative plan you get for four hundred and thirty-five dollars, a thoroughly dependable, real Grand piano, made by the Aeolian Company, great international piano makers and manufacturers of the renowned and incomparable Duo-Art.

Anyone can cooperate in this extraordinary opportunity, on account of the easy terms. You have to pay out only $25 to take advantage of this plan. And this for your first payment. This $25 is credited to the price of your instrument. This leaves a balance of $410 to pay. And you are given thirty-four months (almost 3 years) to pay the balance.

Also, your piano will be delivered at once. No delays. No Waits. But now. These grands are now on our floors awaiting your selection. Come tomorrow. It's to your advantage.

Another of the Compelling Features

And that is—If at any time within a year you decide to have a Steinway, a Weber or a Steck (these are the three great international pianos) we will give you the privilege of making the exchange without loss. Every penny that you have paid in will count on the purchase of the more expensive piano.

The whole idea back of this plan of selling pianos is to secure the heartiest good will and the fullest co-operation from every person who participates in it.

Those who "go in" to own a piano on this plan must see in the first place that they are getting a big bargain. That they are getting easier conditions of purchase; that they are obtaining more privileges and that they are better protected than if they were to buy a piano through the regular run of piano business. And if, after having the piano in their home for a whole year, they decide to buy one of the world's celebrated makes of pianos—every cent they have paid in may be applied on the purchase.

Wickersham to Give Law Survey Over Radio

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Sun-Telegraph Radio Editor.

GEORGE W. WICKERSHAM, chairman of President Hoover's Commission on Law Observance, will step before the microphone tonight to tell more of the commission's discoveries. He will be heard on WCAE at 8:30.

Dr. Thomas S. Baker, president of the Carnegie Institute of Technology, will discuss the International Conference on Bituminous Coal as the highlight of Westinghouse Salute, KDKA at 7:30.

G. Wickersham

KDKA will introduce two new features. The Jamesway program at 6:30 will revive the old-fashioned barn dance. The Guardians at 9 p. m. will bring an augmented orchestra into the William Penn studios.

We think "40 Fathom Trawlers" over WJAS at 8:30 will provide most thrills of the evening. The story of a Spanish slave ship will be related.

And if you're feeling witty-like don't forget it's Cuckoo Night, KDKA at 9:30.

We Now Present

Gentlemen of the press were "anything but" yesterday when they snowballed Percy Boyd's "iron hat" after being witnesses to Dr. Heinroth playing the new radio-electric organ at Westinghouse laboratories.

A contemporary, Lynden Morrow, should be decorated for his accuracy.

GETTING EVEN

Boyd got even an hour later. Morrow was driving back to the city. In Wilkinsburg, Boyd's home town, they came to a red stop light. "Blow your horn and the light will change." Boyd advised seriously. Morrow honked. "That's not enough." Boyd said. So Morrow honked and honked and . . . honked. A minute passed. The light turned yellow. Then it turned green. Morrow turned red. It was a traffic light automatically timed and not a "honk honk" light.

KQV and WMBJ, both ambitious, must wait until the new Radio Commission is organized February 25. Each wants more power.

But, believe it or not, WMBJ got into Toronto, Canada, on 100 watts the other eve.

KDKA and WCAE will be in the NBC hookup which will attempt to pick up the Naval Parley dinner from London tomorrow at 4:25.

DAY'S TID BIT:

"Forty Fathom" Owen at WJAS a poor fisherman, but he has veled extensively on land. He well acquainted with South erica and can expound on a ee bean's origin merely by ing it.

Spanish Slave Ship.

Herman Melville's famous sea story, "Benito Cereno," supplied the plot for the sketch to be presented tonight. Old Forty Fathom tells this yarn, which deals with a Spanish slave ship, encountered in the South Atlantic by a Yankee whaler. The Spanish captain was held under a strange spell by the slaves aboard and mismanagement had brought the crew and all aboard into sad plight through lack of provisions and bad navigating. The nature of the spell and its dissolution offers one of the weirdest stories ever told. Deep sea music and songs will be presented.

HOWARD GIVES TALK ON RADIO

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—(AP.)—Delivering what he termed the "swan song of a retiring British ambassador," Sir Esme Howard, dean of the diplomatic corps, expressed over the radio last night his appreciation for "the hospitality I have received and the lessons I have learned."

Sir Esme will sail for England shortly with Lady Howard.

His address having been preceded by a broadcast of British music, Sir Esme devoted most of his time to a "brief summary of the history of English music." While the thought of England is not usually connected with music, he said, there was a time, called the "Golden Age," when it was in the forefront of musical countries.

Later, during the seventeenth century, he continued, there was a "dead period," when folk songs, handed down from father to son, were the principal music. Some of these songs survive in mountain sections of the United States.

Sir Esme concluded his address with the hope that discords will never enter "the joint compositions" of English-speaking countries.

Chrysler's test is the Industry's test

ANNOUNCEMENTS . . . announcements . . . announcements . . . the papers are full of them! Read them all . . . analyze them . . . and what do you find?

Others are announcing as new to their cars features that Chrysler inaugurated months—and in some cases years—ago!

This is no boast! Look the field over. You simply cannot find a salient improvement in the newest of new cars that Chrysler does not offer in cars, not only tested beyond question in the laboratory, but by thousands and thousands of miles of practical use.

Tested and proved 4-speed transmissions with tested and proved high-compression engines. Chrysler has them.

Tested and proved quick, non-clashing, double-action gear shifts (permitting shifting BACK and FORTH between forward speeds regardless of how fast you may be driving). Chrysler has them.

Tested and proved down-draft carburetion—not simply a gravity-feed carburetor but complete down-draft manifolding as well (and there's a big difference in having one without the other)! Chrysler has them both.

Dreadnought body construction with all the latest comfort features—Chrysler has been seasons ahead with these just as Chrysler has led in providing noiseless rubber shackles that require no lubrication; flexible rubber engine mountings and impulse neutralizers; oil filters; invar steel strut pistons; four-wheel hydraulic brakes and scores of other features now being widely proclaimed as the latest engineering advancements.

In every instance, Chrysler's stamp of approval has meant almost universal adoption by the rest of the industry. FOR CHRYSLER'S TEST IS THE INDUSTRY'S TEST!

In the six years since the first Chrysler was introduced, the important advancements contributed by Chrysler actually outnumber the sum total of major improvements attributable to any other motor car.

So at the Automobile Show, when others point to advancements, learn what they are . . . then look at the Chrysler line.

If they are basic . . . if they are sound . . . if they have passed the experimental stage and actually contribute something worthwhile to final results in motoring efficiency, comfort, beauty, ease, style, economy or savings to the purchaser, you will find Chrysler has them . . . has HAD them . . . has tested them and proved them beyond the shadow of a doubt.

For Chrysler has established its place as the herald of engineering advancement, the pacemaker of performance and the criterion of style through such outstanding leadership in every phase of motoring that the ownership of a Chrysler inspires a pride all its own.

NEGLECT VICTIM TO STEAL RUM

CHARLEROI, Pa., Jan. 21.—While John Labasca, 23, accused as rum runner, lay in a serious condition at the Charleroi-Monessen Hospital with a fractured skull, Bellevernon police and county authorities began an investigation as to how 20 gallons of whisky disappeared from the Labasca car.

Labasca wrecked his machine when he hit a pole in Bellevernon. As he lay unconscious beside the demolished car, residents are reported to have found 25 gallons of liquor in a special compartment.

While police were being summoned there was a run on the supply. When Chief John Perry arrived he found five gallons left.

Investigation revealed that bystanders, disregarding the injured man, had removed the large quantity of liquor.

TASTE ISN'T EVERYTHING IN A TOOTH PASTE

Any tooth paste can taste like a confection, but "taste" doesn't mean "results." PEBECO purposely does not have a candy-like taste. It has a distinctive, minty tang which at first you may not prefer. But it tells you instantly that PEBECO is giving your teeth the help they need. It cleans as it whitens and checks the mouth acids which hasten decay. If PEBECO tastes strong or "bitey" it is because of this extra benefit, not obtainable in other dentifrices. Try it!

"Lazy" Said the Boss "Acid" Said the Doctor!

Charged with laziness—guilty simply of acidity! That's the situation with many men today. Always tired, have to pull themselves together for each and every task. They're branded as lazy and ambitionless when the real truth is that they're sick men—victims of acidity.

Excess acid, forming in the stomach causes acid-indigestion with gas, sourness and burning. It also sets up fermentation and putrefaction in the gastro-intestinal canal. This breeds poisons that sap our strength and vitality and so tax our nerves that we can't sleep soundly at night or work efficiently during the day.

Magnesia Oxoids, developed in Germany by a famous, 100-year-old pharmaceutical house, correct acidity in the right way! Upon contact with the acid in the stomach, Magnesia Oxoids generate nascent, or active, oxygen. The "live" oxygen stimulates the alkaline gastric mucus, checks putrefaction in the gastro-intestinal canal and stimulates the activities of the intestinal walls, which aids the natural movement of the bowels. All three effects are necessary to the true correction of acidity.

5-Day Acid Test

To ascertain just how "acid" you are, make this 5-day test. Get a package of Magnesia Oxoids at small cost from Dow Drug Co., or any other good druggist. Take two after each meal for a few days and see how much better you feel—how much more soundly you sleep and how much more energy you have. If 5 days' use doesn't tell you volumes, return the balance of the Oxoids to the druggist and he will cheerfully refund your money.

The order also appoints Walter G. Seely, of Port Chester, receiver of Kip's real and personal property in this state in sequestration proceedings to enable Alice to collect whatever alimony may be awarded her in her suit.

Alice asks no specific amount of alimony, but her attorney, William D. Cunningham, said he would apply for $500 monthly. In her affidavit Alice says Kip owns $180,000 worth of stocks and bonds and owns real estate in New York City.

Alice charges abandonment and mental cruelty.

Happy Woman Tells How She Lost 19 Pounds of Fat In 27 Days

During October a woman in Montana wrote—"My first bottle of Kruschen Salts lasted almost 4 weeks and during that time I lost 19 pounds of fat—Kruschen is all you claim for it—I feel better than I have for years."

Here's the recipe that banishes fat and brings into blossom all the natural attractiveness that every woman possesses.

Every morning take one-half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water before breakfast.

Be sure and do this every morning for "It's the little daily dose that takes off the fat."—Don't miss a morning. The Kruschen habit means that every particle of poisonous waste matter and harmful acids and gases are expelled from the system.

At the same time the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels are toned up and the pure, fresh blood containing Nature's six life-giving salts are carried to every organ, gland, nerve and fibre of the body and this is followed by "that Kruschen feeling" of energetic health and activity that is reflected in bright eyes, clear skin, cheerful vivacity and charming figure.

If you want to lose fat with speed get an 85c bottle of Kruschen Salts from May's & Liggett's Drug Stores or any live druggist anywhere in America with the distinct understanding that you must be satisfied with the results or money back.

Health Power In Flaxolyn

Says Viennese Doctor in Remarkable Statement

Dr. N. Weiss (M. D.) Specialist, from Vienna

Declares That Three Results Which Every Person Seeks—KEEN APPETITE, RESTFUL SLEEP and NORMAL BOWEL ACTION—Are Quick to Follow the Use of Dr. Luntz's New Vitaminized Herbal Flaxolyn. Recommends It Not Only to Those In Tired, Rundown Condition, But Also to Men and Women Who Would Not Ordinarily Take a Medicine. Flaxolyn Contains Herbs; It Cannot Harm; Can Only Do Good!

Few people really know what it is to feel 100% physically fit all the time. But Flaxolyn is here to help bring about that happy condition.

Thousands have already reported that they sleep serenely, wake up refreshed and invigorated, go about their work with pep and energy and when night time comes, have a reserve vitality for social activities, since taking Flaxolyn for only a short time.

Dr. N. Weiss is one of the many doctors who have broken the usual silence of the profession, to state publicly that Flaxolyn is a health discovery of rare merit! "Flaxolyn is a splendid formula, containing ingredients of which I approve," he says.

"After thorough trial, I am glad to recommend Vitaminized Flaxolyn. In the cases where I have prescribed it, keen appetite, restful sleep and normal bowel action have been quick to follow. Flaxolyn is also an excellent stimulant to the liver."

The pleasant new Vitaminized Herbal

FLAXOLYN

Made after the formula of Dr. Harris H. Luntz (M. D., D. O.) Flaxolyn contains valuable medicaments approved by the highest authorities. Its herbal ingredients include:

1. Baked Flaxseed—Relaxes congestion; acts as astringent.
2. Sarsaparilla Roots—The good old-fashioned system cleanser.
3. Buchu Leaves—Purify, stimulate kidneys and bladder.
4. African Ginger Roots—Quicken flow of vital digestive juices.
5. Dandelion Roots—Purify the liver and blood.
6. Cardamom Seeds—Act on the stomach lining. Aromatic tonic.
7. Chinese Rhubarb—Invigorates stomach and liver.
8. Spanish Licorice Roots—Remove mucus that may cling and poison digestive organs.
9. Culver Roots—Stimulate natural bile-flow; so purify liver.
10. Gentian Roots — Create healthy, normal appetite.
11. Belgian Valerian Roots—Tone nerves and induce restful sleep of health.
12. California Bark — Cleanses colon and removes foreign matter from intestines.

Stomach Run Down and Body Ailing for Years; Phila. Lady Well and Happy Now

Mrs. Humphrys Says She Is In the "Pink of Condition," Gives Full Credit to Dr. Luntz's Flaxolyn Which Brought Her New Hope and Courage, After Long, Constant Suffering From Nervousness, Poor Appetite, Bloating, Bilious Spells, Stomach Distress.

Looks Much Better Today.

Mrs. Rose Humphrys, of Phila.

Do you know what the main thing is, that Flaxolyn does for you? It helps you get more nourishment out of the food you eat; it stimulates the flow of vital digestive juices; it drives out toxic constipation gases.

Mrs. Rose Humphrys, of 405 East Ferry can gladly testify to the remarkable action of Flaxolyn in perfecting poor digestion. "I used to have terrible attacks of nervous indigestion," says Mrs. Humphrys. "For years my stomach was a wreck and it caused me all sorts of other troubles—gas pains, belching, heartburn. Worst of all, you could tell on my face, that I wasn't well.

"Just a short course of Flaxolyn, however, restored my health—gave me an appetite, made my stomach right again, and steadied me up wonderfully. I recommend Flaxolyn to everybody now."

Sleeplessness, Headaches, Gas Vanish As Flaxolyn Puts Phila. Man On His Feet Again

Never had any faith in drastic patent medicines that give nothing but temporary relief. Flaxolyn appealed to him because of its Herbal content. Felt the improvement as soon as he tried it and has been feeling good ever since!

Mr. Jay A. Listar, of Phila.

"I have had various ailments for some time", writes Mr. Jay A. Listar, of 1827 S. 60th St., "I never wanted to try the ordinary preparations, even for headaches, colds and coughs.

"I came across a Flaxolyn announcement in the newspaper, and after thinking it over, tried it—and what a relief! I really think the world of Flaxolyn after what it has done for me. That old restless sleep has gone and new sound refreshing sleep has replaced it. I have told all my friends about Flaxolyn and am glad to lend the use of my name and photograph to show others the high esteem in which I hold Flaxolyn".

Why delay? Why not make every day of your life more worth while living? Why not clear up internal irregularities such as constipation poisons, liver sluggishness, kidney irritation? Why not give yourself that natural color that comes from a healthier body? Flaxolyn is pleasant, economical, and quick to bring results. ALLEGHENY RIVER BOULEVARD OPPOSED

TOO NARROW, PLANNERS ASSERT

Four-Lane Traffic Should Be Minimum, They Assert; Suggest 6 Feet Widening

An ordinance providing for opening the Allegheny River boulevard from Washington boulevard to Penn Township, met with disapproval of the City Planning Commission at the reorganization meeting yesterday in the City-County Building.

A copy stating reasons for the action was directed sent to council.

The commission's reasons for disapproving the ordinance were because the boulevard, according to opinion of the board's members,

The commission held the boulevard would be unable to carry the heavy load of passenger and commercial traffic that would use the route.

THREE LANES OPPOSED

"The commission deplores the paving of only a three-lane roadway upon such highways whenever two-way traffic is to be taken care of."

Recommendations were made that the paved roadway be increased by an addition of six feet. This extended width would give a cross-distance of 36 feet—the minimum essential for four lanes of two-way traffic.

'BUY MORE LAND'

Recommendations also included the purchase of additional land so as to establish future widening over the contemplated 60-foot right of way.

Present officers of the commission were re-elected. These include L. W. Monteverde, chairman; E. W. Mudge, vice chairman, and W. C. Rice, secretary.

The following constitute the commission's personnel: L. W. Monterverde, E. W. Mudge, W. C. Rice, Frederick Bigger, A. O. Horner, James D. Hailman, James P. Malone, S. L. Tone and John Weber.

THIS is one of the busiest weeks in the long career of George M. Cohan. Not content with taking to the road in "Gambling," Mr. Cohan is directing the first performances of a new play here. Every afternoon and night he is spending in the theater, acting, rehearsing or "catching the show." Incidentally, the reception given him by the Pittsburgh audience on Monday night was the strongest we have ever listened to.

Mr. Cohan is acting his way to the coast, where he'll take up talking pictures. And to many followers of the theater, the talking pictures won't be taken up until Cohan does the taking.

The Irishman is at the height of his fame today, more appreciated by able critics than at any time since the days of the Four Cohans, when he was probably the freshest young man on the stage.

There was a time, of course, when a visit from Cohan was much less of an incident. He tells of an engagement in a small Georgia town years ago.

When Cohan and his troupe reached town, George looked around for the billing. He found none. He and his cohorts walked down to the opr'y house only to discover that not even outside the theater was there an announcement of the entertainment for that evening.

Cohan's request for the manager brought the information that the gentleman was down at his hardware store. Running the opr'y house was a sideline, it seems. Cohan and company strolled to the store. George demanded to know why his visit had been kept secret.

"Well, it's like this," the merchant-manager confided. "Everybody knows I run the hardware store, so when they see the actors and actresses walking down Main street they know something's doin'. They come in and ask me, and I tell 'em."

When Prof. Crandall's pianos, pets and bicycling blondes are placed on exhibition in Motor Square Garden next Monday, Sidewalks will be on hand to root for John G. Wildman, of Homewood. Mr. Wildman is a young piano player and he will endeavor to win the piano marathon.

He got his start three years ago in the front room of the Wildman home. One day he sat himself down on the piano stool and decided to play the piano as long as he could. He played for 21 hours, nothing but jazz music. He played and he played and he played. But not once did he play "Yes, We Have No Bananas." And that is why we will root for John Wildman, a gentleman of restraint.

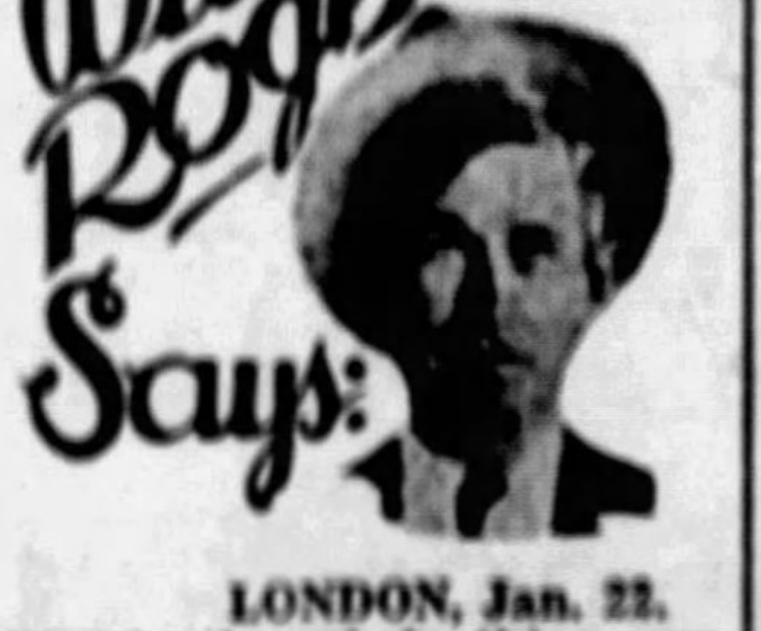
ROBERT MINOR, editor of the Daily Worker, who was in Pittsburgh for the convention of the International Labor Defense, was once jailed in Germany for making an interesting speech or two.

Jail was a new experience for the free-speaking young newspaperman, and time passed slowly. Finally he asked the authorities for something to read.

The officials pondered the problem of what a young American of Minor's tendencies should read. They agreed on the Saturday Evening Post and presented Minor with an old copy.

"Take it away," Minor refused. "Even in jail I'm not bourgeoise enough to read that."



LONDON, Jan. 22.

WELL, the whole thing was nothing but a Democratic convention with a silk hat on. The King made the best speech, then showed his real intelligence by leaving. When speaking, he was facing the American delegation. When he went out, he happened to think, so he sent four men back and they carried the gold throne chair out.

That will go on record as the first lack of confidence shown. I was proud of our gang. Only one of them spoke. Stimson was the next best speech to the King's. There was eight speeches for England and one for America. What we want is parity in speeches and limitation of oratory. We stood during one speech, sat through eight, and slept through 12. Three solid hours of compliments and not a single row boat sunk. All Englands colonies made speeches declaring their allegiance to their crown. After it was over, Joe Robinson told me he come pretty near getting up and declaring the great commonwealth of Arkansas stood steadfastly behind what ever America did.

Yours, WILL.

Norrie's Fondness for Tom Amuses Lovejoy

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Tom Nicholson and his young and beautiful wife are happy with their baby and tiny bungalow until their wealthy neighbors, the Aldersons, come into their lives. Mrs. Alderson, whose husband is elderly, has an affair with a man named "Jack." Tom's suspicions are unjustly directed to Lovejoy when Jack telephones and hangs up abruptly. Lovejoy speaks to Mrs. Alderson about it.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XIII.

ALINE'S story was short, but it was not sweet.

As a matter of fact it was anything but sweet.

And yet, in its way, it was a love story.

"This man who calls me up—he think's he's in love with me," she told Lovejoy that morning, "and I just don't know how to get rid of him. I'm all upset about it. Remember how flustered I was yesterday morning when I had that call of his switched over to your house?"

Lovejoy did remember.

She remembered, too, how Aline had made a date with him for that afternoon—and how eagerly she had gone to keep it.

"Do you honestly want to get rid of him?" she found herself asking.

It seemed to her that a married woman who really wanted to put a man out of her life ought not to find it so very hard.

"Yes, I do," Aline answered slowly. "But I know that I've got to do it slowly and carefully. There isn't really much to the whole silly affair, but I'd hate to have my husband hear about it."

Her blue eyes travelled round the room as if they were counting up the things that her husband meant to her—the gold-topped brushes and bottles on the dressing table, the beautiful furniture, the fresh flowers in the suny window, the breakfast tray with its silver coffee pot and hot-milk jug.

"I've been trying to let Jack down easily," she went on, flushing as she let the man's name slip from between her lips. "I've been breaking engagements with him every now and then—but he keeps calling me up. And I'm so afraid my husband may answer the phone some time. You see, he's one of our best friends. One of my husband's best friends."

She stopped and struck a match to a cigaret that she took from a silver box on the window sill beside her.

"So I thought I'd ask him to write to me instead of calling me up so much," she said, taking a tiny bit of tobacco from her tongue with her delicate pointed fingers. "But I can't get his letters because my maid would be sure to know where they were from if she saw the post mark. She knows all our friends."

She gave Lovejoy an imploring look.

"If you'd let me tell him to send his letters to your house, addressed to you," she added, "you'd just be doing me the greatest kind of a favor. And I promise you they wont come there very long. I'm doing my best to end this silly business."

Lovejoy didn't know what to say.

She knew that she ought to say "No." And yet—there couldn't be anything so terribly wicked about this affair of Aline's or she wouldn't be confessing it this way, would she?

The telephone rang again.

"May I tell him to send his letters to you?" Aline asked, reaching out a slender, well-kept hand for the little black instrument that can mean so much danger and so much safety and so much happiness and trouble. "Quick! Tell me!"

"Yes, I guess so," Lovejoy replied uncertainly. "I must go now. I can hear the baby crying."

The last thing she heard, as she hurried out of the room, was Aline giving her name and the address of the little bungalow to the man she called Jack.

"Mrs. Thomas Nicholson, 33 Stallings Lane." Her voice followed Lovejoy down the wide stairs.

That night Tom came home with a check in his pocket. It was a check for two hundred dollars, and it was for Lovejoy.

"There's the money you wanted," he said, handing it to her the minute he came into the little house. "I sold the oil stock."

He did not stoop to kiss her as he always did when he came into the house at night.

He left her standing, with the check in her hand, and went on his way to the sunroom to have a look at the baby.

"Hello, Buster," Lovejoy heard him say. "How's the boy been all day?" The door of the room closed after him.

Until the last two nights she and Tom had always gone into the room together to say good night to the baby. It had been the happiest moment of the day. The high point.

"Oh, well, if he wants to shut me out of things, let him," she said to herself unhappily. "I'm not going to care."

But she did care. And the worst of it was that she didn't know whether he was angry about the telephone call or the money that he had just put into her hand.

On Saturday night at seven Aline telephoned the house.

"We're going to have a poker party," she told Lovejoy in her high sweet voice, "and we'd like you and your nice husband to come over if you can make it. Won't your aunt come over and stay with your baby just this one time?"

Lovejoy said she'd ask her.

"Tom!" she called, turning away from the telephone, "Would you like to go over to the Aldersons' and play poker? They are having some people in."

"I wouldn't like to—but I suppose I've got to!" was Tom's answer from the kitchen where he was putting a new washer on the hot water faucet in the sink.

Lovejoy telephoned Aunt Em.

"I can't come over. I'm just going out to the picture show with your uncle," said Aunt Em. "But wait a minute and I'll ask Norrie Shane if she'll come. She's right here."

There was a silence, and then Norrie's soft voice came over the wire.

"I'll be glad to come and sit with the baby if you want me to," it said. "I haven't a thing to do tonight."

"Norrie, you're a dear," Lovejoy cried. "Bring along your over-night bag and I'll fix up our spare room for you. I'm afraid we aren't going to be home very early, so you may as well plan to spend the night here."

Lovejoy was happier than she had been in days when she hung up the receiver and flew into the bedroom to dress.

She sang as she took her one and only evening dress out of the tiny clothes closet and hung Tom's dinner coat over the foot of his bed.

This was something like living, at last! This was what Saturday night was for! To get dressed for a party. To close the door of the house after you

ARTIST MENARD DIES IN PARIS

Emile Rene Menard, French artist, whose paintings have been the center of interest in practically all the Carnegie Internationals, died in Paris, January 13, according to word received here yesterday.

Two of his paintings, "Judgment of Paris" and "The Rape of Europa," are in the permanent collection at the Carnegie Institute. His painting, "The Three Graces," is owned by the Pittsburgh Athletic Association, and many of his other works are in private collections in Pittsburgh.

He began to exhibit at Carnegie Institute in 1897, and had been in practically every Carnegie International since that time. In 1922 his painting, "Women Bathing in the Greve," was awarded second prize. In the nineteenth international, a gallery was set aside for 22 of his paintings. In 1926 there was a special show of his works at the Institute.

Says Wife Used Hatchet, Asks Divorce

Mrs. Julia Glassner, of Highland avenue, McKees Rocks, frequently took a hatchet to bed with her, and once, after numerous threats to kill her husband, attacked him and inflicted a scalp wound, according to the charge of Frank Glassner, of 547 Federal street, McKees Rocks. The charges were contained in a bill of particulars filed by him in his divorce suit against her in Common Pleas Court.

She tried for four years to compel him to leave home, having him arrested often on "framed" charges, and finally she left, after 25 years of married life, taking the furniture and bed clothing, Glassner alleged. They were married December 31, 1904, and the parting occurred January 7, 1929.

Fine of $25 and costs, placed upon L. A. Martin, because he drove through city park while a religious meeting was in progress, was ordered remitted, and costs put upon the city by Judge William Parker. The court found that prosecution had been made under an old ordinance no longer in force, and that an attempt was made to make the information after Magistrate R. J. Perrine had passed judgment.

Eddie Cantor Rises to Say:

PAUL WHITEMAN, Rudy Vallee and Amos 'n' Andy are fine on the radio, and America loves them, but it took a newcomer, King George, to get us up at 4:30 in the morning, or speaking for the actors, to sit up until that hour.

The King's speech was a classic for brevity and good sense. His voice came over fine and he was not the least bit microphone shy.

Luckily, Ireland has her freedom, or it would have been embarrassing to bring the King of England so close to a "mike."

At Buckingham Palace, Great Britain's ruler shook hands with 60 of the delegates. I can hear President Hoover saying, "Oh boy, that's a pipe, if George wants to see some handshaking, he should get a week at me New Year's day at the White House."

The Camera Question Box

The Sun-Telegraph's "Camera Question Box" each day will ask a question of public interest to Pittsburghers and will photograph those interviewed.

Today's question: Should convict labor be used in the building of public roads?

MADGE STEIN, stenographer, Downtown: "If a man is so foolish that he gets himself into trouble, then I can see no logical reason why he should not be forced to undergo the rigors of hard labor to atone for his crime. By such practice he is able to pay for his own upkeep in the prison camp and is able to make some restitution for his crime by making a valuable contribution to society in the new road that would be the natural result of part of his labors. His mind would be kept out of mischief too, if he was working while serving a prison sentence."

Madge Stein

* * *

M. KIMBALL, store executive, Downtown: "Emphatically yes! The prisoner, no matter who he is, is a distinct burden to the taxpayer who has to pay the freight for criminals' upkeep by the constituted forces of government. Aside from this factor a prisoner is more healthy and more prone to keep out of mischief when he is occupied in good old-fashioned hard work. When a man is free he has to work if he wants to live. Well, why can't he work also when he is in prison?"

M. Kimball

ELSIE S. SACKS, secretary, Squirrel Hill: "In some circumstances I believe that prison labor should be used in road improvement projects. However, there are so many various types of criminals that it would not be a good policy to send the most desperate out on the highways as they might cause trouble. It is the habitual offenders, and petty criminals who are sent up for 60 to 90-day stretches, who should be required to work on the roads. Work is more healthy for them than sitting brooding in some dark and gloomy prison."

Elsie S. Sacks

* * *

W. M. FARNHAM, sales manager, Grant street: "Although I believe that prison labor should be employed for some form of useful work, such as building roads, the only drawback I find is that many free men, with families dependent upon them, are kept out of work. For every prisoner working there must be a free man who is put out of work by such actions. When a man is sent to jail the reason is to make him atone for his crime. Then why neglect his health. Good hard work will make him better fitted for life when his sentence ends."

W. M. Parnham

JEAN SAINIAK, typist, West End: "No, I don't think that prisoners should be required to build roads. Their place is behind bars where they belong. Why should they be allowed to get out into the open, where they can have a lot of fun and pleasure. Their place is not to build roads, keeping free men out of work, but to stay behind bars and pay society for their crime. There are too many honest men looking for work now to have convicts take their places if a job would happen to turn up."

Jean Sainiak

JOSEPH G. SOMMERS, store manager, Grant street: "The taxpayer usually has to pay the bills for the upkeep of prisoners. I'm sure that any method that might be a remedy of economy in this line would be welcomed with open arms by this vast army. If prisoners can pay for their existence behind bars by working on roads, then I say, let them go ahead. But the desperate criminals should not be allowed to do so."

Bridegroom in Jail, But Wedding Feast Goes On

While his prospective bride and 500 guests danced at his wedding feast in Liberty Hall, Twenty-sixth and Josephine streets, George Sperhac, 24, of 3014 Harcums way, the bridegroom-to-be, sat in his cell in the county jail last night. Today, if Sperhac is given his liberty, there may be a wedding, his friends said last night.

Sperhac and Anna Cizmar were to have been married yesterday morning in St. John's Greek Catholic Church, but Monday night Sperhac was taken to the county jail. Friends of the young man said that two years ago he had been haled into court on complaint of Bella Kanitski, 23, following an affair between the two and the court directed Sperhac to pay the girl $3 a week.

The weekly payments were made for a short time and then Sperhac moved out of town, dropping the payments. He returned three months ago and began preparing for his marriage with Miss Cizmar. His failure to keep up the payments to Miss Kanitski resulted in his arrest Monday night. John Sperhac, 19, a brother, who was to be best man at the wedding, decided yesterday that wedding guests should not be disappointed and the feast was held.

V. Snell, general manager of the Pittsburgh chamber, introduced the guest speaker. At the speakers' table were representatives of Allegheny county trade organizations, Congressman L. W. Hagmaier, of Aspinwall; Dr. Samuel Linhart, of the University of Pittsburgh, and officials of the chamber.

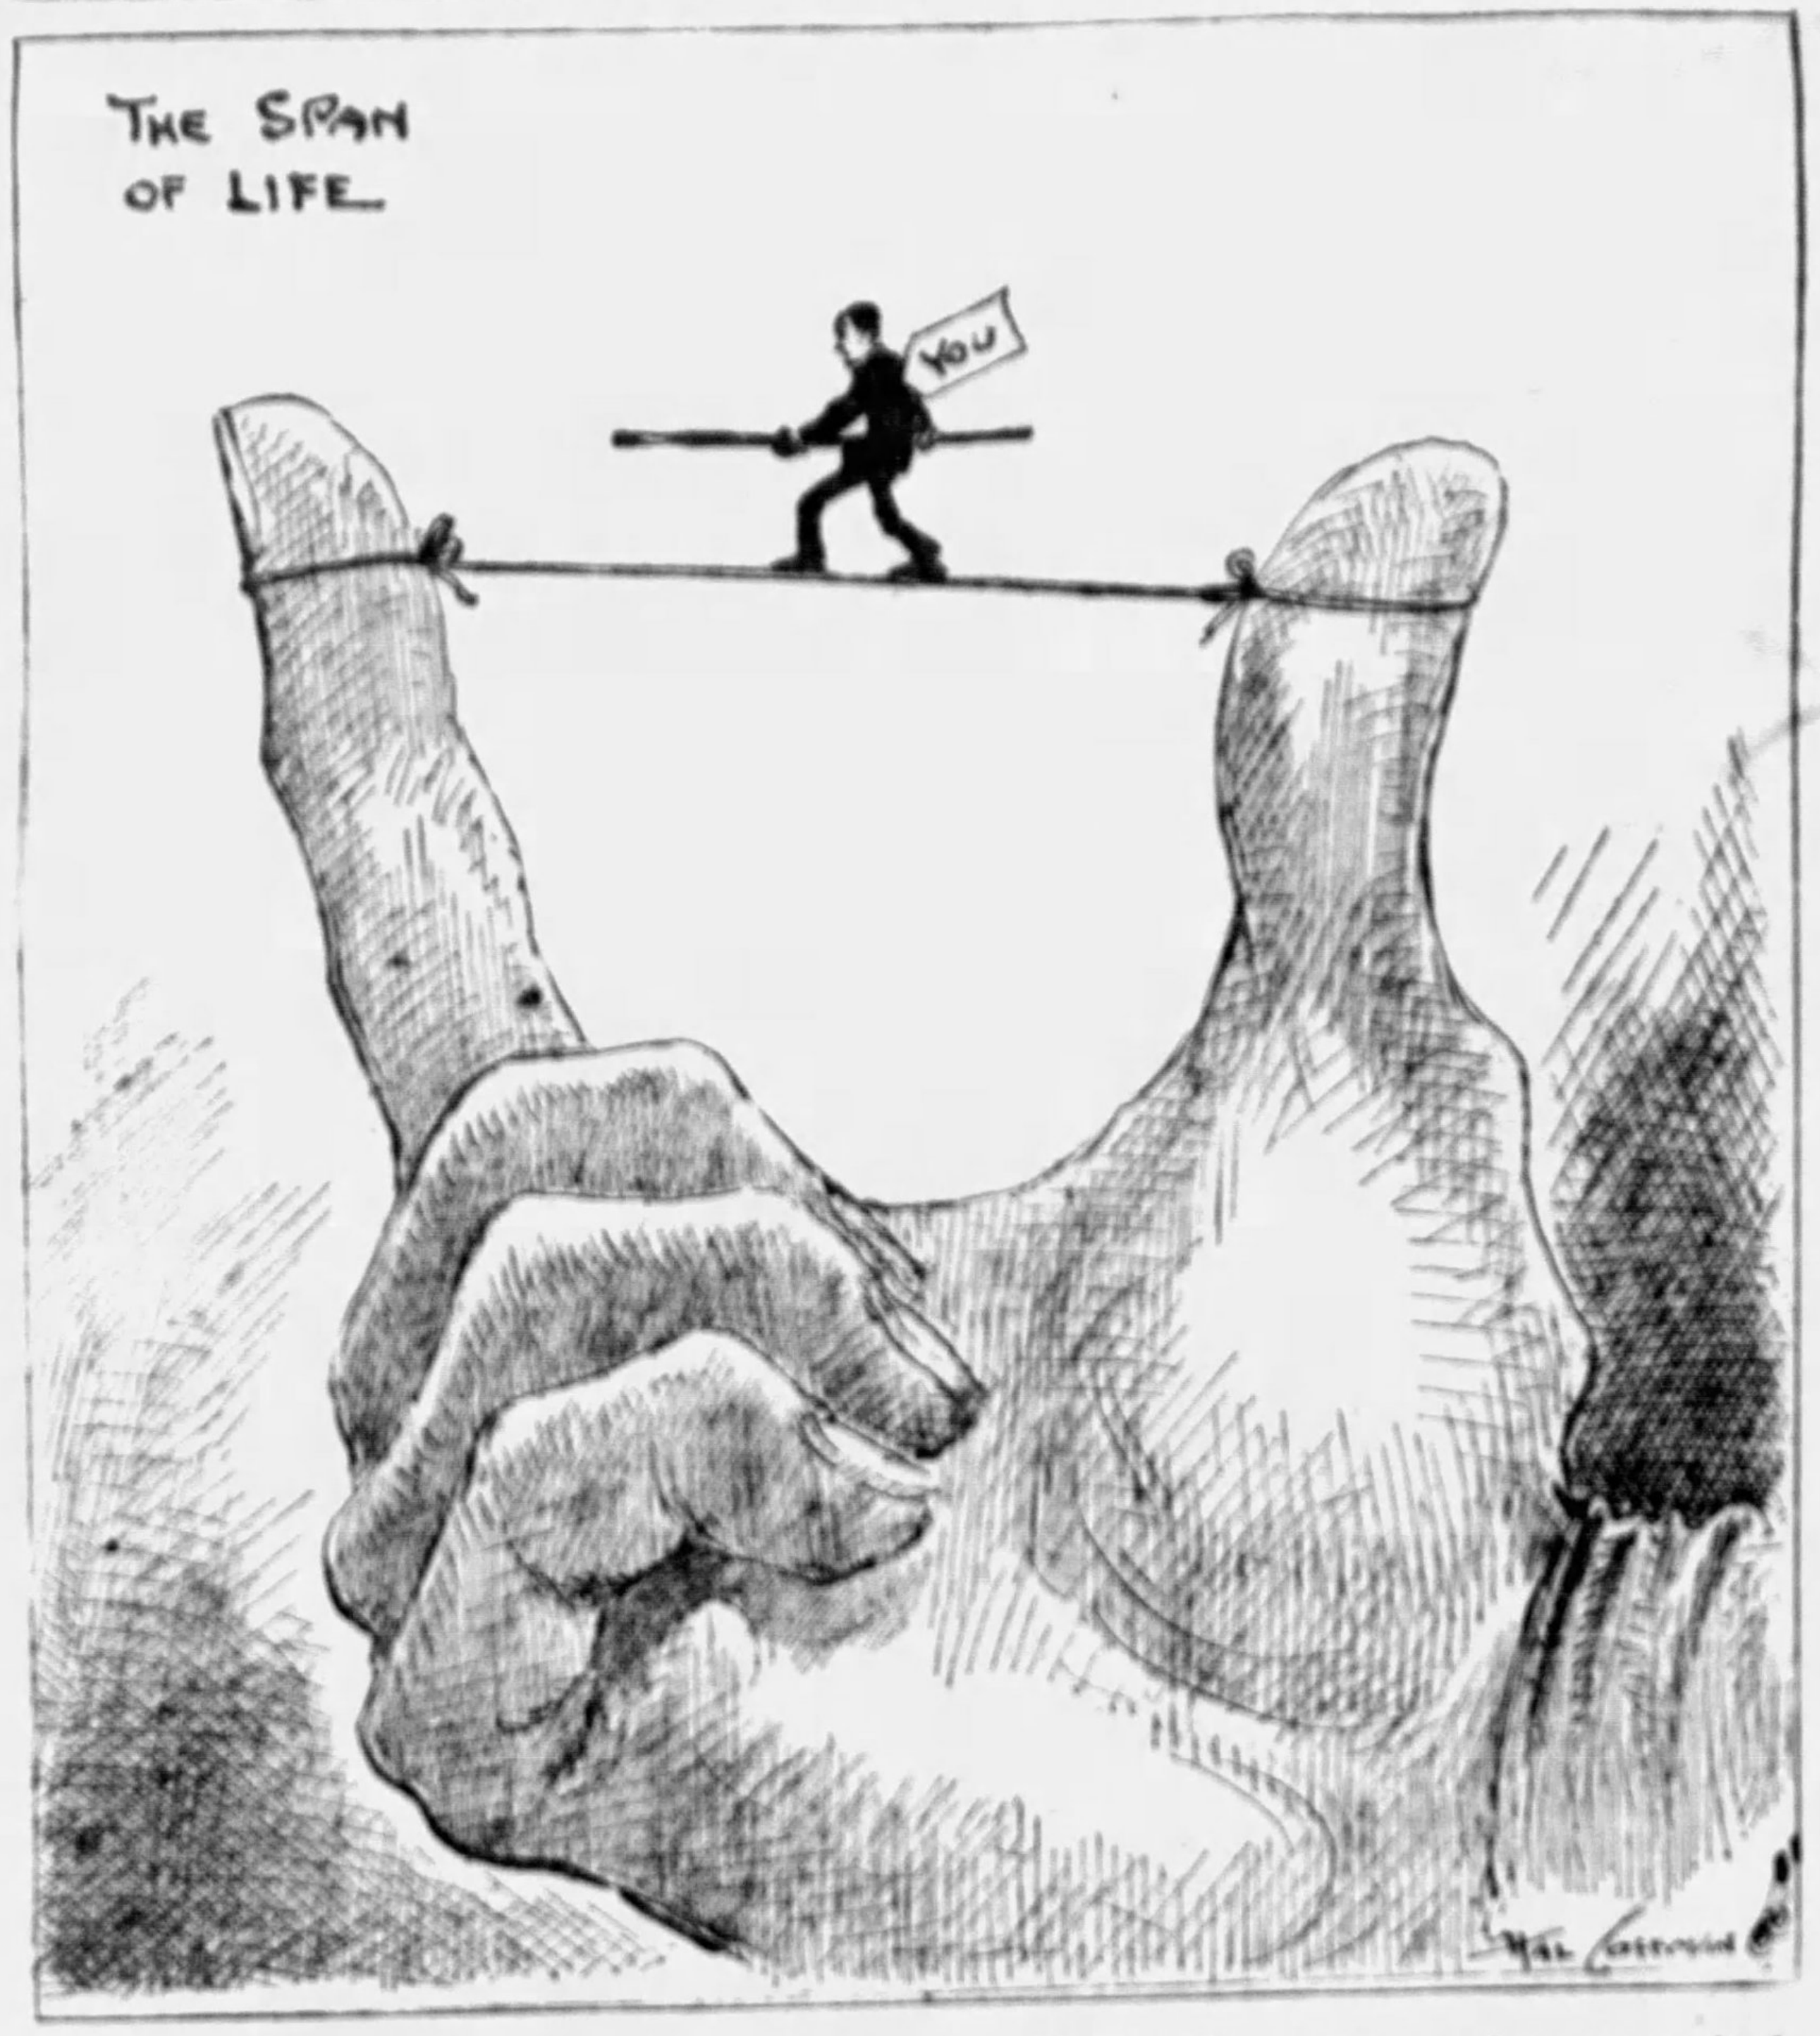
THINKING IT OVER :-: By Hal Coffman



This powerful picture may puzzle you for a moment, but you gather from it that the path of life is a tightrope, on which it is wise to keep your balance.

Many don't. They lose their precarious footing, fall into the clutching hand beneath.

However, it is POSSIBLE to walk this swaying rope from one end to the other without disaster.

The requirements are clear eyes, steady feet, iron nerve.

Don't look down, don't glance backward, keep your gaze fixed ahead.

Even then you cannot be SURE of a safe passage, but you will have, at least, a fifty-fifty chance.

What you will find at the end of the rope is another matter, not taken up here.

LINDERMAN 50 YEARS IN BANK

Fifty years' service in the same bank, having filled every position from messenger boy to president and absent only four days on account of illness, is the record of William S. Linderman, president of the Duquesne National Bank. Tomorrow evening Mr. Linderman will celebrate his fiftieth year of service at a dinner given by the directors of the bank in the Duquesne Club.

Mr. Linderman was graduated from the Pittsburgh High School, January 22, 1880, and the next day entered the employ of the Duquesne National Bank as a messenger boy. In later years he was elected assistant cashier, cashier, director and vice president. In 1921 he was elected president, which position he still holds.

He is a trustee of the Buhl Foundation, a member of the Pittsburgh Clearing House committee, a trustee of the Dollar Savings Bank, a director of the Pittsburgh Steel Company and the Neely Nut and Bolt Company, and a member of the Duquesne and Pittsburgh Athletic Clubs.

Westinghouse Clerks Hold Annual Meet

Twenty-five hundred members of the Westinghouse Clerks' Association celebrated their fifteenth anniversary at Syria Mosque last night. H. S. Morrow, president, C. E. Breitinger, vice president, E. H. Anderson, secretary, and C. N. Evans, treasurer, assumed their official duties. Five minute talks on the "Relation of the Management to the Association" were given by officials of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company.

'Old Manchester' to Hold American Art Showing

By PENELOPE REDD

The first exhibition of paintings to be shown in the North Side for a generation is on view, through January 31, at the Manchester Educational Center. Twenty-two paintings by American artists of professional reputation have been adeptly selected.

Penelope Redd

Ivan Olinsky, who will come to Pittsburgh next week as a member of the Associated Artists' jury, is represented by "Girl With Fruit." The girl in a Burgundy gown is posed against brilliant sunlight.

Hayley Lever, who also has been a juror, shows a dramatic "Storm" in a British harbor.

Felicie Waldo Howell, known to Pittsburgh through her contributions to Carnegie Internationals, surprises with a freely rendered view of "Perugia" amassed decoratively on a hillside. A canvas immeasurably more vital than anything hitherto shown of hers in Pittsburgh.

Ernest D. Roth, Frank V. Dumond and Chauncey F. Ryder exhibit landscapes in their varying styles. Cullen Yates in "The River's Course" does an American realistic scene familiar enough to attract all and decorative enough to capture the attention of the more discriminating.

Eugene Higgins' essay in darkling beauty suggesting a setting for Poe is found in "Old House by Moonlight."

One of the three admirable galleries is devoted to picturesque portraits, notably that of Lord Dunsany by Orlando Rouland.

In the same gallery is "The Bather," by Howard Hildebrandt, native of old Allegheny, who probably makes his debut on his home side of the river, although he has exhibited with distinction at the Carnegie Institute.

The significant fact to Pittsburgh at large, is that the exhibition is hung in the former home of the late Fred Demmler, the only painter in Pittsburgh who was killed in the war. "Old Manchester's" first venture into the world of art exhibitions is thus auspiciously presented in a place closely associated with one of Pittsburgh's promising painters.

Indeed, the Manchester Educational Center might well be named the Manchester Avocational Art Center, because music, dancing, painting and the drama are expertly taught as recreational ends and the entire neighborhood participates.

Many will find it worth the journey to view this exhibition in so appropriate an environment as that of "Old Manchester," where once lived the Dr. Lavender of Margaret Deland's delightful tales.

Engineer to Talk On Air, Railroads

"Aviation and the Railroads" will be the subject of an address by R. W. Cost, illuminating engineer of the Westinghouse Lamp Company, New York, at a meeting of the Railway Club of Pittsburgh in the Fort Pitt Hotel tomorrow night.

PIPELESS ORGAN STANDS TEST

A pipeless pipe organ resounded to the touch of Dr. Charles Heinroth's fingers yesterday afternoon in the research laboratory of its inventor, R. C. Hitchcock, of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company.

Music from the queer organ was produced by a series of squealing, or oscillating, radio tubes. The squealing of the tubes was controlled, though—hence the pleasing musical effects. Mr. Hitchcock has proven that a tube is undesirable when "running wild," but such a tube under proper control has rather interesting uses.

SYNTHETIC BELL

One of the first experiments made by the inventor was the making of a synthetic bell. An investigation showed that a low pitched bell had over 10 recognizable tones and when the tones were produced synthetically, a good impression of a bell was given. Subsequently it was found that fewer electrical tones could be used.

In a bell, according to Hitchcock, all the frequencies are mechanically present, so that when one is struck, all the rest appear. In the electrical counterpart only the characteristic tones and those most pleasing musically need be used.

COST REDUCED

This is claimed to be one of the advantages of the synthetic music over the original. If to some ears the higher harmonics are unpleasing they can be left out entirely, completely changing the tiny quality of the note to a rich resonant quality.

Because of its small size with its consequent saving in space and probable decreased cost of production, the electric organ may prove unexcelled for radio broadcasting.

A half hour of music from the organ, played by Dr. Heinroth, was sent over the air yesterday from 3 to 3:30 p. m.

Wilmerding Street Improvement Near

Steps toward the improvement of Morningside and Maple avenues and improving the sewering of the west end of Airbrake avenue, Wilmerding, were postponed by Borough Council at its meeting last night. This matter will be brought up after the budget is presented, councilmen declared. President Frank Kukurin announced committee appointments for the current year.

Gerwig Sworn In As Board Member

CITY TO BUY AT SHERIFF SALES

Added annual city revenue of $100,000 was anticipated today with the budget committee of City Council recommending a $20,000 revolving fund for the law department.

The fund will be used, according to City Solicitor Charles Waldschmidt, to purchase property offered at sheriff sales upon which the city holds liens. Through the transactions, resales and payments by those sold out, the city will derive the profit.

Waldschmidt had requested a $1,000 fund for this purpose, which Mayor Charles H. Kline reduced to $500. The budget recommendation for the law department, including the new fund, totals $27,000 additional over last year.

SENTENCE BOYS IN WHEATLAND ROBBERY

Two Visit Clerk, Have Drinks, Then Return and Take $249 Found Hidden

Paper currency, mutilated by rats, and a bag of coins recovered from a creek, were placed in evidence in Federal Court when Claude Cole, 17, and Sam Pacora, 17, of Wheatland, Mercer County, pleaded guilty before Judge Nelson McVicar to stealing $249.16 from the Wheatland Postoffice December 28.

What the defendants told Postoffice Inspector W. H. Tafel began as a "hot party," came to a conclusion when the court sentenced each of the youthful prisoners to four months each in the Mercer County Jail.

Before the robbery, they told the inspector, they had been invited to attend a party in a house in which the postoffice was located. The invitation, they said, was given by Mrs. Ada Cole Lacock, a clerk in the postoffice. They said that when they arrived Mrs. Lacock was counting the postoffice receipts, but put the money behind a stove and served them whisky and wine.

GO TO DANCE

Later the two boys went to a dance and on their way home robbed the place.

The party and the robbery occurred during the absence of Mrs. Johanna Priester, the postmistress, who was visiting a daughter and had left Mrs. Lacock in charge of the office. Since the robbery, Mrs. Lacock, it was said, has been committed to a sanitarium in Mercer County.

WHOLESALERS' DANGERS TOLD

Education and co-operation between wholesaler and retailer, and the persistent gathering and application of statistics are needed to combat the business problems of today and tomorrow in America, E. D. Borden, manager, domestic distribution department, Chamber of Commerce of the United States, declared at a meeting of the wholesalers' council of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce, yesterday.

Referring to the predictions that chain stores will ultimately control the retail business of America, Borden said:

"Such statements are not without value. There is a certain element of warning—to take stock of one's business, to industriously and conscientiously ferret out any weaknesses in the wholesale household."

CIVIL SERVICE HEARING SET

The proposal to place all division engineers, superintendents, chief clerks, assistant chief clerks and law department investigators on the exempt list of civil service requirements is meeting with little interest, due to the fact that most of those involved, with the possible exception of the law department investigators, are already immune from civil service protection.

A public hearing will be held in the City-County Building Friday, at which time those affected will be enabled to protest, should they desire.

$32,775 GIVEN Y. W. C. A. FUND

With subscriptions of $16,229.25 reported at yesterday's luncheon of workers in the city-wide budget appeal of the Young Women's Christian Association, the total pledged to date is $32,775, team captains said. The meeting, the second of a series of five, was held in the Central Building, 59 Chatham street, and was addressed by the Rev. W. W. T. Duncan, pastor of the Emory Methodist Episcopal Church.

The initial gifts committee, through its chairman, Mrs. John R. McCune, reported $9,750. The report included a $1,000 pledge to be applied to the mortgage upon the Y. W. C. A. camp recently purchased on the Conoquenessing river, near Zelienople.

TAX EXTENSION REFUSED

A suggestion that the extension of the city tax discount period be extended from February 1 to February 10 or 15 was flatly refused yesterday by council.

This action followed receipt of a communication from J. W. Godbey, who recommended that the time extension limit during which advantage of the discount rate could be taken, be extended from 10 to 15 days.

As the matter now stands, due to the action of council, taxpayers will have to present bills for payment by the original February 1 date or deprive themselves of the discount.

SCOTT PUPILS WIN LETTERS

In Scott High School, North Braddock, where outstanding students as well as outstanding athletes, are awarded letters, Miles Berthold made doubly sure of his "S".

Berthold, captain of last year's football team, was presented with his athletic letter, and today with the announcement of F. D. Zuerner, superintendent of schools, learned that he is also to receive a scholastic letter.

Elizabeth Sweeting, Anna Kinkella, Olga Mehalko, Helen Brindley, Ben Shrayer and Edward Peterson were the others to win scholarship letters. Superintendent Zuerner and W. C. Evans, Scott principal, made the presentations.

The honor students will also receive pins. School officials feel that since outstanding athletes are honored, so too should those students who excel in their class work be glorified.

Superintendent Zuerner said that the importance of athletics has been somewhat over emphasized in the past and that the new system of honor awards will tend to act as a balance.

Any student who maintains an "A" or "B" rating in the classroom throughout the year will be able to display a white and gold pin and letter at the end of the period.

Principal Davis pointed out that since the system has started the honor group has grown from 24 to 94. At commencement this spring, it was said, it is indicated that between 80 and 90 students will have been successful in their fight for scholastic awards.

Community Builders Form Organization

The Community Builders' Association, composed of retail and wholesale merchants, was formed last night at a meeting in the Fort Pitt Hotel. The aim of the group is to stimulate interest in the buying public in local products.

New Play Makes World Bow—Hollywood Passes in Review

BEDROOM FARCE WITHOUT BED BY PATER AND WILDE FOR AL WOODS

By GEORGE SEIBEL

NO ONE can make me believe there's any such dramatist as Lewis B. Ely. He may be a spirit medium, who heard of the dearth of plays on Broadway, and materialized the spirits of Walter Pater and Oscar Wilde. "Write me a bedroom farce for Al Woods," he commanded them, "but for the sake of novelty and decency leave out the bed."

George Siebel

The result is "Sporting Blood" seen at a special matinee in the Nixon Theater yesterday.

Walter Pater is responsible for words like "synchronization," "equilibration," and "obfuscation," which are hurled at us early in the first act.

Oscar Wilde is responsible for such repartee as the heroine's query: "What do you know about sin?" to which the hero replies: "Nothing, but I'm willing to learn."

And Al has probably interpolated the fortissimo snores which open the third act.

George M. Cohan has provided a fine cast, and Sam Forrest has got every drop of laughter out of situation and lines that could be got out of them.

One Situation Only

Note the singular noun, for there is only one situation to the play. The heroine spends the night in the hero's room. That is the situation spread over three acts. That's all of it.

It sounds compromising. But it's innocent enough. They eat dinner; they play chess; they eat breakfast. And they are never alone for long. One peculiarity of that hotel is that there can't be anybody down in the lobby—they're all walking in and out of this one suite. It makes Times Square seem lonely.

Perhaps that's just because nature and farce comedy both abhor a vacuum. There are other laws of nature that operate throughout this comedy. For instance, as soon as the hero is on the point of kissing her, a telephone rings or somebody is at the door. Whereupon he doesn't finish the job but goes to answer the bell.

It's a ten-to-one bet that he hasn't kissed the lady yet, though married to her at the close of act three. Walter Pater insisted on that—Oscar Wilde thought it was a needless concession to mid-Victorian critics.

But Many Laughs

There may be only one situation, but there are many laughs in the play. It requires considerable dexterity to keep the bubble in the air for three whole acts. The spirits evoked by Lewis B. Ely do it very cleverly—even the game of chess is amusing, though the players foozle their gambits.

And so it comes to pass that the famous author, played by Walter Connolly with the awkwardness of genius, persuades the fascinating critic, adorably interpreted by Ruth Shepley, to remain in his room all night, though she is engaged to the well-known publisher, whose discomfiture is amusingly portrayed by Frank Elliott, and though she has a grown and married daughter, who is endowed by Elaine Temple with a New England conscience and haunts the hotel to chaperone her wayward widow mother.

It is very entertaining, and so we tolerate even the slangy Raquel and the collegiate nephew, rung in by Al Woods, while Walter and Oscar were dematerializing, because he knew that Joan Blondell and Thomas Gillen could get many laughs in these parts.

"Sporting Blood" is spicy, highbrow, tenuous, clever, impossible, diverting, well-played—and since one of the characters argues that God must have a sense of humor, let us accept this curious collaboration of Walter, Oscar and Al as one of the manifestations of that divine attribute.

BICKFORD SELLS HOGS, RUNS RESTAURANT, OWNS GAS STATION AND ACTS

By DOROTHY HERZOG

(Copyright, 1930, by Premier Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Jan. 22.

SHE was a contract player. To wit: She rested at the studio's expense. Said studio, through one of its executive mouths, asked her if she could sing or dance.

"Oh, no," honestly. "Not even with apologies."

Whereupon she was promptly cast in a musical comedy.

Greta Garbo

This Charlie Bickford chap is Greta Garbo's boy friend in "Anna Christie." He acts as an end to a means and not a means to an end. (Don't get discouraged.)

Bestirred from a lethargy of years, this bureau betook its body to the M. G. M. lot and there did corral a mine of information about Mr. Bickford.

Seems he owns a hog ranch up Massachusetts way. Breeds porkers and sells 4,000 yearly.

He owns four gas filling stations about town. Bickford traipses hither and yon between pictures and casts an eagle eye over this and that. If he likes this and that and provided it's for sale, he buys it. Fer inst. He spotted a filling station on Main street in Los Angeles. It was broken down and living on air. Bickford bought it. It now pays him a thousand a month net profit.

Ham, Eggs and Whaling Vessels

HE owns a little restaurant. Here, ham can have eggs. Eggs can have ham. Or duo.

He owns three whaling vessels that ply their down-to-the-sea-in-ship trade with an efficiency that shows lucrative results.

Chas. Bickford

He recently purchased a half interest in a business that rents all kinds of animals to studios.

Bickford started out as a civil engineer. He landed with a grease paint career. Also writing. He wrote the new Lenore Ulric stage effort, "The Sandy Hooker." Though the play closed before reaching New York, 'tis being re-written now and the Ulric will eventually sally forth in it again. He has a second play tightening itself together in the Film of Jungle Life Coming to Gayety

In 1924, Belgian capital sent an expedition into the heart of the African jungle. This expedition, which was originally sent out to combat the sleeping sickness caused by the bite of the tsetse fly, made a complete motion picture of its adventures, showing the many dangers encountered during this perilous trip, from which the leader, Dr. Daniel Davenport miraculously escaped, although his two white companions succumbed. The picture has been called "Jango," and it will open an engagement in the Gayety on February 3.

When a Child is FEVERISH, CROSS, UPSET

Colic, gas, sour belching, frequent vomiting, feverishness in babies and children, generally show food is souring in the little digestive tract.

When these symptoms appear, give Baby a teaspoonful of Phillips Milk of Magnesia. Add it to the first bottle of food in the morning. Older children should be given a tablespoonful in a glass of water. This will comfort the child—make his stomach and bowels easy. In five minutes he is comfortable, happy. It will sweep the bowels free of all sour, indigestible food. It opens the bowels in constipation, colds, children's ailments.

Children take it readily because it is palatable, pleasant-tasting.

Learn its many uses for mother and child. Write for the interesting book, "Useful Information." Address The Phillips Co., 117 Hudson St., New York, N. Y. It will be sent FREE.

In buying, be sure to get genuine Phillips Milk of Magnesia. Doctors have prescribed it for over 50 years.

"sticks," ere venturing into Manhattan.

Quite a chap, this Bickford. He's married and has two children. Doesn't flutter with the local "haute monde." Dresses with a casualness reminiscent of Jim Tully. Has curly, fiery red hair. Is a natural with the palpitating sex, but doesn't seem to swagger. Probably likes his meat raw and his chicken tender. Hits off on location (very much to his liking) to Mazataland, Mexico, in a few days with the "Sea Bat" troupe. Nothing unexpected stopping him, Bickford is regarded by the producing seers as a stellar bet.

Doesn't Play Golf, But Hands Out Tag

Charles Farrell.

CHARLIE FARRELL was burning up the road enroute to the Fox studio from his hacienda (Spanish) in Tuluca Lake—or should it be on Tuluca Lake? Anyway, the house is dry. And he was speeding to the studio. A motorcycle cop picked him up and out-burned him on speed. "I'm Charlie Farrell," said Farrell. "Sorry," mumbled the cop, busy writing, "but I don't play golf. I'll have to give you a ticket." And he did.

They rented the local Philharmonic Auditorium for a scene in John McCormick's initial vocalloid. Wherein he gives a concert according to plot. And they paid a houseful of extras five dollars to listen to him! Laugh that off....

Joan Crawford and Doug Fairbanks, Jr., have decided to go English, architecturally elucidating. They're now searching for such a house. Spanish we got in Hollywood. English—That's mostly a screen gag.

Renee Adoree wants to move from the distances of Westwood to the nearness of Bev Hills. Incidentally, I hear tell she may appear with Ramon Novarro in his next talky, "The Singer of Seville." Renee's M. G. M. contract has expired, but nevertheless . . .

And—that's all.

THE END OF A GREAT ROMANCE

Next week Pittsburgh will witness the passing of the greatest musical romance in the history of the modern theater.

In closing its career, however, its managers, the Messrs. Shubert, who previously have sent us "Maytime," "The Student Prince" and "My Maryland," have built an all-new, lavish production and have peopled it with the year's finest operetta company, so that its many admirers may see their old favorite for the last time in its most brilliant setting.

Hence "BLOSSOM TIME," the greatest of them all, will make its final appearance with a grand bid for immortality in the minds of local playgoers.

All next week at the SHUBERT ALVIN THEATER at the same popular prices that have prevailed in former years: Nights, 50c to $2.50; Wed. Mat., 50c to $1.50; Sat. Mat., 50c to $2.00. Seats go on sale tomorrow.

Welfare Unit Has Record Meeting

THE largest meeting the welfare department of the Congress of Clubs has ever had was that of yesterday, which was in charge of the motion picture chairman of the department, Mrs. Joseph B. Drake. As special guests there were Mrs. Mrs Ambrose Nevin Diehl, motion picture chairman of the General Federation of Women's Clubs; Mrs. Charles Long, of Wilkes-Barre, chairman of the division of correction and restoration, State Federation of Pennsylvania Women; Mrs. R W Johnston, president of the Congress; Mrs John S. Sloan, former president, who offered the invocation; Mrs. C. B. McFail, first motion picture chairman of the Congress; Elsie Breese Mitchell, chairman of music, and her accompanist, Frank Kenedy, and Robert Spears and W. Graham of Electrical Research Products Inc.

Mrs Charles S. Hutchison, for six years chairman of the Congress welfare department and now its honorary chairman, introduced Mrs. Long, who gave a short talk on penal reform. Mrs. Long, who is also a member of the Pennsylvania Penal Commission, told what is needed in the state: Understanding without sentimentality, scientific sorting, secure segregating of prisons as well as prisoners, sane sentencing, serious salvaging, selective schooling, satisfactory savings and prompt, practical, proficient, protected parole.

Mrs. Diehl, in speaking of the General Federation's motion picture work, said there is now a motion picture chairman in every state and she reiterated former statements that the box office is the answer to the motion picture problem. Mrs. Diehl urged the women to flood Mrs. Thomas G Winter's office with fan mail so that she in her studio relations work may pass on to the producers word of what the women want. Mrs McFail recalled the modest beginnings of motion pictures in Pittsburgh.

Mrs Mitchell did a group of songs in her usual satisfying manner and in conclusion Mr Spears and Mr. Graham showed several films depicting the making of talkies and Mr. Spears gave a short talk calling attention to the educational potentialities of the talkies. He predicted that within a few years the volume of purely educational talkies would far outweigh those of the purely theatrical type.

INSTEAD of the regular monthly meeting of Pittsburgh Club of Alpha Gamma Delta, a theater party will be held next Wednesday night at the Pitt, the affair being a benefit for the club's summer camp. Miss Dorothy E. Nevin is general chairman. The camp, which is at Jackson, Mich., was established in 1918 and provides vacations for needy children. Members of the fraternity support the camp and all the work is done by various undergraduate members. Last year 252 children were cared for, the sorority members coming from all over the country to volunteer their services.

* * *

MRS. W. F. EWART, chairman of reservations for the annual benefit bridge to be given Saturday, February 15, in the Hotel Schenley, by the Pittsburgh Alumnae Association of Kappa Kappa Gamma fraternity, will be assisted by Mrs. Alvin Crawford, Mrs. Lewis Schryver, Mrs. George Graham, Mrs. Clifford Lake, Miss Marybelle Meals, Miss Helen Blackmore, Mrs. Norman Hartmann, Mrs. Samuel Watters, Miss Agnes Hewitt, Mrs. William McKee, Mrs. R. J. Luke, Mrs. E. R. Loomis, Mrs. James Muir, Miss Virginia Neimann, Mrs. John Musgrave and Mrs. M. B. Cameron.

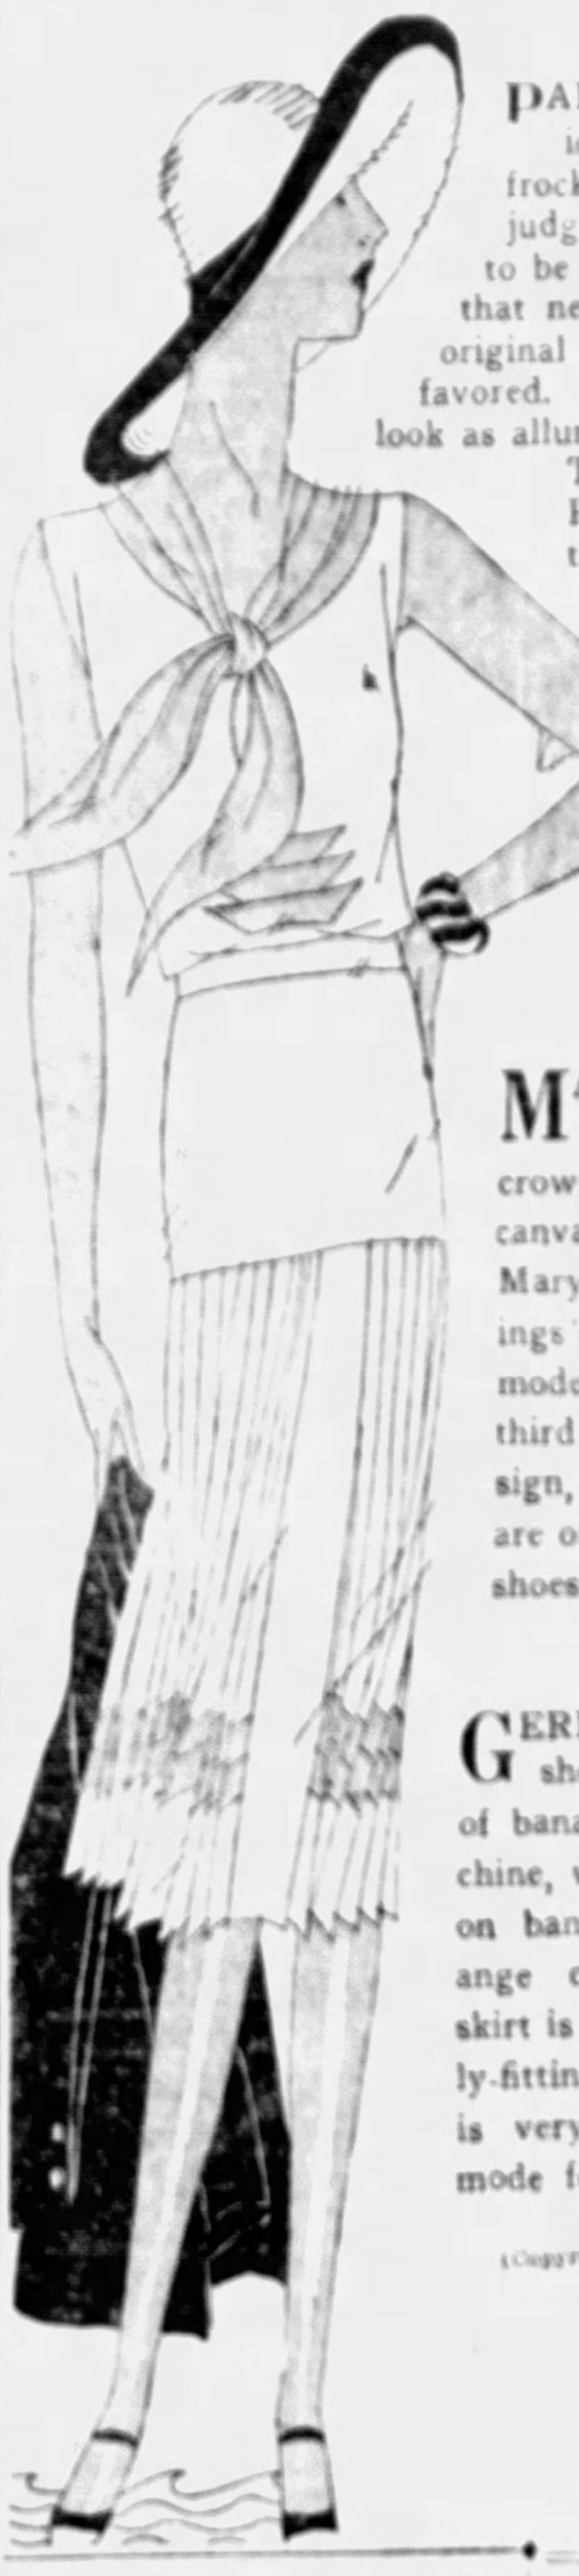
THE LATEST MODE IN SPORT CLOTHES

Sketched in Paris



Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Jan. 22.—Riviera reveries just now revolve around the ideal beachcomber's costume. Pajamas, one-piece sports frock, bathing suit, beach ensemble, which shall it be? And judging by the orders placed at the leading houses, it is going to be all of these play hour suits in abundance. It would seem that never have the winter resort costumes been so delightfully original and picturesque. Especially are the energetically inclined favored. The swimmers, the golfers and the tennis players are to look as alluring as she whose daily exercise consists of a stroll on the Terrace of the Casino at Monte Carlo, or a walk along the Promenade des Anglais at Nice. For general sports wear, there are exquisite frocks of crepe and fine woolen in delicate pastel shades. Many of these are sleeveless, with pleated skirts. For swimmers, there are lovely suits of silk jersey, which is a very new fabric for swimming suits, and seems destined for much success. For play hours on the golden sands, there are amusing sailor trousers of white duck worn with sleveless shirts and loose jumpers also amusing little coolie suits that are so smartly simple. The art of leisure is surely typified in such artistic yet practical play clothes.

MARCELLE LELY contributes the smart wide trimmed beach hat. Natural bakou straw makes the brim, and the crown is half straw, half blue canvas stitched in white. A blue canvas ribbon ties under the chin. The beach shoes are from Mary Nowitzky. The first model is of white canvas with bandings of blue leather. The sole and heel are of cork. The second model is entirely of cork, with trimming of colored leather. The third shoe is of red and white flannel pieced in a futuristic design, tying with a red and a white ribbon. The sole and heel are of cork. One could call it a corking good season for beach shoes.

GERMAINE LECOMTE shows the sports frock of banana colored crepe de chine, with a scarf and set-on bandings of bright orange crepe. The pleated skirt is set on to deep snugly-fitting yoke, and the frock is very expressive of the mode for Southern wear.

Correct Manners

The Number of Bridal Attendants

DEAR MRS BEECKMAN:

I have recently attended two weddings of very fashionable and wealthy young ladies, and noted at both marriages that the bride had but one attendant and the groom had seven attendants (best man—ushers)

Will you be good enough to kindly tell me whether this was correct (or something new) as I was under the impression that the groom had as many ushers as the bride had bridesmaids.

MISS E L.

THIS is in perfectly good form and taste, and is often done. The bride has as many, or as few, attendants as she wishes. Often she has none, very often now. And the number that she chooses to have has nothing to do with the number that the groom chooses to have.

You see, since it is not the custom in the well-planned cosmopolitan wedding for the bridal attendants to be "paired off" with the groom's attendants it is not necessary for the bride to have the same number of attendants as the groom has. Nowadays it is not good form for the maid of honor or the matron of honor to walk with the best man, of course, in the processional, and not in the recessional, either. And it is considered passe for the bridesmaids to walk with the ushers in the recessional. Therefore, you see, there is no reason for having the same number of bridal and groom attendants.

The Tea Service

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

If a lady is having tea with two gentlemen and has been given permission to pour the tea, how is she to manage it since the teacups and teapot have been placed on the right of each of the gentlemen by the waiter?

A READER.

THE gentleman with the lady should get her out of this difficulty by calling the waiter and suggesting to him that he change the position of the teapot and cups and saucers. Or the lady will say, for instance, "I would love to serve the tea if you will be good enough to have the waiter place the cups and teapot here." Or, if the waiter is not at hand, and does not appear soon, she may say, "May I serve the tea? And will you hand me the teapot and the cups?" Or, perhaps if the gentlemen are as perspicacious as they should be, they will at once either see that the readjusting is done by the waiter or themselves.

Signing a Business Letter

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Is it absolutely wrong to sign a business letter with a typed name?

MRS. H.

SOMETIMES the name is typed as a signature to a business letter, but if this is done the name must be written under or over the typed name. The name is typed simply that it may be more easily read, but this does not take the place of the written signature.

ASK FRUIT FLY WAR FUND

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Jan. 22 (AP.)—The Southern Plant Board and the Association of Southern Commissioners of Agriculture in joint session here adopted resolutions memorializing Congress to appropriate funds for continuation of the government's program for the eradication of the Mediterranean fruit fly in Florida.

Committees were appointed by both organizations to appear before the House Appropriations Committee when it begins its hearings next Monday on a bill to appropriate $15,000,000 for eradication work.

The agricultural leaders, representing boards of agriculture of eight southern states, were told by J. H. Montgomery, of Gainesville, quarantine officer for Florida, that if eradication work is not continued in Florida, the fly will soon be out of control and will spread to the Pacific coast.

Montgomery said the situation in Florida is "critical." He stated that the eradication work ceased when federal funds were exhausted early this month and that all money now being expended is for quarantine work.

A CLEAR SKIN comes from within

Lack of appetite, loss of strength, skin eruptions, that "tired feeling" and other human ills may be due to a lack of red-cells in your blood.

If you are tired—lack pep—if your skin is not clear—if your appetite is "gone"—you owe it to yourself and friends to try S.S.S.

"M*y despair was so great I could have cried. The good cheer and merry happiness of others only mocked at my condition. I had begun to wonder why life could be so cruel. No appetite. No strength. Skin blemishes always embarrassed me. Aches and pains coursed through my body. I wanted to restore my health and live. What was I to do? . . . happily the day came and I found the right road to Health when a friend recommended S.S.S.*"

You may be one of the thousands with a low blood count—to this may be attributed "run-down" systems, skin troubles, and even more serious ailments.

Did you know that every cubic millimeter of the normal, healthy person's blood should contain about 5,000,000 red corpuscles? They are the tiny red particles which give blood its color and are carriers of nourishment to the cells of the body. Rich, red blood wards off disease. It is very dangerous to let the blood count remain below normal.

With an increase in the red-blood-cells you will be on the right road to Health. This is Nature's way to body power and to clear skin. Naturally, with your strength restored, it is easier to fight disease and infection; to enjoy your food and to sleep soundly. When firm flesh takes the place of that which was once flabby, you will feel strong—your nerves will become steady—more happiness and friends will follow.

You owe it to yourself and friends to give S. S. S. a trial. It helps Nature build rich, red blood. For more than 100 years S.S.S. has been helping people regain and retain their strength and charm. Thousands of users have testified to its benefits in unsolicited letters of gratitude.

S.S.S. is made from strictly fresh vegetable drugs, gathered at the proper season of the year. It gives to Nature what it needs in making you feel like yourself again. All drug stores sell S.S.S. in two sizes. Ask for the larger size. It is more economical. © S.S.S. Co.

DAILY TRUE STORY

FINANCING EDEN

"WE'LL name it 'Eden','' said Barry Kellogg.

"And I assure you I'll drive out every snake,'' Nina Sargent agreed.

They were on a small point of land that jutted out into Lake Adams.

"Oh, we'll plant apple trees and eat the fruit thereof,'' Barry assured her. "We're pretty wise now.''

"Barry!''

"I mean we are wise enough to know that we'll live for ourselves and let no outside influence tempt us to upset our marital bliss.''

They sat down on a ledge and for the hundredth or perhaps the thousandth time looked over plans of a small bungalow.

Barry had bought the little point of land some five years before from a friend who needed money to go West to Arizona and get well if possible. Even then Barry told his friend that the land was worth twice as much. His friend knew it but ready money right then was needed and it might be years before anyone would buy land out there.

Then the state highway was straightened and ran within a hundred yards of this point.

There was a little wood road no more than a wide lane that ran down to this point.

Some day Barry figured he could sell that acre on the point for around 10 times what he paid for it. Already here and there some pretty summer cottages were going up. But none of the sites was as pretty as this one, with its tiny beach in the cove and ledge at the tip.

Barry met Nina Sargent down in the "Village."

Nina regarded Barry with some awe because he had written a novel. Perhaps it wasn't quite a best-seller, but it had a striking jacket and Barry's name on it and it did bring him some royalties.

"Now, don't ask me if I am literary or artistic, Mr. Kellogg," Nina said after they had been introduced and were sitting in a corner of their host's studio, pouring most of the atrocious gin into the potted palm.

"That palm will be potted for fair," Barry had said when he caught Nina thus disposing of her drink. He followed suit.

"You should save those bright things for the next novel," she said, and then had come her request to him not to ask if she were literary or artistic.

Literary Chaps, but—

"Most of these chaps are literary—they write home for money," Barry answered.

"A little too old, that one," Nina said.

"Do you?"

She shook her head.

"I haven't any home in the first place—no relatives except a sort of third cousin down in Mexico—if he hasn't been shot or something. I make designs."

"Make some on me."

"Why?"

"Because I'd take you up—you are so nice I wouldn't put you in my next novel."

"I pay no royalties, Mr. Kellogg, so save your smart lines for your books. My designs go on prints, chintzes and what not."

"That's right—I never thought of it—but someone has to think up every crazy pattern we see printed on the chintzes and ginghams and—"

"Gingham designs are woven, not printed."

"Interesting work. I'll call at your studio and take a look-see . . . have to know a little of everything—might use something about your work in a story."

"And call it 'The Designing Girl'?"

That was quite enough for a starter.

Barry was tall and thin and blond. Nina was short and vivacious and brunet as a crow as to hair—fair as a wild anemone as to complexion.

Barry called on her and saw her inventing designs for chintzes. He thought it marvelous—anything that Nina did was marvelous.

He took her out all that winter.

In the spring another novel was coming out. It might make a lot of money—it would keep away the wolf, even if only a second-rater.

In the spring on Sunday morning Barry took Nina down in Jersey to an uncle's farm where he had stored an old auto that any college spendthrift would have paid a fortune for because it looked so impossible. But it ran. Barry recalled his "property" at Lake Adams. They drove down there and off the highway along the wood road to the point.

Nina raved over the place.

"Every tree and ledge and everything suggests some new design. I'd love to live here—to have a place like this I mean, to work in," Nina said.

"Think of getting away from the subway rumble and elevated clatter and taxi squawking and—and all those noises—how a chap could write!"

Nina nodded. She was watching the cross-lighting through some sprouting weeds—wonderful designs there.

"Imagine a big room and fireplace and wide north window facing the lake—and you messing with your paints and me blundering with a noiseless typewriter—think of it, Nina?"

She looked at him a moment.

"Nice girls shouldn't think of such things, Barry."

He reached for her and she clung to him.

"Nice boys do not suggest such arrangements without a preliminary ceremony before a parson, and I'm a nice boy, Nina."

"Be careful—that sounds something like a proposal of what our grandmothers called holy wedlock, Barry!"

"That is exactly what it is!"

Much in Love

Well, it was Spring and the water was rippling with sun-shot silver ripples and the sky was cloudless and the trees fresh green and Barry and Nina were very human and very much in love. After a time of sincere petting they began to discuss ways and means.

Barry had a few hundred.

So did Nina.

"With that much cash and this land for security I can get a bank to loan me the balance—we'll build right away," Barry declared.

That week they started drawing plans. Finally they had what they wanted, the big room and fireplace, the rear sun-parlor and dining and breakfast nook all in one, kitchen—and overhead, by stairs and small balcony, a couple rooms.

It was at this time that Barry called on Nina and said, "Who do you suppose called on me today?"

Nina named a big book publisher adding, "And he begged you to dash off a novel for him!"

"Mike Grafton!"

"Mike—you don't mean the big bootlegger?"

"None other than the king of synthetic hooch."

"But you don't drink hardly at all."

"He wants to buy Eden!"

Already they had named the land at the lake "Eden," as explained at the beginning.

"The idea—I wouldn't sell it to the President, much less a bootlegger—"

"No one can buy it, honey. He offered me big money for it—wants to put up a swell road house. He was sore as the devil when I explained that I was going to build at once and take a bride there."

"If you had another piece of land to sell him—and use that money to build with—"

"But we haven't—so Mr. Michael Grafton is sore as a pup. Sometimes a lot of money won't get everything—this is one of the times."

Right after this Barry went to his bank, explained about the cash available and the land, showed the cost of the bungalow and was told that it looked all right.

Banking Barrier

And then a report that floored them—the bank couldn't make the loan—there was no right-of-way to the property!

Barry tried to explain. But the deed called for no right-of-way and the property between Barry's land and the highway had been very recently purchased by a Mr. Grafton.

"Mike Grafton, the bootlegger!" cried Barry, and then he told the bank official of his offer.

"Sell and buy elsewhere. Charge him a stiff price," Barry was advised.

Nina was stubborn—that was their Eden—it was the prettiest place there for a bungalow—she'd see Michael Grafton in a place far from Eden before she would let Barry sell.

Grafton called on Barry later.

"If you controlled all the hooch in the world and sold it at a thousand per cent profit, you couldn't buy my bit of land with it, Grafton," Barry snapped at him. He tried pleading and explained about his coming marriage and plans.

Grafton laughed at him.

Barry bought a boat when he found that Grafton had fenced off the wood road. He could reach his land that way, but he couldn't borrow money on it and he couldn't get building materials over there except by water.

After an investigation, however, Barry found that a Jonas Hull estate owned a narrow strip of land below that ran for a quarter of a mile from the highway clear to his own (Barry's) property.

The executors would sell; they wanted to sell—the price was six thousand. Might as well make it six million.

Now it was the middle of May. It would take a month to build their bungalow. What to do?

They wanted to see it built and then they would marry and run out there for their honeymoon—a honeymoon that was to last forever, they said.

Barry and Nina had a picnic out there. They could walk over the Hull estate property, but there was no road. To build a road, even if the executor would permit, would cost more than Barry cared to pay to improve somebody else's property.

Coming out after dark to get to their car, hidden a half mile down the road, they saw a car parked. Barry recognized the voice of Mike Grafton. A mammoth truck came and stopped. Grafton gave some orders.

"If they get after you Wednesday, turn into the wood road and around the blind we've made," Grafton ordered.

They all departed. Barry and Nina examined the blind made of evergreen brush, big enough to hide a house.

Barry whispered to Nina. She laughed. They got their car and scouted about. Finally they came back with shovel and pick they had borrowed when the owners were away, also some heavy "corrugated" cardboard. Down in the wood road they dug a wide trench, covered it with cardboard, covered that with soil and branches and drove back to the city.

The following Wednesday night they were on hand. Nina had on boy's clothes.

Just beyond the wood road, when Nina signalled the approach of the truck, Barry swung a light barrier, with lanterns, across the highway. He stood there and waved. He hoped the piece of tin he stuck on his coat would look like a badge.

The truck was swerved and went down the wood road.

There was a crash and bump and the front of the truck was in a three-foot ditch.

Barry growled orders and he and Nina shot blank cartridges.

The driver and his guard, hurled to the ground, got up and beat it.

It was almost dawn before Barry and Nina had removed those priceless cases of liquors and sunk them in twenty feet of water.

They went to their homes in the city and slept through the day. Then Barry telephoned Mike Grafton that he might make a deal with him if he'd drop in. Grafton was anxious to put a big roadhouse up on Barry's land, so he called.

"Listen, Grafton, I know who hi-jacked your load of hooch. I know where it is. I'll turn it over to you in exchange for how much besides that strip of wood road to my land?"

"You gotta show me," growled Grafton.

They went to Barry's lawyer. It was agreed that in return for the lost five hundred cases of liquor Barry would receive a quit claim deed to the entire wood-road and five thousand in cash. The agreement and the cash was held by Barry's lawyer, whom Grafton knew.

"I saw the parties who stole it, sink it. I can take you to the spot," said Barry, and he did!

The bungalow was built on Eden Point. Barry and Nina were married then and moved in.

Their friends asked them how they did it.

"It is all in knowing how to finance a thing," Barry said.

He served some good wine at his party.

It was from six cases he had buried on his land instead of submerging in the lake.

And Mike Grafton made them a wedding present of five fine pieces of furniture for their bungalow. He still thinks Barry is a smart young man.

Gloriette Wears All Her Holiday Gifts at Once

Drawn by Nell Brinkley

GLORIETTE recovers from her holiday daze, thinks over all the beautiful things that people said to her on cards without gifts, all the generous cards that came with gifts, thanks the people that loved her—in her thoughts—and decides to take the wistful requests on the cards of Aunts and Uncles, Dad and Mom, elderly cousins and those not at all classic yet, that begged, in one fashion or another, that she "WEAR THEM," and did it.

The result amazed Cupid, who had always thought Gloriette a young person of decided taste, who never wore more than two matching pieces of jewelry at once, and who made simplicity a deity to the point of seal-like sleekness! Said he: "Well, well, young woman, you certainly did well for yourself this Yuletide. But if you are going to look like this for long it's going to be difficult to dispose of you! Young men have learned to have a warm eye for simplicity of line, even though they cast a cold one on simplicity of living. You have emerged from the Christmas-time looking like a young Esquimaux on her way to a Maharajah's ball!"

"Never mind," said Gloriette, round-eyed, dazzled, waving a gift feather fan, "I haven't any time for you just now, anyway. You can come around later."

LOVEJOY

By BEATRICE BURTON

and forget it in a few hours of play and pleasure!

"Don't be so glum!" she said to Tom when he came in to dress. "We're going to a party—not to a funeral, darling!"

Her eyes went over him as he took off his coat and his shirt. How broad his shoulders were, and how slender his waist and hips!

He was standing before the chiffonier and his blue eyes met hers in the glass.

"I was just thinking how good looking you are," she said to him. "No woman would ever be unfaithful to a man like you, Tom."

He shot a puzzled look at her. But Lovejoy did not see it.

She was slipping her ivory silk dress over her bright head. It was a year old, but it looked as good as new. There were tiny ivory beads around the V-neck and another band of them around the skirt.

"I haven't lost my looks yet, anyway," she told herself with a warm feeling of comfort as she powdered her face and rubbed the perfume Aline had given her into the soft nape of her neck.

She felt as rare and beautiful as a white peacock beside a brown English sparrow when she went to let Norrie into the house 15 minutes later...... Norrie with her plain drab clothes and her brown hair drawn into that plain, flat knob at the back of her head.

"If you have any mending to do give it to me," she said when she had settled herself under the lamp in the little living room.

And when Tom came out of his bedroom she was busily filling up a great hole in the toe of his favorite pair of socks.

He stood with his hands in his pockets, looking down at her. He had always liked Norrie Shane.

"Norrie," he said, "you look mighty cozy and comfortable sitting there. I'd a lot rather sit at home with you tonight than go where I'm going."

From where she sat, on a low chair beside the wood fire, Lovejoy saw Norrie's face redden as she bent it low over her work.

"Why, the poor old kid is in love with Tom," she said to herself with a sense of shock.

Well, let her be! . . . It would probably do Norrie Shane good to have a little love-interest in her life.

And the Queen of Sheba herself couldn't vamp Tom away from me, she thought.

Afterward, she remembered how sure she had been of him.

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

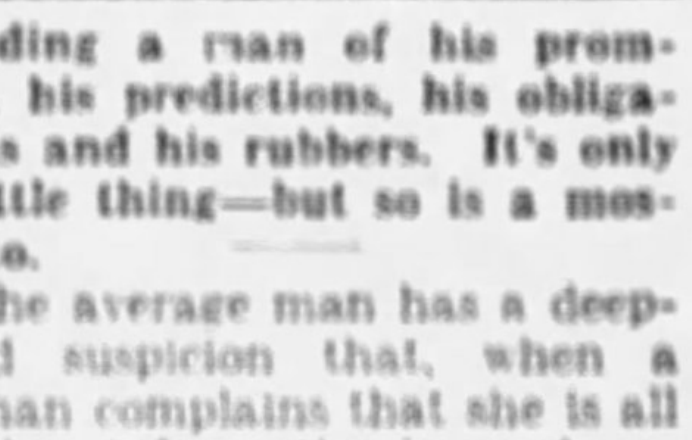
Look at Her and Listen To Him!

IN love, most women are looking for devotion—most men for diversion. That's how the wires get crossed.

Love is a sort of divine ecstacy, which gilds the hard drab facts of life, and tints them to match your illusions.

Religion is what a man sometimes practices on Sunday mornings—when it is too cold or too rainy to play golf.

Somehow, the average woman just can't refrain from reminding a man of his promises, his predictions, his obligations and his rubbers. It's only a little thing—but so is a mosquito.



The average man has a deep-dyed suspicion that, when a woman complains that she is all tired out from the housecleaning, she is just trying to get into the limelight by playing on his sympathies. He simply cannot believe that any house can't be "cleaned" by running a straw through it and blowing out the dust.

To be popular in this world, all you need to remember is that every woman loves to be looked at and every man loves to be listened to.

Telling a girl that she is "irresistible" is a man's subtle little way of throwing all the responsibility for the kiss on the shoulder he is kissing.

A man is so inconsistent that he will marry a girl because she is "like putty in his hands"—and then complain to heaven because she sticks to him like chewing gum.

The girl who used to whisper scornfully, "That woman PAINTS!" now has a daughter who uses three kinds of rouge and feels positively "unclad" without her lipstick.

No woman can quite understand that aboriginal thrill she feels when a man stops trying to pacify her—and gets good and wrathy!

Love's Awakening

A Continuation of Love's Embers

By ADELE GARRISON

Prince Georges Strives to Avert Open Break

A TINY thrill of excitement ran down my spine as I heard Prince Georges telling Mary that she was to "leave Olina out of this." His fiancee's mocking, contemptuous reference to the princess evidently had stung him. For the first time he was championing Olina. I shot a furtive glance at Mary. Would her vanity and her jealous dislike of Olina make her forget her plan to disillusion Georges, a plan, I grimly commented, which evidently was succeeding signally.

For the fraction of a second I saw her guard down. Her eyes flashed mutinously, and her fingers clenched into her plams.

"O, ho!" She laughed softly. "So 'that's your weakness now.'" She hummed the words so provocatively that I guessed Prince Georges' hands ached to seize and shake her soundly. "Wel!" she turned and swept Olina's unconscious back with an apparent detached appraisement—"she'd be a lot better hand at the job than I would—and I imagine she'd like it. Pity you didn't think of that before Noel grabbed her off the lemon tree—I mean the Christmas tree."

He ignored the gibe at Olina, stared at her miserably.

"Perhaps you wish that, because of Noel," he said, and I saw that his masculine egotism and jealousy had been roused by her reference. There was a subtle something in Mary's face which told me that she purposely had given him that little flick upon the raw.

"I'm not wishing anything," she told him airily, "except to have my own way. And I certainly shouldn't have that if I lived all the year in Trees. And you know, Georges, they'd never stand for an American girl as queen. You'd have to park me along the curb somewhere, and I can't stand being shut off. I want my gears meshed all the time."

"But you're mistaken, dearest," he told her, and I marveled to see how that adroit reference to Noel and Olina had brought him back to heel. "Before the war, of course, conditions were different. If I had wished to marry anyone not of royal birth, I should have been compelled to resign the throne to the next heir. But now—there will be difficulties, I grant you—I do not wish to deceive you, but I shall be able to triumph over them, and there will be no lovelier queen in Europe than you."

His voice, low and ardent, would have accelerated the pulses of any girl. I think Mary, though insulated by her love for Noel, felt a momentary regret for the brilliant picture she was determined to shut away from her life. For a second I was panicky at the softened look which came into her eyes as she looked at her suitor's ardent face. This handsome young prince with what he was offering her, was a lure to tempt any girl even though fortified by a love for another man.

But I need not have worried. The softened look gave way to the careless mockery to which she had keyed the interview. Her moment of wavering was over, but I knew that all of her life Mary would carry the memory of her royal young lover's ardent face and of his voice promising triumph in her high place beside him.

There was no hint of that, however, in the retort she made him. It was as if she realized that only the most drastic of treatment would shatter the hold she had upon him.

"All very nice, Georgie boy," she said, "but not good enough for me. Me, I've got to have action, and I'd stagnate in any measly old court. If you've got to be king, I'll trail along over whenever my job here will let me, as I told you before, but if you take my advice, you'll chuck the king business, and get you a job over here."

"I thought perhaps you were jesting when you talked like this before," Prince Georges said, white-lipped and trembling, "but you seem in earnest."

"You can bet the last diamond in your crown that I'm in earnest," she told him, all the laughter gone out of her voice.

"But do you realize that you are asking me to give up my life career, my duty?"

"Do you realize that you are asking me to give up my career?" she retorted.

"Your career!" The prince was so near the breaking point that the control he had been putting upon himself slipped a bit. "I had not realized that you had one. I know that you have been studying for the stage, but—really—are not thousands of other girls doing that?"

She threw back her head and looked at him through half-closed, insolent eyelashes.

"I shall have to prove it to you, I suppose," she said. Then she whirled toward the couple at the other end of the room, and raised her voice slightly.

"Noel Olina!" she called imperiously. "Come over here, please. I need you in the laboratory."

Hot-Water Marks

Hot-water marks may be removed from a polished table by making a thin paste with salad oil and salt placing it on the mark for about an hour, and then rubbing with a soft duster.

How to Keep Well

By DR. COPELAND

When Nature Gives Warning

WHEN you consider all the reasons for a lame back or backache, there is no wonder that so many people suffer from this ailment.

There are all sorts of accidents which may result in pains and stiffness in the back. Some of the shifting pains now in one part of the body and then another, indicate the absorption of poisons, perhaps from a remote part of the body.

DR COPELAND

We stoop, turn, twist and lift heavy burdens. The backbone, the muscle-cells and fibers, with their delicate covering and nerve supply, all work harmoniously and work perfectly, when we are in good health and vigor. But we are not always in apple pie order.

Suddenly, we may feel an awful twinge of pain, or "catch" in the back. Something has gone wrong. It may be only a little trouble, and still the cause, when it is located, may prove to be quite serious. Pain anywhere in the body is nature's warning to us that something is wrong.

The common cold is often responsible for a stiff or lame back. If you have sharp, shooting pains, it probably means that there is an intestinal poison at work in the body. Or diseased teeth, tonsils or infection from the nasal sinuses, may cause these pains anywhere in the body. Pus formations send their deadly poisons to every nook and corner of the body.

Sometimes the wearing of too high heels on shoes, or a run-over heel, will cause backache. Your body is thrown out of alignment and there is strain on the back muscles.

Neuralgia, neuritis, rheumatism or lumbago are all names given to symptoms of lame back, and pain and lameness in any part of the body. Wet and exposure to cold, overexertion or hard lifting when overheated will cause the body to protest in pain.

Now, the first step should be to remove the cause. If the pain is acute, your family doctor should be called in and give you a good examination so as to arrive at the cause.

Heat gives relief. It may be applied by using a hot-water bottle or electric pad. Or towels wrung from hot water and applied over the seat of pain will give relief. It is well to cover up well in bed if the pain does not abate quickly.

Strapping the back or using a properly adjusted belt will help a lot. Support to the tender part will prove most grateful.

BOOL PRAISED AS PIRATE PROSPECT

NOT often do you hear a youngster who is trying to win a place on a major league baseball club singing the praises of another recruit who is a rival candidate for the same position, but that's the rare sportsmanship being shown by one of the Pirate rookies. He is Johnny O'Connell, Verona boy, aspiring to a job on the Buccaneer catching corps, and the rival whom he is boosting is Albert Bool, purchased from Baltimore in the International League for a tryout in the same department. They were teammates for a time last season in Baltimore, and O'Connell says he saw enough of Bool to convince him that the latter is one of the best prospects coming up to the big show for 1930.

John O'Connell

"Bool has everything to qualify him for success in the majors," said O'Connell yesterday. "He is a fine catcher, a remarkable thrower, a powerful hitter and a horse for work. He caught in the unusual number of 129 games for Baltimore last season, but even that doesn't give an idea of his iron-man qualities. He could have caught in 229 just as easily.

"AND HIT? Say, just wait until you see that boy leaning against 'em. I note in the International League averages just published that his 174 hits in 1929 were good for a total of 311 bases, and that his extra-base drives included 31 home runs and 36 doubles. Those figures, with his average of .345, show how good he is. But the best part of it is that he does his slugging in the pinches. Fritz Maisel, the Baltimore manager, remarked that Bool broke up more ball games than any other player he had ever seen."

Quite a tribute to Bool, coming from a competitor, and, to the credit of O'Connell, a nice gesture that isn't seen in baseball every day. Johnny himself, by the way, will not easily be stopped from winning a berth on the Corsair receiving crew. The management already has indicated that it considers him more valuable than Claude Linton, carried all of last year, inasmuch as it has released Linton, a lefthand hitter, despite the fact that all of the remaining five backstops—Hemsley, Hargreaves, Bool, O'Connell and Finney—swing from the right side of the plate.

APART from the all-America mention given to him by many football critics following his sensational playing against Carnegie Tech and Pitt, another distinction has fallen to Russell Saunders, crack quarterback of the Southern California eleven, whose college gridiron career ended with the Panther game in Pasadena on New Year's Day.

Saunders has just been honored with the award of the Davis-Teschke medal, which is annually presented to the Southern California player who is voted by his mates to have been the most valuable man and the greatest inspiration to his team. The medal is given by two former Trojan grid stars, Thomas Davis and W. L. Teschke.

Russell Saunders

SOUTHERN California, incidentally, has swung into line with the rapidly increasing number of colleges that have done away with the electing of football captains. At the same meeting that saw Saunders given the medal award, the players voted 18 to 11 against choosing a captain by ballot for next season. Coach Howard Jones will appoint a team captain before each game, and at the end of the schedule the players will select an honorary leader. Among Pittsburgh's three big schools, Carnegie Tech alone has abandoned captaincy elections, Pitt and Duquesne continuing to choose by ballot, but the appointment system is fast gaining in favor elsewhere throughout the county.

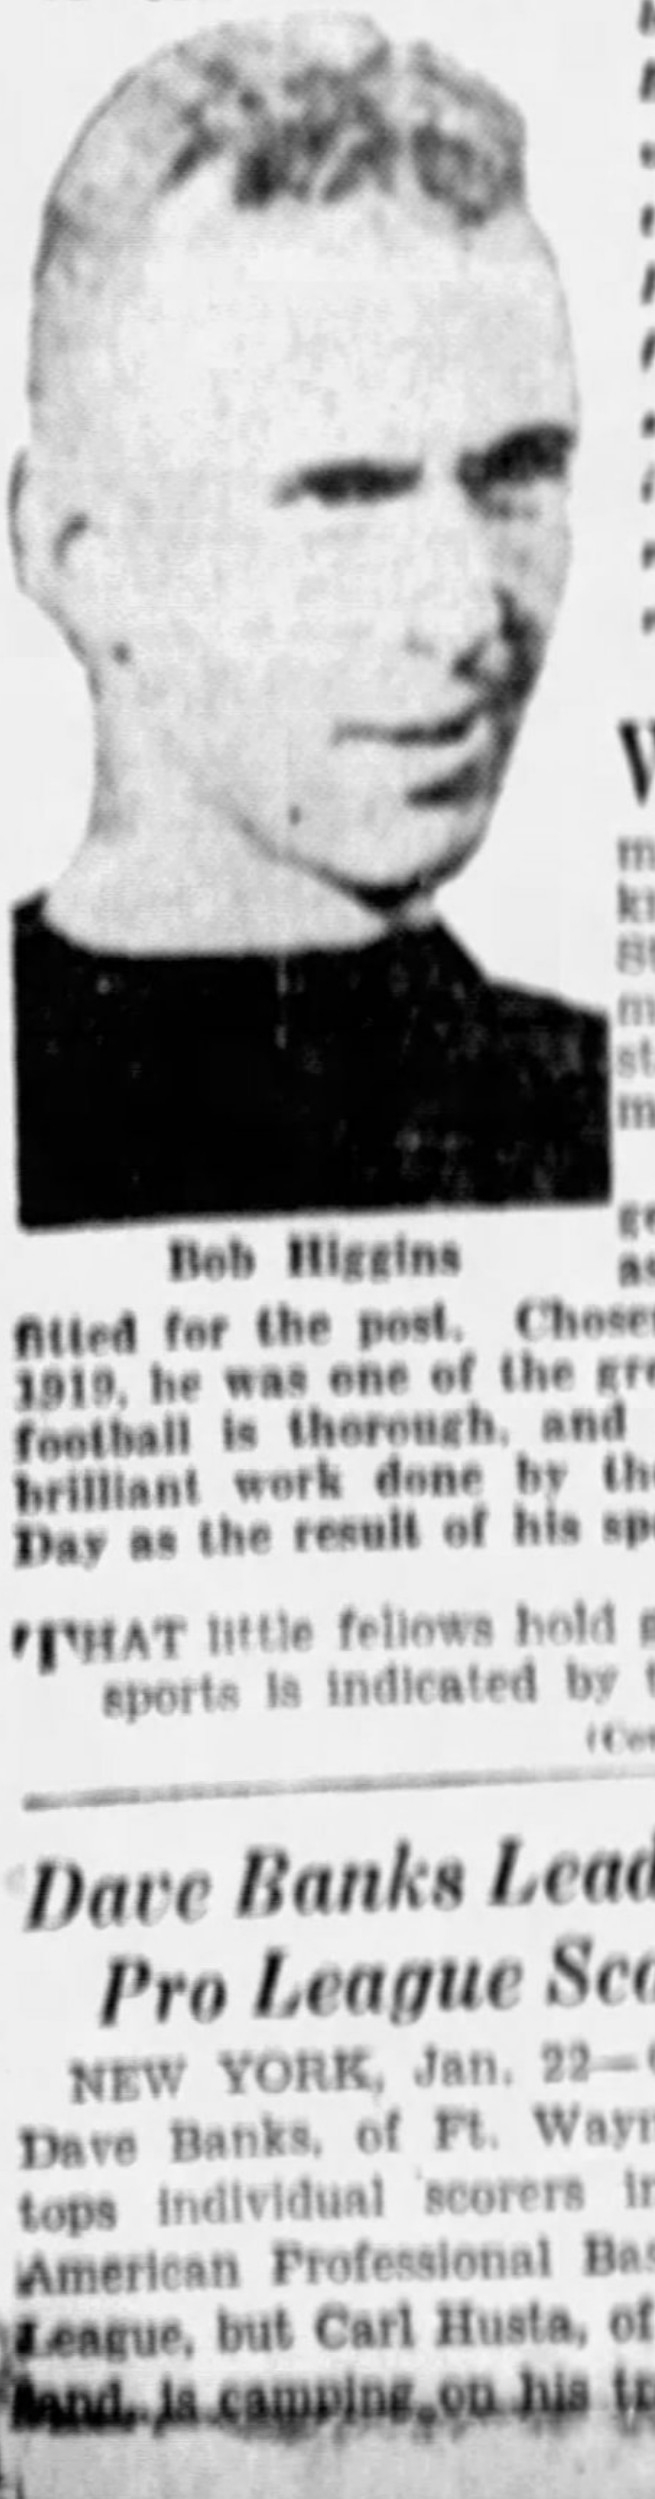
SOME fistic maneuvering that had been anticipated for weeks finally was carried out yesterday, when Max Schmeling withdrew his acceptance of an offer to meet George Godfrey or Tommy Loughran in the Atlantic City Auditorium on March 29, announcing his willingness to fight, instead, the winner of the Jack Sharkey-Phil Scott affair slated for February 27 in Miami.

Of course, it's only a bit of business sidestepping to save the proposed championship clash next summer between Schmeling and the Sharkey-Scott winner from possible ruin. That's what a defeat for Schmeling in Atlantic City would have meant, and those interested are taking no chances. It's not at all surprising. Few fans ever entertained the slightest notion that Schmeling would endanger the big outdoor show in prospect by encountering in the meantime such a dangerous customer as either Godfrey or Loughran.

GREAT Britain has fallen hard for dog-racing. Despite the efforts of the horse-racing powers there to have it banned, the greyhound game has flourished to an extent beyond even the wildest dreams of the promoters.

In 1927 the attendance at the dog tracks in Great Britain was in excess of 5,000,000; in 1928 paid admissions totaled 13,500,000, and last year the mark was boosted to 16,000,000. In London alone, up to December 1, the dogs drew 7,329,777 admissions and $5,500,000 in receipts.

SPECULATION in football circles as to Hugo Bezdek's probable successor as head coach at Penn State continues to be featured by the frequent mention of the name of Bob Higgins. Months ago, when it became understood that Bezdek would retire at the expiration of his ten-year contract, Higgins began to loom as a popular choice for the post among Penn State men, and since Hugo hastened matters by withdrawing ahead of time Bob is being suggested more strongly than ever as the logical man for the place.



Bob Higgins

WHETHER the athletic powers at Mt. Nittany have Higgins or some one else in mind for the coaching vacancy is not known, but judging from the attitude of State grads in this vicinity no more popular move than the appointment of that former star player for the Blue and White could be made.

And that goes for football followers in general around here. Higgins is as capable as he is popular, and appears to be well fitted for the post. Chosen by Walter Camp as all-America end in 1919, he was one of the greatest players of his day, his knowledge of football is thorough, and his coaching ability was attested by the brilliant work done by the State wingmen here last Thanksgiving Day as the result of his special tutoring.

THAT little fellows hold greater sway in hockey than in most other sports is indicated by the high standing in the National League

Dave Banks Leads Pro League Scorers

NEW YORK, Jan. 22—(AP.)—Dave Banks, of Ft. Wayne, still tops individual scorers in the American Professional Basketball League, but Carl Husta, of Cleveland, is camping on his trail and may catch up to him before another week is past.

Figures compiled through games of Jan. 20 by the Associated Press show Banks with a grand total of 196 points for 30 games. Husta has 189 in 29 games. Chizmadia, of Rochester, holds third place with 173 and Borgeman, of Paterson, fourth, with 151.

FLYNN MOVES FROM BANNED QUARTERS

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor

The Coliseum Boxing Club, in the parlance of the stage, has opened and closed in one. In one show, we mean. Its first show, last Friday night, also was its last. The ban plastered on the building by the police department on the ground that it is unsafe for the fans in case of fire or panic stands.

Francis Flynn

As a result, the Joey Goodman-Maxie Strub show planned for the uptown arena next Friday night has been shifted to the Moose Temple, downtown, and Promoter Francis Flynn will finish the indoor season there, picking up where he left off two weeks ago to move into the larger quarters.

The Meyers Brothers, who were partners with Flynn in the conduct of the Coliseum, will drop out of the local field and begin at once to enlarge their Meyers Bowl, in North Braddock, for the summer season. They plan to expand the seating capacity by 2,500, giving them approximately 8,000 seats.

LEASE CANCELED

The lease signed by Flynn and the Meyers Brothers for the use of Columbus Temple, as a boxing arena to be known as the Coliseum, has been automatically canceled with the condemning of the building for boxing purposes, it was said today. The club stands the cost of the renovations made to convert the former church into a boxing bowl with seats converging on all sides to the ring, which was placed in the center of the upstairs hall.

Promoter Flynn is at work now on his preliminary card for Friday night.

Strub arrived in town yesterday from his home in Erie and is concluding his training at Flynn's gym. Goodman will get in from Cleveland tomorrow with his manager, Jimmy Dunn, and will indulge in his final workout in the same quarters. Goodman, incidentally, is matched to box Sammy Mandell, the lightweight champion, at the Cleveland Public Auditorium on the night of February 3.

Between Rounds

The card is complete for the show at McKeesport tomorrow night, consisting of a double windup of two 10-round bouts and two six-round preliminaries. In the feature events, Eddie Brannon, of the Hill, will meet Johnny Saxon, of Buffalo, and California Joe Gans, of McKeesport, will

HARRIS SOUGHT AS JOHNSTOWN MANAGER

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Owners of the Johnstown club of the Mid-Atlantic League are negotiating with Joe Harris, former Pirate and Senator star, with a view of making the veteran the playing manager of the Flood City team.

Harris, after a series of operations, is said to have recovered his health again, or is on the road to complete recovery. His ailing condition forced him out of the major leagues at a time when he was doing big things for the Pirates, but the surgical treatment is said to have put him back on his feet.

Joe Harris

Athletes who have performed on the same club with Coulter Joe aver that he has the qualifications of a successful manager. The slam-bang hitter played a big part in the winning of the flag by the Senators in 1925 and his bat terrorized Pirate followers in the subsequent series with the Oaklanders.

HARD HITTER

Harris' hard hitting, his teamwork and hustling spirit were heavy factors in the winning of the National League flag by the Pirates in 1927, but it was toward the close of this hot competition that Joe's health failed him. He was in a bad way for weeks following his operations, but eventually his health turned for the better and he has been improving for some time.

Another Verona diamond star will cast his lot with the professionals of the sport. John (Buzz) Isherwood, capable righthand pitcher of the Verona team, has

Lloyd Waner Reported Improved

Continued improvement was reported today on the condition of Lloyd Waner, centerfielder of the Pirates, who is a patient at the Presbyterian Hospital following an operation for removal of his appendix performed Monday morning.

The after effects of the anesthetic sickened Lloyd to the extent that he suffered considerable pain, but he is resting better now.

The athlete's nurse today stated that while Lloyd did not sleep well during last night he was able to sleep this morning and that he had been refreshed by the morning naps.

LOCAL SCRIBES MEET TODAY

The local chapter of the Baseball Writers' Association will hold another meeting this afternoon to hear reports from committees on arrangements for its second annual banquet, to be held on the night of February 6, in Pirate Hall, William Penn Hotel.

It is expected that a number of notables will attend as honor guests. John A. Heydler, president of the National League, already has accepted an invitation and others are to be heard from at today's meeting.

More than 1,000 sports followers attended last year's dinner, which was pronounced one of the best ever staged here by a sporting fraternity and arrangements are being made to handle a similar turnout this time.

DUTRA LEADER IN CALIENTE TOURNEY

AGUA CALIENTE, Lower California, Jan. 22.—(AP.)—The Dutra brothers, a swarthy pair of Spanish descent — Olin, from Santa Monica, Cal., and Mortie, from Tacoma, Wash., are bent upon taking the greatest prize money ever offered in golf. Braving a Mexican desert breeze, but in much greater comfort than their exploring ancestors of generations ago, they brought in the lowest scores of the day, 72 each, in competition with more than 100 of the nation's leading golfers in the second round of the Agua Caliente quest of four days for prizes totaling $25,000.

Today Olin Dutra leads the field, the tournament half over, with cards of 74 and 72, making the low 146. In the next bracket, of 147, were Horton Smith, of Joplin, Mo., leading money player of the year, and Charley Guest, Los Angeles professional.

Macdonald Smith, Long Island player, was bracketed with five others in the third group of 148 gross players, the company including Mortie Dutra, Gene Sarazen, New York, former open champion; Al Espinosa, Chicago; Ed Dudley, Wilmington, Del., and Al Watrous, of Detroit. Forty-eight of the gold seekers fell by the wayside.

Light Horse Harry Cooper, of Buffalo, was married in Los Angeles yesterday, but today he was back early in the morning to contend with Olin Dutra for the lead. Monday he played 27 holes, 74 for the first eighteen, the same as Olin Dutra, and 36 for the out nine, compared with 35 for Dutra on that nine yesterday.

Those who found the gold quest at an abrupt end included Tony Manero, of New York, winner of the Catalina open, in December, and Clarence Clark, of Tulsa, Okla., winner of the recent San Gabriel, Cal., amateur-pro event.

Mack Paid Dearly For World Title, Thomas Says

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 22. —(AP.)—Ira Thomas, coach and scout for the Philadelphia Athletics, told members of the Optimist Club yesterday that Connie Mack paid dearly for the 1929 world championship and that he would spend as much money to win the title this year.

"Mack set out to build a pennant winner a few years ago," Thomas said. "He paid $25,000 for Max Bishop, then he handed out $100,000 for Lefty Grove. Still he couldn't win. Then he paid $70,000 for Al Simmons, $65,000 for Joe Boley and $80,000 for George Earnshaw. But it wasn't until he developed Rube Walberg and Jimmy Foxx, that great young hitter, and several others that he could produce a pennant winner.

"In order to win the pennant this year Mack has stepped out and purchased the cream of the minor leagues. The Athletics will have such an array of players this year that there is little doubt in my mind they will win."

THIEL BEATS GROVE CITY

GREENVILLE, Pa., Jan. 22.—Thiel College registered one of the biggest floor upsets of the season by defeating Grove City, 28 to 26, in a thrilling encounter here last night. It also marked Thiel's first triumph of the season. The Greenville quint led, 18 to 7, at the end of the first half and although were outplayed by the Grovers in the last session managed to stave off the loser's late attack long enough to win. The lineup:

Thiel—28.		Grove City—26.
Morris	F	Fegley
Wardle	F	Stavinsky
Frampton	C	McCann
Dell	G	Raplenovic
McCoy	G	Rankin

Field goals—Wardle 3, Frampton 3, Dell 2, McCoy, Fegley, Stavinsky 4, Hildebrand, Reeves, Raplenovic, Rankin, Ryan. Fouls—Thiel, 8 out of 11; Grove City, 6 out of 9. Referee—Bolster.

BLUFFITES NOSE OUT BISONS; TECH LOSES

By JESS CARVER

The loud report that boomed out on last night's chilly air was the snapping of Bethany's six game victory string by the Dukes of Duquesne on their Bluff gym. Chick Davies' proteges didn't slip through without the hardest sort of an extra period battle, nosing out the Bisons by a 32-31 count.

Brud Stephens.

Last night's setback was the first of the season for the Green Buffalos and removed them for the time being from consideration as Conference champions. They may come back, in fact, they probably will, but until the Dukes or Westminster are bumped off, the Bisons will rate only a second helping.

The game, aside from the outcome, was a dead ringer for last year's contest, in which the Bisons cut down a seven-point Duke lead in the last minute and a half of play to win out.

Brud Stephens, diminutive, but oh, so clever, led the attack and checked the defense of the Dukes. He threw six timely field goals, and it was his foul goal in the extra period that turned the fortunes of the fracas to the Dukes.

TIED AT HALF

Bison and Duke battled nip and tuck throughout the first half, Abele's successful toss from the free throw line giving the locals a 17-17 standoff as the gun boomed to end the first period's play. Stephens had tossed in four baskets during this half, half of his team's points. Telfair, rangy and clever center of the Bisons, was the leading figure in the first half play of the Buffalos.

It was Brud's goal from past the foul mark, just a second before time was called, that enabled the Dukes to get into the extra period. Otherwise, it would have been played in the Bethany dressing room. Rush's long goal put Bethany ahead, 29-28, with a minute to go, and a free throw by Damschroder made it 30-28. Then Brud dropped in his offering and the Red and Blue carried on into the overtime and to victory.

CARNERA? HMMPF!

BIG BOY PETERSON

While almost everybody else is considering him a setup for Primo Carnera, the Italian giant, in the latter's American debut in Madison Square Garden, New York, Friday night, Peterson is satisfied he will be able to take care of himself in the ring. The Minneapolis heavy wonders why they call him Big Boy if he is supposed to be a pigmy foe for Carnera.

Two old rivals of the basketball court will come together at the South Side Market House tonight when the Goldensons clash with the Sianos in the only league contest on the program. The contest, originally scheduled earlier in the season, was postponed owing to the inability of the Sianos to get into playing condition.

The Goldensons are eager to finish high in the first-half of the Allegheny County League race which comes to a close this week and will be out tonight determined to take a fall out of the Sianos. The two clubs have been basketball rivals for a number of years, and they usually play their best game when opposed to each other.

GIRLS PLAY

The Sianos' management announced today they would finish their first half schedule at the South Side Market House next Friday night.

Preceding the main attraction tonight will be a preliminary between the Goldenson Vanities and the Tylerdale Firemen girls, one of the best clubs in Washington County. The Vanities have been compiling an enviable record this season, and as a result very few local teams are willing to meet them on the floor. Helen Kasputis, manager of the team, has been forced to seek out-of-town opponents to fill out her schedule of games.

LAFAYETTES ON TOP

Ed Minnick's Duquesne Lafayettes found the Charleroi Lions rather easy, winning last night's County League battle by a 34-to-24 score.

In the West Penn circuit, the Penn Five walloped Y. M. H. A., 48 to 36, while Equitable Life trimmed Manchester, 45 to 29. The North Side Buicks won over St. Michaels, 39 to 30, in the Greater Pittsburgh circuit.

In an independent contest, Trinity Cathedral Royals put up a real fight against the Heinze House Juniors, only to lose to their heavier, more-experienced foes, 45 to 25. The Greater Pittsburgh League Lineup:

N. S. Buicks—39		St. Michael—30
Kornich	F.	Crum
Ammons	F.	Stahley
Madisch	C.	Engerman
Bobie	G.	Sollne
Dodds	G.	Newell

Field goals—Ammons 6, Kornich 4, Miller 4, Madisch 2, Bobie 2, Crum 5, Stahley 4, Sollne 3, Newell 2. Fouls—Buicks 3 out of 5, St. Michaels 2 out of 5. Referee—Wenrich.

Dribbles

Relieved of his duties as coach of the Pirates team, Nate Lippe should have no trouble regaining the form he showed earlier in the season. With Greer at the helm, Lippe will be able to confine all of his attention to playing a regular position at forward.

The Buffalo Rochester and Pittsburgh basketball team is open for games around with light first-class teams. Write D. V. Palombo, B. R. & P. Freight Station, North Side, or call Fisk 0244-R.

The Pittsburgh School of Accounts Freshies will be the attraction of Kingsley House tonight on the Kingsley House floor.

The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad team has dates open at home and abroad with light first-class teams. Call Lafayette 1075-R.

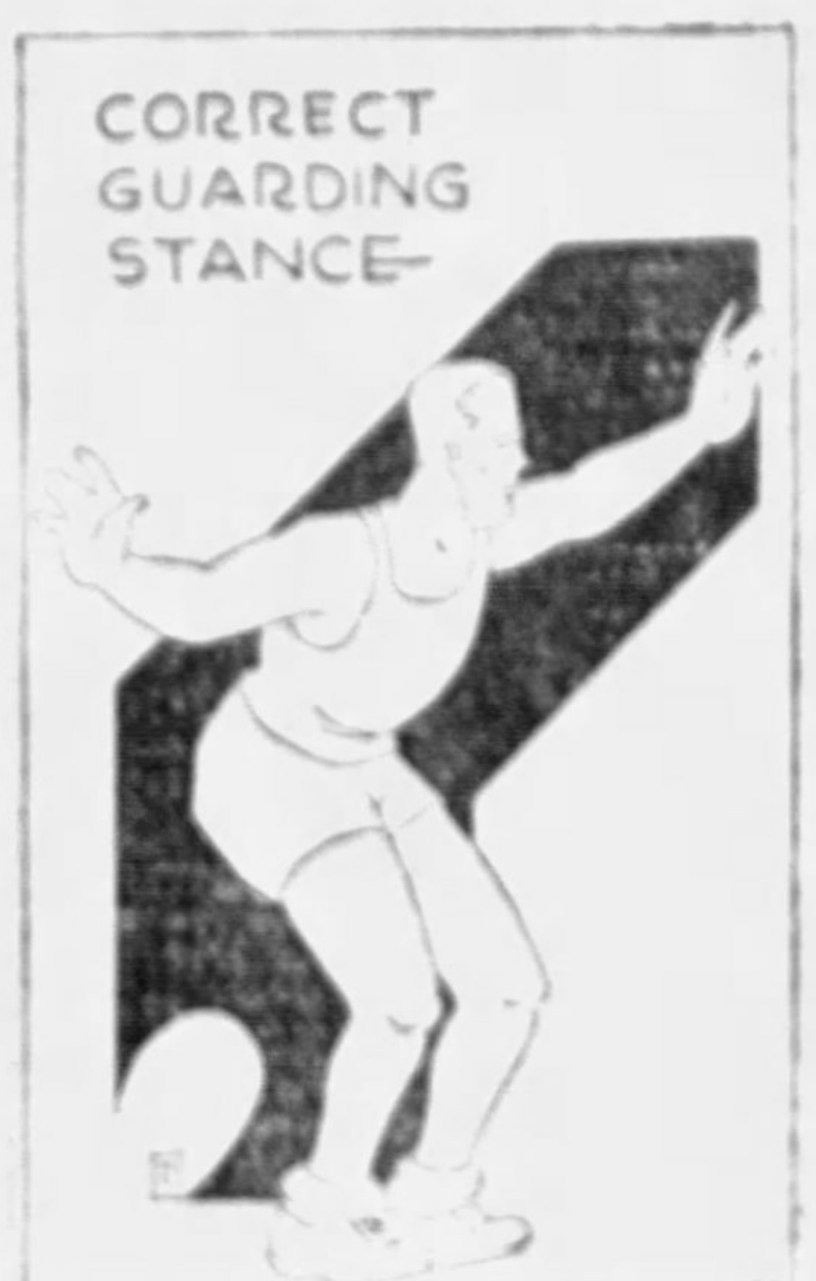
Two letters await the manager of the Arrow Club at the Sun-Tele sports department.

The Tube City Taxi Club is open for games with the best first-class teams in the district. This club includes on its roster most of the players that composed the Hirschberg Club of last season. For games write L. J. Bernhardt, 300 Atlantic avenue, McKeesport, Pa., or call McKeesport 8316.

Cardinals Release Jonnard to Houston

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 22.—(AP.)—The St. Louis Cardinals last night announced release to Houston, of the Texas League, on an optional agreement, of Clarence Jonnard, third-string catcher of the 1929 Redbirds. The release cuts the Cardinals' catching staff to four men and is another step in the club's plan to place the Houston farm in a pennant contending position in the Texas League.

How to Play Basketball



CORRECT GUARDING STANCE—

What are the best tactics for a guard to adopt against the opposing forward?

Answered by
H. V. McDERMOTT
Basketball Coach, University of Oklahoma, Missouri Valley Conference Champion

The guard's first thought is to be between the forward and the goal. Do not be outwitted. If your forward is particularly effective stay close to him, see that he gets no unmolested shots, worry him. Do not rush at a forward or he will pivot around you. Stay on the floor because when you alight the elusive forward is gone. When he is in the act of shooting yell at him, talk to him, stamp your foot on the floor so as to take his mind off the shot. Remember he is just one of the boys and the things that would worry you will distract him. If a forward is coming to meet you on a dribble give him an advantage to the side line away from the goal and very often he will take it. When he does he has cut his available playing space in half.

signed a contract with the Erie club of the Central League.

The Sailors are managed by Jocko Munch, who secured the signed contract of the local youth through Johnny O'Connell of the Pirates. O'Connell, also of Verona, performed in the Central League previous to his elevation to the Pittsburgh club.

O'Connell, as well as Manager Steve Gardina of the Verona club, are confident that Buzz will rise in the professional end of the sport. He led the County League pitchers two years ago.

BUCS LAND PITCHER

The Pirate pitching division today was increased to the extent of a collegiate phenom who until recently was a junior at the University of Tennessee. The recruit is J. Bernard Walter, big righthander who has decided to follow up the professional end of the sport. A friend of Pitcher Ervin Brame, Walter worked out with the Pirates last summer while visiting Brame in Pittsburgh. Since that time he has left school and he has been signed by the Pirates with orders to report to the Paso Robles training camp with the first squad.

The collegian is aged 21, more than six feet tall and with a poundage of 175.

The sharpshooting division now consists of 14 performers with the prospect of two or more being added before the vanguard leaves for California. Five catchers, eight infielders, and nine outfielders are on the roster at the present time, making a grand total of 36 players.

BERG SAILS FRIDAY

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—(INS.)—Jack (Kid) Berg, English lightweight, who defeated Tony Canzoneri here last week, will sail Friday for London, where he battles Mushy Callahan, American boxer, next month.

PAT CRAWFORD SIGNS

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—(INS.)—Pat Crawford, reserve first baseman and pinch hitter, has signed for 1930 with the New York Giants, it was announced today.

scoring records of such small players as Ralph (Cooney) Weiland, of the Boston Bruins; Frank Boucher, of the New York Rangers, and Aurel Joliat, of Les Canadiens.

Joliat has long been one of the greatest left-wingers in the ice sport. Passing years have not affected the playing form of the Canadian star. He weighs only 135 pounds, but the bumps received as a regular diet in competition with much heavier men have failed to slow him down.

Frank Boucher

THE same may be said of Boucher and Weiland. Les Patrick, manager of the Rangers, rates little Boucher as one of the most valuable men playing hockey today, and the present season has served to establish Weiland among the leading stars of the game. At Owen Sound and Minneapolis, where he played previously, Weiland, scaling only 135 pounds, was adjudged too light ever to make good in the majors, but last season the Bruin management decided to take a chance and give him a tryout. He showed enough to warrant his retention, and this winter, playing on the so-called second-string line, he has developed into one of the league's sensations. He and Dutch Gainor form one of the shiftiest pairs of forwards in either group of the divided circuit, and have been a nightmare of trouble to opposing teams.

oppose Joey Coffman, also of Buffalo. Frank Novak, of the North Side, district amateur heavyweight champion, boxes Sailor Munn of McKeesport, in the second bout and Eddie Guba, of Glassport, who formerly fought under the name of Jack O'Banyan, will take on Hugh Cunningham of [illegible], who for a time fought out of Buffalo, in the opener.

The scheduled showing of Tony Herrera, Mexican lightweight star, against Johnny [illegible] or another suitable opponent at McKeesport Thursday night of next week is off and Mickey Solomon, of New Castle, will be one of the principals in a [illegible] bout.

FORMER CHAMPS ON CARD

Two former welterweight champions are on the same card at the Arena in Philadelphia next Monday night, Pete Latzo meeting Bobby Jones, Pittsburgh Negro light heavyweight, in the main bout and Joe Dundee, who took the title from Latzo, meeting Pat Haley of Philadelphia, in the semi-final. In another 10-rounder, Yale Okun will battle Tiger Payne.

The program has been rounded out for the boxing show at the Jolly Bowl, New Castle, next Monday night, in the main bout of which Henry Firpo will engage Indian Tiger West. Howard Mayberry, [illegible] veteran, tangles with Johnny Willis, of Philadelphia, in the semi-final, and in the two six-round preliminaries, Young Eddy, of New Castle, boxes Charley Sobko, of Erie and Frankie Frey, of New Castle, takes on Jimmy Hogan, of Erie.

BRETSCH COMES ALONG

Georgie Bretsch, the North Side welterweight, who won the National junior amateur welterweight championship at Chicago last year before turning pro, has been coming along nicely under the tutelage of Bill Dummer, his coach and manager. He is not yet 20 years old, is 5 feet 11 inches tall and makes the poundage of the division easily. In eight professional bouts he has startled the fans with his punching power, having most of his opponents on the floor. As an amateur, he lost only two decisions in 37 bouts in 11 months. His real name is [illegible], but he changed it for ring purposes.

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 22.—If home runs don't come fast enough when the season opens, perhaps he should use his driver instead of a bat. In a tournament match Babe Ruth walloped a golf ball far enough to chase it far out of any baseball park—345 yards.

SCHMELING GO AT SEASHORE CALLED OFF

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—(AP.)—Another move designed to expedite settlement of the muddled heavyweight championship situation was made yesterday when Max Schmeling's proposed match in the Atlantic City Auditorium, March 29, was called off by the German heavyweight's American manager, Joe Jacobs.

Schmeling's next engagement, according to Jacobs, will be with the winner of the Miami match between Jack Sharkey and Phil Scott, with every expectation that world heavyweight championship recognition will be at stake.

The prospect is that Schmeling will fight Sharkey for the title in the feature bout of the Milk Fund benefit show in the Yankee Stadium, late in June. Contingent upon this are a victory for Sharkey over Scott, February 27, and reinstatement for Schmeling in New York. The German boxer, as well as Jacobs, has been under an official ban here since refusing to fight Scott at Ebbets Field last summer.

Jack (Kid) Berg, who rose to the position of lightweight title contender with a decisive victory over Tony Canzoneri last week, has filed a challenge with the commission for a match with the 135-pound champion, Sammy Mandell.

Oliver	3	3	.500

Superiority at the center position, where Crum enjoyed the edge over Neidzwicki, provided the edge that Schenley High needed to down South in the Section I, City League classic on the Schenley court yesterday. The Bellefielders turned back the ambitious bid of the South passers for the first half leadership in the section by a 30-20 count. As a result the deadlock for first place was broken.

Crum's fine offensive play was the high spot of the contest. The rangy Schenley center dropped in five fine field goals, meanwhile holding his opponent scoreless. With Schenley enjoying the advantage of the centers, the hard work of Capt. Mervosh and Zadrewski went for naught.

GAME POSTPONED

Schenley held a 19-16 lead at half time and in the third and final period gradually pulled away. Douglass gave a sterling exhibition at guard for Walter Gross' quintet. Slusser and Evans pressed Crum for scoring honors, each accounting for three goals from the field.

The important battle in Section 2, between Perry and Oliver, was postponed due to a death in the family of one of the Oliver High School employes.

Other interesting City League encounters yesterday saw Allegheny barely eke out a 23-to-20 victory over Langley, Allderdice trim Peabody, 25 to 15, South Hills nose out Carrick, 28 to 27, and Fifth Avenue outclass Westinghouse, 34 to 16.

SCOTT HIGH VICTOR

Scott High, of North Braddock, came through to defeat Turtle Creek Union, 36 to 20, in the W. P. I. A. L. McKees Rocks trounced Bridgeville High, 36 to 16; Parnassus topped Springdale, 19 to 18; Trafford beat East Pittsburgh, 19 to 6; Rochester edged out New Brighton, 25 to 23; Tarentum won from Arnold, 24 to 18, and Uniontown trampled Jeannette, 32 to 20.

New Kensington High won over Freeport, 42 to 19; West Newton defeated Monongahela, 20 to 19; Beaver nosed out Midland, 19-18; Ford City copped from Leechburg, 33 to 24, and Aliquippa walloped Freedom, 48 to 12. The lineups:

Westmoreland Golfer Near Semi-Finals

PALM BEACH, Fla., Jan. 22.—Alexander C. Speyer, of the Westmoreland Country Club, Pittsburgh, is participating in the second round of match play in the annual Lake Worth championship golf tournament over the golf club course here today. He is playing C. S. Cook, Jr., of Boston, for the right to enter the semi-finals in the second sixteen. Speyer yesterday trounced Roger Bacon, of Middletown, Conn., 5 and 4.

DUKES, GENEVA FLOOR VICTORS

gave the Dukes their points. Ronald, a substitute for Rush, scored for the Bisons by the same method.

In Irvin Flading, the Bisons presented a star of the first magnitude. This chap, just a freshman, played a guard, and how he played it. He was a streak when in possession of the ball, and made five baskets under extreme pressure, cutting under the hoop and letting fly when you thought he was completely out of bounds or smothered by the alert Duke defense. He shared all but scoring honors with Stephens as the star of the game.

The game was a wild one, four of the hard-working athletes being ejected on four personals, Lubic and Parry, Dukes, and Flading and Rush, Bisons, winning early trips to the showers. The score:

Duquesne—33. Bethany—31.

SKIBOS BEATEN

Captain George Nease and other Skibos who went down to Beaver Falls last night to face a crippled Geneva five, found real opposition and came out of a two extra period game loser by a 38-to-35 tally. Nease did all he could in the way of putting the Tartans over, registering 22 points individually—but that wasn't enough.

The teams were tied at 33-all at the end of the regular period of playing, Webster's long shot in the closing seconds of time deadlocking matters. Geneva's reserves nosed out the Carnegie Plebes, 25 to 24. The lineups:

Geneva—38. Carnegie—35.

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—(INS.)—Those golden American dollars just will intrigue Primo Carnera, titanic Italian, do what he may!

That the big satchel-footed heavyweight is losing no time making dollars while the sun is high in his fistic heavens was shown today with announcement Carnera will box Elzear Rioux, Canadian mastodon, in Chicago, January 31, and return a week later to Newark, where he meets Jack Dehave.

GALLATIN FACES GERMAN SPORT SATURDAY

By TOM BIRKS

While this week-end has a lengthy schedule of well-balanced soccer games on tap, it will be the final for the West Penn senior cup, featuring the Gallatin and German Sport clubs, scheduled for Westinghouse High School Stadium Saturday afternoon, that will attract the crowd.

Previous to last Saturday's semi-final game, which was pulled out of the fire by the German club after one of the greatest finishes ever staged by a club in the history of soccer, it was thought Gallatin would have a walkaway.

GERMANS HAVE CHANCE

But the brilliant exhibition of soccer flashed by the Germans has placed a different angle on the game, and far from the contest being one sided, it would appear that the Black and Blue of the Sport Club stands an excellent chance of getting its name inscribed on the local championship trophy.

Fans have stated for many years that once behind, the German Club is licked, and that theory worked out for a long time. However, there is a chance that the acquisition of Reisman, former Cleveland star, has instilled a new spirit into the club.

Reisman is one of the greatest soccer players ever to don a shoe in this district. He knows the game perfectly, is a real gentleman on and off the field, and never appears to let his feelings interfere with his game.

He knows what to do with the ball when he has it, and just as a real halfback should do, can give the ball to the man where it will do the most good.

TO START AT 2:30

The game will be called at 2:30 and extra time will be played if necessary. The Gallatin crowd will be on hand, and the Benick, Secane and Broggi combination will give the fans plenty to get enthused over. Looking at the game from every angle, it stacks up as one of the best final battles for many years. Both clubs have a good attack, and a good defense, and it would appear that the battle between Benick and Reisman is going to be worth while.

Art Shires Near Agreement With White Sox

CHICAGO, Jan. 22.—(AP.)—The case of organized baseball, the White Sox in particular, against Charles Arthur (The Great) Shires neared conclusion today.

The punch-throwing first baseman, who has already acceded to Commissioner K. M. Landis' demand that he quit the professional ring and get into shape for baseball, conferred secretly with Donie Bush, new White Sox manager, yesterday and from the smiles that wreathed their faces it looked like both had come to an agreement.

Shires is expected to have his suspension, levied because of his fist fight with former Manager Russell (Lena) Blackburne last season, lifted and receive his 1930 contract this week.

'TUCKY DERBY DATE SET

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Jan. 22.—(AP.)—The Kentucky Derby of 1930 will be run on Saturday May 17. Colonel M. J. Winn, executive director of Churchill Downs yesterday named the date for the $50,000 race which some lucky three-year-old will win to go down in the records with other famous Derby winners.

The spring meeting will be opened Saturday May 10, and will close Saturday, May 31, after 19 days of racing. Entry blanks for the derby and other spring stakes were mailed out recently and many entries already have been received.

Which-One, Harry Payne Whitney's colt, rules the winter Derby book as a 4-to-1 favorite, but in the long list of entries there are 12 colts and geldings and four fillies which have accounted for stakes as two-year-olds.

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Jan. 22.—Pittsburgh and surrounding neighborhoods are well represented among the 300 candidates on the squads of Penn State's winter sports teams this season. Nearly two score students from that district are candidates for the various team and managerial positions of the three sports. In the list are two head managers, wrestling and basketball respectively. Carl Buck, of Pittsburgh, is varsity wrestling manager and Russell F. Mollenauer, of Washington, is manager of the basketball team.

ILLINOIS COMISH TURNED DOWN BY HANLON

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Jan. 22.—(AP.)—William H. Hanlon, chairman of the California Boxing Commission, said he could not obey an order of the Illinois State Athletic Commission that a $10,000 forfeit posted by Mickey Walker, middleweight boxing champion, be given to the Shrine Hospital.

Walker posted the money as a guarantee that he would risk his title by last September, when the Illinois Commission permitted him to go out of his class to meet Tommy Loughran for the light heavyweight title here last March. Walker's manager, Jack Kearns, has a temporary injunction to prevent the money being paid.

Hanlon said the disposition of the money was solely up to the California Supreme Court, which has the matter of awarding the cash on its docket. The court does not convene until 30 days hence.

POTASH PRICE SLASH SEEN

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22—(AP.)—Cheaper potash for American farmers in the near future was predicted by Dr J. J. Turrentine, of the Department of Agriculture, in announcing that a marked increase in American domestic production during 1929 was accompanied by a decrease in the imports of potash fertilizer salts.

Dr. Turrentine, who is in charge of potash investigations for the department, said domestic production in the last year was maintained on the high level established in 1928, when the increase was from 77,000 tons of potash salts in 1927 to 104,000 tons in 1928.

"America still remains the principal market for the foreign potash which enters transoceanic trade and takes 32 per cent of all the German exports," Dr. Turrentine said. "These figures indicate the tremendous domestic market awaiting domestic supplies of potash."

ASK SURVEY FOR TUSCARAWAS

NEW PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 22.—Proposed canalization of Tuscarawas River from Dover to Coshocton, where the Tuscarawas and Walhonding rivers join to form the Muskingum, and thence to Dresden on the Muskingum, a distance of 60 miles, has received impetus here. Col. E. D. Ardery, of Huntington, West Virginia, in charge of the Muskingum waterway district, advised Attorney Robert N. Wilkin to submit a brief showing reasons for making Tuscarawas River part of the Federal inland waterways. The brief will be submitted in 10 days.

A federal appropriation has been made for a flood prevention survey of the Muskingum River. Col. Ardery would propose a survey of both rivers.

The last steamboat to ply the Tuscarawas was the Falcon, which 25 years ago carried excursionists 3,000 feet up Tuscarawas River, to Bass Island where Sunday band concerts were played.

"She's a Septic!"

Many women want to be, deserve to be, and could be far more popular than is their lot. Doctors know why. So do nurses. They call such cases septics.

To remedy obnoxious body odors and bad breath, you must recognize their cause. The trouble is deep-seated. Frankly in the colon. Semi-constipation makes millions of systems septic. There may be a daily movement, but all the waste is not eliminated. The matter that remains poisons the blood, and permeates the perspiration. It taints the breath. Nature is signaling her need of a tiny Calcium Wafer.

Calcium wafers work wonders in one's appearance, too. With the inner system sweet and clean, the complexion clears most marvelously. Eyes brighten. Teeth whiten. The tongue is no longer coated, even on arising. And you never need take another harsh cathartic.

Perhaps you are a septic, and don't know it. Try a tiny wafer of calcium, and see! It may make all the difference in the world. Leave harsh, habit-forming cathartics alone. You never need them if you take an occasional calcium wafer.

TRY THIS THOROUGH TEST

A five-day test should prove to you very conclusively the system's need for Stuart's Calcium Wafers, and the benefit from those little wafers. Your druggist has them for 10c. Or the family size 60c. Start this test today!

WHEN YOUR SKIN IS SALLOW AND DULL

Nature intended that every skin should be attractive. From babyhood to old age she strives to make the outward appearance beautiful.

But Nature cannot do the impossible. So long as the skin gets rich red blood it will be attractive. When that blood carries a lot of heavy foreign matter the skin gets greasy, then sallow, then rough and dry.

Where does this skin poison come from? Why, whenever congestion occurs in the mucous membrane, which lines the body, the system is affected. That is what catarrh does for you.

Many a woman would be beautiful if she would drive catarrh from her system. Catarrh checks digestion, numbs the liver, prevents the kidneys from throwing off the poisonous matter. Constipation, foul breath, sour stomach and many other ailments—all these things are fatal to beauty. When catarrh is their underlying cause—as it is in most cases—recovery of health and beauty is only possible when that catarrh is gone.

We have literally thousands of letters from grateful men and women who tell us how they have taken ten years off their age with World's Tonic, how this new medicine has cleared up the whole system, restoring spring to the step, brightness to the eyes and beauty to the skin. They will convince you of these facts.

Newer Fields Attract New Generation

— By B. C. FORBES —

THE selection of Herbert Hoover, Jr., as a member of an advisory committee on aeronautic research, sponsored by the Department of Commerce, draws attention to the interesting fact that the younger generation find themselves drawn towards our younger industries.

Many of our bright youthful intellects are not following in the footsteps of fathers engaged in older lines of business.

TAKE Hoover, Jr. His father chose mining as the division of engineering most likely to yield rich rewards. In those days there was more romance about mining than there is now that the industry has less of the pioneering glamor. Although both the President's sons apparently are mechanically inclined, the infant radio industry is the one which has fired their imaginations. Herbert, Jr., has been identified with the Guggenheim Foundation for Aviation Promotion and has been radio expert for the Western Air Express. President Hoover's other son, Allan, confided at the Republican convention at Kansas City, "I would like to take up commercial aviation."

WHENEVER you ask Henry Ford anything about aviation, he immediately and emphatically tells you that his (only) son, Edsel, is running that end of the Ford activities. It was not until Lindbergh visited the Ford airport that the motor magnate was persuaded to leave the ground, although he has since overcome his disinclination to fly. Edsel Ford has mastered the constructing of airplanes as thoroughly as he has mastered the building of the Ford car. His intimates say that his ambitions aviationwise are quite as expensive as his ambitions automobilewise. In other words, this new industry grips him.

ANOTHER multi-millionaire's son who forsook his father's profession is F. Trubee Davison, elder son of the late Henry P. Davison, perhaps the ablest partner the late J. P. Morgan ever chose. While still at college, young Davison, with several other men, established the Yale aerial coast patrol. In the following year, 1917, he was seriously injured while a Navy aviator. This did not dampen his ardor for aviation, however, and in time he became Assistant Secretary of War in charge of aviation. His brother, Henry P. Jr., did follow in his father's footsteps and is now a partner in J. P. Morgan & Company.

TALKING of bankers, one of the sons of Otto H. Kahn, international banker and patron of the opera and the arts, astounded his parents and the public alike by becoming the leader of a jazz band. The young man, however, refused to be diverted from his chosen work and quickly attained no small fame. Incidentally, the newspapers not long ago mentioned that young Kahn sported a fleet of no fewer than five airplanes.

Another international banker's son, Gerald, son of Felix M. Warburg, early announced that he had decided to become a professional cellist. While still a student he several times entertained radio audiences.

E. H. HARRIMAN'S son, W. Averell, although initiated into railroading by his Napoleonic father, switched to shipping when the latter died, encountered innumerable after-war difficulties in building up a fleet, formed a Wall street financial firm and has figured oftener than once as negotiator for high-sounding Russian concessions.

YOUNG Teddy Roosevelt originally leaned toward a military career. When he broached the subject to his father, then in the White House, the latter wrote him a very diplomatic letter which, while subtly seeking to dissuade the youth from entering the Army or Navy, left the final choice to him. It worked. Theodore, Junior, started work in a carpet mill, gravitated to Wall Street (where he was very popular), responded eagerly when the call to arms came during the World War and, finally, entered a public career which led him to the assistant secretaryship of the Navy and, now, to the governorship of Porto Rico. He particularly enjoyed his Navy Department job.

WHILE the long, alluring boom was raging in stocks, an embarrassingly large number of sons of well-to-do and wealthy parents clamored to "get into Wall Street." And many of them did. They won't all stick. The going has not been so pleasant or profitable since the October-November crash, nor is it likely to prove intoxicatingly exciting for some time to come.

AFTER all, however, the prevailing tendency is for sons of conspicuously successful men to follow along in the hope eventually of filling their dads' shoes. Top-notch success isn't often attained.

Rising Trend in Steel Output Seen

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

A GOOD rate of steel production in this district is anticipated when the automobile industry starts on its spring schedules. Even though this year may not approach the volume of 1929 in motor car demand the coming months will show seasonable expansion in automobile output.

In commenting on the situation, one steel man said:

"Ford is about the only automobile maker who is taking large tonnages of steel. Most of the others are waiting to more accurately gauge the reception of new models. At present the production of our sheet mills is at 65 per cent capacity. Other industries are buying in fairly good volume. The automobile makers ordinarily consume about one-third of the steel sheets produced and about 18 per cent of all types of steel. The addition of only a moderate amount of spring automobile business will go a long way towards putting mill operations on a satisfactory basis.

Prices Low

"PRICES are the most discouraging feature of the steel situation but I believe that they are being successfully pegged at the present levels. It is impossible for one company to get much more than its share of business by shaving quotations but some of them never learn this. Prices are unlikely to advance until production is at a brisk pace but we are hopeful of getting a better return in the second quarter.

"There is very conclusive evidence that we are pulling out of the year-end slump. Our specifications for shipment of steel against contracts last week were the greatest since early in November. In tin plate they were the greatest since August."

Building Lags

THE predicted revival in building activity has not materialized so far but it is still early in the year to expect any very definite signs of activity. Builders in some parts of the country are having difficulties in completing a large number of their speculative operations. The fact that newly completed houses and apartments are not finding a good market is the cause. Banks have been hesitant about extending additional credits and work has been stopped on many projects.

Jobbers in builders' supplies are finding it hard to collect their accounts and they, in turn, are slow in paying manufacturers. The situation has not reached very serious proportions except in New York City. One Pittsburgh manufacturing firm which normally has only a negligible number of its accounts in arrears reports that nine out of 12 of their jobbers in New York City are delinquent in paying bills.

Opinion as to the future volume of building is somewhat divided at present. Many still believe that cheap money will provide sufficient stimulus for a revival within a few months while others point to the high rate of building activity since the war and express the opinion that many localities are overbuilt.

Traders Idle

THE stock market has settled into a period of extremely moderate activity. No definite trend in prices has been apparent recently. The sharp reduction in the number of accounts has contributed to the dullness of trading.

This pronounced lack of speculative interest has resulted in wholesale reductions in the office forces of brokerage houses. One New York Stock Exchange firm in this city has discharged 28 of its employes. An investment house which specializes in the underwriting of local securities has let its entire sales force go.

A THRIFT WEEK THOUGHT FOR MEN AND WOMEN OF BUSINESS » » » » » » »

THRIFT WEEK should be vitalized by sober thought on the part of every business man and woman.

It carries a larger implication than the saving of a few dollars.

Often—both in the case of a healthy person or a healthy nation—what appears to be a minor ailment is neglected until the trouble becomes so deep seated as to constitute a permanent menace to sustained vitality.

American prodigality—its free spending habits—encouraged by sound prosperity, should, I believe, be considered in relation to its sapping influence on national progress.

Thoughtless money habits can insidiously soften the national stamina to combat adverse situations, not only in financial matters, but also in every phase of life.

The fact that the Savings Deposits in the American Banks last year showed a decline in the face of our material abundance, should give pause to thinking people.

No nation may hope for a greater posterity when its citizens substitute optimistic hope for thrift.

STOCKS HIGHER, SOFT SPOTS CROP OUT

Bullish Sentiment More Pronounced but Some Shares Show Recessions

NEW YORK, Jan. 22—(AP.)—Bullish sentiment was more pronounced in today's stock market, although there were enough soft spots scattered throughout the list to give it the appearance of irregularity. Extreme gains of 1 to 10 points established in the morning trading were fairly well maintained, with trading showing a moderate increase in volume.

Business news had a more cheerful tinge. Reports of a further upturn in steel mill activity and a reduction in unemployment were buttressed by some good 1929 earnings statements.

Freight car loadings in the week ended January 11 showed a substantial increase above the week before, but were below those of the corresponding week later, and the lowest of any similar period since 1922. The loss, however, was entirely in the shipment of grain and grain products, all other commodities showing a gain.

GAIN IN STEEL

Iron Age estimated that the two leading producers were operating at 70 per cent capacity, with the average rate for the country around 67 per cent. It states that "the week has brought the steel industry a further gain in both demand and production," but points out that "improvement in business is not spectacular."

Farm implement manufacturers responded to reports that leading manufacturers were increasing their requirements of steel. J. I. Case ran up 10 points and Advance Rumely common and preferred, International Harvester and Oliver Farm Equipment sold 2 to 3½ points higher.

Chain store and merchandising issues attracted a good following, Spiegel May Stern advancing nearly 5 points, R. H. Macy 4 and Montgomery Ward. United Stores preferred and Schulte common 2 points or more. Schulte preferred jumped 9 points.

Rumors of new financing tended to check bullish enthusiasm for several of the public utilities. Rails were inactive.

United States Industrial Alcohol and Air Reduction broke 7½ and 7 points, respectively, but recovered about half their losses by early afternoon. Republic Steel preferred sold off 3 points on rumors that the new merger financing would involve an additional large issue of preferred stock. American Commercial Alcohol, American Zinc preferred, Commercial Solvents, National Biscuit (old stock) and Auburn sold down 2 to 4 points, while Anaconda and some of the other coppers declined a point or so.

Call money again dropped from 4½ to 4 per cent.

Reports of continued cold weather in the South came in for some comment in relation to the probable survival of boll weevil, but were not a factor of apparent importance. Liverpool cables reported local buying and covering and said there was an increasing cloth demand from India with fair sales to Egypt and South America.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 22—(AP.)—The Curb Market was inclined to work higher today, as buying of the utilities and some of the specialties continued at a moderately active pace. Several of the less active shares were without support and dropped 2 points or more on a few sales.

Following is the list of transactions on the New York Curb Exchange, giving all stocks and bonds traded (00 omitted in sales column of stock list; 000 omitted in sales column of bond list):

STEEL ANSWERS ATLAS DEAL CHARGES

Myron C. Taylor States Corporation's Side of Cement Merger Conflict

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—Myron C. Taylor, chairman of the finance committee of United States Steel Corporation, discussion of the action to enjoin the acquisition of Atlas Portland Cement Company by the United States Steel Corporation, follows:

"The Atlas Company, through its officers, offered its property and assets to the United States Steel Corporation on a definite basis involving payment entirely in stock of the corporation. After investigation and consideration the corporation concluded to make the purchase.

"The Atlas Company took steps to bring about the sale of their properties and advised that at a stockholders meeting, at which more than 90 per cent of stock was represented, the sale was unanimously authorized and no objection or criticism of the sale was made at that meeting.

SALE CONSUMMATED

"Sale of the properties then took place in an orderly fashion and the consideration was duly paid in full.

"That is the entire transaction so far as the corporation is concerned. It has taken possession of the property and is operating it."

PETITION FILED

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 22.—A petition has been filed in Common Pleas Court of Philadelphia County requesting a temporary injunction to restrain the Atlas Portland Cement Company from selling its assets to the United States Steel Corporation.

The petition sets forth that assets of the cement company, which has 900,000 shares of stock, are to be transferred to the Steel Corporation for 180,000 shares of the stock of the Steel Corporation, which price the plaintiff believes to be unfair and inadequate to other stockholders.

$18,000,000 IN STOCK

On this point the petition says: "For the cement company's assets the Steel Corporation is issuing $18,000,000 par value of its stock. For this it is receiving net current assets, after discharging the Atlas liabilities, of about $18,000,000. Thus the Steel Corporation is getting the vast Atlas plant, equipment, subsidiaries, patents and good will without any actual expenditure."

STEEL DEMAND INCREASING

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—The week has brought the steel industry a further gain in both demand and production, Iron Age will say tomorrow in its weekly review of the iron and steel industry.

"Improvement in business," the review says, "is not spectacular and, in view of the caution of buyers, mills still have difficulty in arranging their rolling schedules, but the encouraging fact is that specifications in the aggregate continue to increase. Current orders, in the main, are small, and pressure for prompt deliveries indicates that much of the steel is destined for immediate consumption. Some buying undoubtedly has been for replenishment of depleted stocks, but price unsettlement has tended to hold such purchases to a minimum.

"Steel specifications in the New York district thus far in January are double those for the corresponding period in December. At Cleveland where heavier automobile business was a factor, the January bookings of several mills show a gain of 40 per cent over those of the previous month.

"Steel ingot production in the Chicago district now ranges from 70 to 75 per cent, compared with 65 per cent a week ago. The average for the entire Greater Pittsburgh area is slightly above 65 per cent of capacity.

"Pressure on prices is still severe, particularly in the Detroit district, where the operations of the automotive industry are slowly gathering momentum, with the makers of low-priced cars in the van. Efforts to hold bars at 1.90 cents, Pittsburgh, have been complicated by the existence of a lower base price at Cleveland. Cold-finished steel bars have declined $2 a ton to 2.10 cents a pound. Irregularities persist in sheet prices.

"The same spirit of caution exists in the steel trade also dominates the policy of pig iron buyers."

Ore Consumption Off 624,493 Tons

CLEVELAND, Jan. 22.—Lake Superior ore consumed during December totaled 4,076,432 tons as compared with 4,700,925 tons in November, a decrease of 624,493 tons. Total ore consumed in December of the previous year amounted to 4,996,828 tons. Total ore on hand at furnaces and Lake Erie Docks on January 1, 1930, amounted to 37,645,871 tons as against 35,147,088 tons a year previous. There were 439 furnaces in blast on last day of December, a decline of 16 from the number on the last day of November, according to the Lake Superior Iron Ore Association.

Stock Exchange Topics

Estimated 1929 Earnings Of Bethlehem Equal to $10.50 a Share.

ESTIMATES of net income of Bethlehem Steel Corporation for year 1929 show net from $40,450,000 to $41,200,000, equal to between $10.50 and $10.75 a share on the common outstanding at the end of the year—3,200,000 shares. However, the amount earned on average number of shares outstanding would be higher for both the final quarter and entire 12 months. In the year to December 31, 1928, net income totaled $18,585,922 or $6.52 a share on 1,800,000 shares of common then issued. Bethlehem at present is credited with running between 72 and 73 per cent capacity.

By far the most striking disclosure in this week's condition statement of principal member banks reporting to the reserve, is the sharp reduction in the indebtedness of those institutions to the regional banks. Such borrowings were reduced by $114,000,000 during the period which the report covers, and now stand $368,000,000 under the total for the corresponding date in 1929. Last week's cut of $118,000,000 in loans in securities has been followed by a further reduction of $52,000,000 in such loans while commercial borrowings are shown to have been reduced again by $129,000,000, bringing the cumulative contraction in the latter form of borrowings to upward of $775,000,000 over a period of two months.

HUDSON MOTOR CAR COMPANY'S report for year ended December 31, to be issued within the next few days, probably will show net profit of about $11,200,000 after all charges and taxes, equal to better than $7 a share on 1,596,660 shares. This would compare with $13,457,364 or $8.43 a share in 1928. The company has fully absorbed all unusual expense and entered the new year with a clean financial slate, featured by a comfortable cash balance and low inventories both at the factory and in dealers hands. There has been a marked recovery in demand since new lines were introduced.

United Gas Improvement continues prominent among the utilities. Company holds substantial blocks of Public Service of New Jersey, Niagara Hudson Power and Commonwealth Southern and its cash income has been increased considerably as a result of the recent dividend declarations of these corporations. Earnings in the year ended October 31 were equivalent to $1.48 a share on the present split-up stock, which would amount to about $1.60 a share if the cash income from increased payments mentioned above were added.

A DIVIDEND of $1 a share was voted by directors of the Calumet and Hecla Consolidated Copper Company. The payment ordered yesterday compared with a dividend of $1.50 a share disbursed to holders of record on November 30, last. The foregoing payment had been preceded by several disbursements of $1 a share, that rate having been maintained from the final quarter of 1928, through to the third quarter of last year when the higher payment was ordered. Though payments have been made regularly at varying rates each quarter since the middle of 1926, the company has refrained from designating its disbursements as quarterly payments. The next important copper company to act on its dividend will be Kennecott, which meets in the ensuing month and is expected to maintain the present $5 rate.

Revival of interest in Paramount - Famous - Lasky on a rather broad scale during yesterday was ascribed to operations of a new strong pool in that issue. The stock had done little over the last few months, and like most others of the amusement group had shared the momentary disfavor stirred up by the Fox situation. Paramount's earnings for the fiscal year, 1929, however, released several days ago, indicated net for the average amount of stock outstanding during the period amounted to $6.34 a share, against $4.22 a share in the previous fiscal year. This together with the belief that a higher dividend is possible apparently serves as the basis for the new syndicate operation reported in progress.

Copperweld Holds Gain Of Previous Session; Gas Stocks Unchanged

Prices were steady in the early dealings on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today, with the list continuing to range within the narrow limits to which it has held for some time.

Copperweld Steel, which enjoyed a mild rally yesterday, held its gain and was traded in at 45 on the opening today. This equaled the high of yesterday's move and was a gain of ½ point over last night's close.

In other quarters the fluctuations were confined to the smaller fractions, while a good many of the stocks showed no change at all. Ruud Manufacturing moved up a point after opening unchanged at 31, but only a small volume of the stock changed hands.

There was no change in the general level of the fuel group, Lone Star selling unchanged at the start and Western Public Service coming in at a small fractional decline.

In the bank section, a small block of Peoples-Pittsburgh Trust was handled at 155, comparing with the last previous sale at 160, recorded last week.

GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Jan. 22.—Fresh upturns in wheat values here took place early today, owing a good deal to indications of large export buying of North American wheat overnight. There were also advices that wheat offerings from Argentina to Europe were small. Opening unchanged to ½ higher, Chicago wheat afterward showed a rise all around, but then reacted somewhat. Corn and oats were likewise firmer, with corn starting unchanged to ¼ up, and subsequently holding near to the initial figures. Provisions declined.

A. P. I. Oil Figures Lower for Week

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—The daily average gross crude oil production in the United States decreased 27,600 barrels for the week ended January 18, totaling 2,661,650 barrels, says the weekly summary of the American Petroleum Institute, the daily average production east of California was 1,966,350 barrels, a decrease of 23,000.

CENSUS TO AID IN STABILIZING BUSINESS

Co-Ordinators Will Have Better Tools to Build With After Enumeration

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—President Hoover, after the Wall street panic, set the fashion of creating machinery for modifying the business cycle through co-ordinated efforts to apply economic data.

Unfortunately, there are still some wide gaps in our knowledge about business, especially about distribution. After this year when the decennial census is being taken, business co-ordinators will have better tools to work with.

L. S. Horner, chairman national advisory committee on manufactures, believes that the census is of far more than routine importance to business.

"What is unwise in business?" he asked. "What are the things which cannot be attempted safely? What are the trends and shiftings of the markets for manufactured commodities—both national and domestic? Where do dangers lurk? On the other hand, what constitutes sound practice? Through what methods may failure be transformed into success?

"The answers to these vital questions concerning the manufacturing and marketing of manufactured products can be obtained only through a collection of detailed facts on the operation of business and industry. Such an enumeration—known officially as the census of manufactures and distribution—is being undertaken this year, and is one of our great national activities."

FARM BOARD POLICY

The Federal Farm Board has a bias in favor of the welfare of the American farmer and is experimenting with methods to manipulate the forces of supply and demand in a manner which will contribute to the prosperity of the grower. Former Congressman William W. Cohen, a Wall street man, is skeptical concerning the whole project. "I read in your column," he points out, "your article on the major bear market in coffee showing that the Brazilian scheme of valorization, a device for keeping prices artificially high, is economically unsound.

"Why go to Brazil? The same thing exists today in the Farm Board's object to lift the price of wheat and cotton by their bootstraps.

"In cotton you will find that they are lending a higher price and more money on certain types of cotton than they can actually be sold for in the market.

"Under the circumstances, I look for an excessive acreage in both wheat and cotton the coming year, and if we have an ordinary crop, the government will continue to hold the bag until the bottom drops out. This, in my opinion, is a greater mistake, economically, than allowing the markets to have a natural trend.

"I notice the following paragraph in the Cotton Digest of January 11, a Houston publication:

"'It is quite possible that lower prices might be accepted in trading with foreign spinners or importers, in order to cultivate desirable accounts.'

"This statement is attributed to Chairman Legge, in an address to the cotton merchants at Galveston, Tex."

One favorable aspect of the immediate economic outlook is the relatively high purchasing power of farmers. Farmers made more money in 1929 than in any year since 1920, according to the Agricultural Publishers' Association.

BALANCE SHEET ROW

The present controversy between the new and the old management of the United Cigar Stores over accounting practices demonstrates anew in dramatic manner that balance sheets and income accounts are little more than statements of opinion. If the former management leaned toward excessive optimism in setting up figures in the financial statement, the new group seems exceedingly conservative. The former management grouped paper profits in securities with merchandising profits—a practice from which the Morrow group, now in the saddle, dissents.

Irrespective of the merits of the current dispute, the incident is another reminder of the complete lack of agreement among managers of industrial corporations of the meaning of accounting terms. Under existing circumstances, therefore, outside investors can have much less confidence that industrial statements mean what they seem to than they can have in the statements of regulated railroads and public utilities, which follow the standardized forms laid down by public bodies.

U.S. Steel-Atlas Merger Meets Opposition

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 22.—A petition has been filed in Common Pleas Court of Philadelphia County requesting a temporary injunction to restrain the Atlas Portland Cement Company from selling its assets to the United States Steel Corporation.

The petition sets forth that assets of the cement company, which has 900,000 shares of stock, are to be transferred to the Steel Corporation for 180,000 shares of the stock of the Steel Corporation, which price the plaintiff believes to be unfair and inadequate to other stockholders.

On this point the petition says: "For the cement company's assets the Steel Corporation is issuing $18,000,000 par value of its stock. For this it is receiving net current assets, after discharging the Atlas liabilities, of about $18,003,000. Thus the Steel Corporation is getting the vast Atlas plant, equipment, subsidiaries, patents and good will without any actual expenditure."

The action was brought by Mrs. Ida L. Ringler, of Wayne, Pa., a holder of 100 shares of the Atlas stock.

Tribute

You'll cause me loss of sleep—my appetite is
At a total loss since you've had me in tow,
You're old enough to know what wrong and right is
But still your actions keep me on the go;

You softly whisper love words of devotion,
Next night you have a brand new bird in hand.
Another lad would throw you in the ocean—
I think you're grand!

You make a date to meet me at eight-thirty,
You smilingly show up at ten o'clock.
If I had a dime for each time you act flirty,
John D., himself, would envy me my stock.

There are times I have a great desire to kill you,
And finish out my days within a cell.
But when all is said and done I'm here to tell you—
I think you're swell!

—Don Wahn.

A FORM OF CRITICISM

HAL KEMP'S favorite gag concerns the stage hand who asked the manager for a raise. The manager was surprised.

"Why," he ejaculated, "I really don't see my way clear about giving you a raise. You haven't much to do. Half the time you are merely standing in the wings listening to the show."

"Yes, sir," was the grim reply, "that's just it."

IN FEWER WORDS

To hear the flip crackers argue it the only exercise the New Yorker gets is walking out on the average Broadway show.

THINKING FAST

Take it from Jeff Machamer a pair of newlyweds were swapping sass across the breakfast table.

"When you got home last night," bellowed the Mrs., "you said you were at the Lido Club. This morning you say it was the Club Casanova. Why do you lie that way?"

"Aw, be y'self. When I came home last night I couldn't say Casanova."

ADD EPIGRAMS

"EYES were made to look forward. That's why they are in the front of the head."—Bruce Barton.

Mr. Ripley will be glad to know.

HE PLAYS THE PUNNIES!

Mack Appleton breathlessly calls your attention to the fact that he can make up a sentence with the word "mawkish" like this: "Aw, honey, come on, just one mawkish before you go." And a sentence with the word "dauntless" like this: "She's always saying 'Oh, dauntless do this or dauntless do that'!"

ALWAYS BELITTLIN'

It happened in the editorial rooms of the Daily Mirror. An executive enthusiastically cried, "Well, we are building up some staff. We have Winchell, soon we get Hellinger and then Mickey Mouse."

"I get it," chirped a comedian, "that makes three rats, altogether."

FLIP CRACKS

"CERTAINLY the short dress was healthier," writes Izzy Elinson, "the girls at least used to get some exercise pulling them down. Almost any hotel will give you rum service. From the way they conduct themselves in the night clubs and theaters the collegiate apparently comes to Broadway to 'go places and boo things.'"

THE MORNING MAIL

Dear Winchell: I don't mind anything being said about me in the present ticket racket, provided it is true. If you saw my statement when the fight with the specs began you would realize that I don't pretend that my position is wholly altruistic. I am interested in getting seats into the hands of the public at lower prices chiefly because I think this will make more business for the theater.

"I stated quite definitely that I object to the present scheme of things largely because it makes lousy business men of us. I think anybody who lets a middleman sell the goods he puts out at $3.85 for $10 and $15 more is a boob. I know I am several kinds of a boob, but I am going to try to quit being this kind, and if nothing comes of this effort, I'm going after some of the big money my tickets bring when I am lucky enough to have a hit. I know you don't print retractions, but I wanted to put you right personally.—Brock Pemberton.

NIFTIES

IN the Harry Reichenbach manner: If you are really a dreamer, you will profit the world more by remaining asleep. . . . You cannot sweat off bad manners any more than you can take an atomizer and spray yourself with culture. . . . Even when some Broadway phonies sell themselves—they give short weight.

THE BROADWAY WAY

In our report of Clark & McCullough's new show at the Times Square Theater what appeared to be their most amusing quip was chronicled to prove how comical they are again. The joke follows:

"Oh, you would drive me out of my mind!"

"Lady," retorts Clark, "that wouldn't be a drive—that'd be a putt."

A Mainstemmer rebuked us for our ignorance. "You amaze me," he thundered, "that gag was told last year in 'Hold Everything!' and apparently the reason it is being told at the Times Square is that it has never been told there before."

WHY CRITICS GRAY YOUNG

AMONG other things you have to read twice before you Give It Up altogether is this latest New York amusement from a poor marksman: ". . . but as we have stated many times, the talented Mr. W. does not know how to criticise a play, even though he may be able to discern if it will appeal to the public or not.

As we understand it, to know how to criticise a show, you must write reviews that will appeal to managers.

THINGS THAT BURN ME UP AND KNOCK ME COLD

Not that it matters, but six or seven Mondays ago it was remarked here "The Lew Brices (Mae Clarke) are having the seal shattered in California." Imagine then our chagrin the next day to receive this telegram: "Dear Little Boy Peep. You are wrong again as usual. Love and kisses—Lew and Mae Brice."

Associated and United Press dispatches from the West Coast record the California divorce of Lew Brice and Mae Clarke and quoted Mrs. B. as asserting that she was told by her husband "you are not the only Queen in the deck."

It's little things like that that make big paragraphs like these.

UNSCRAMBLE THESE ANAGRAMBLES
DAILY ANAGRAM PUZZLES

TRY your hand at this fascinating game of Anagrambles—the game that is taking the town like the crossword puzzle craze took the whole nation for a ride through the dictionary.

The game is quite simple. Merely change the following words by the addition of the single letter indicated. Do not omit any letter of the original word. The letter may be inserted at the beginning of the word, anywhere within the word, or at the end. Thus, the word "pate," by the addition of the letter "l" becomes either "pleat" or "plate." The word "drag" may be changed to either "grade" or "raged" by the addition of the letter "e."

The original word must be changed in meaning by the commentary letter. To change "mine" by adding "d," to form "mined," would be incorrect. Rearrange the letters of your word to change its meaning, not its tense or number. Take a pencil now and write in your newly formed word in the spaces provided.

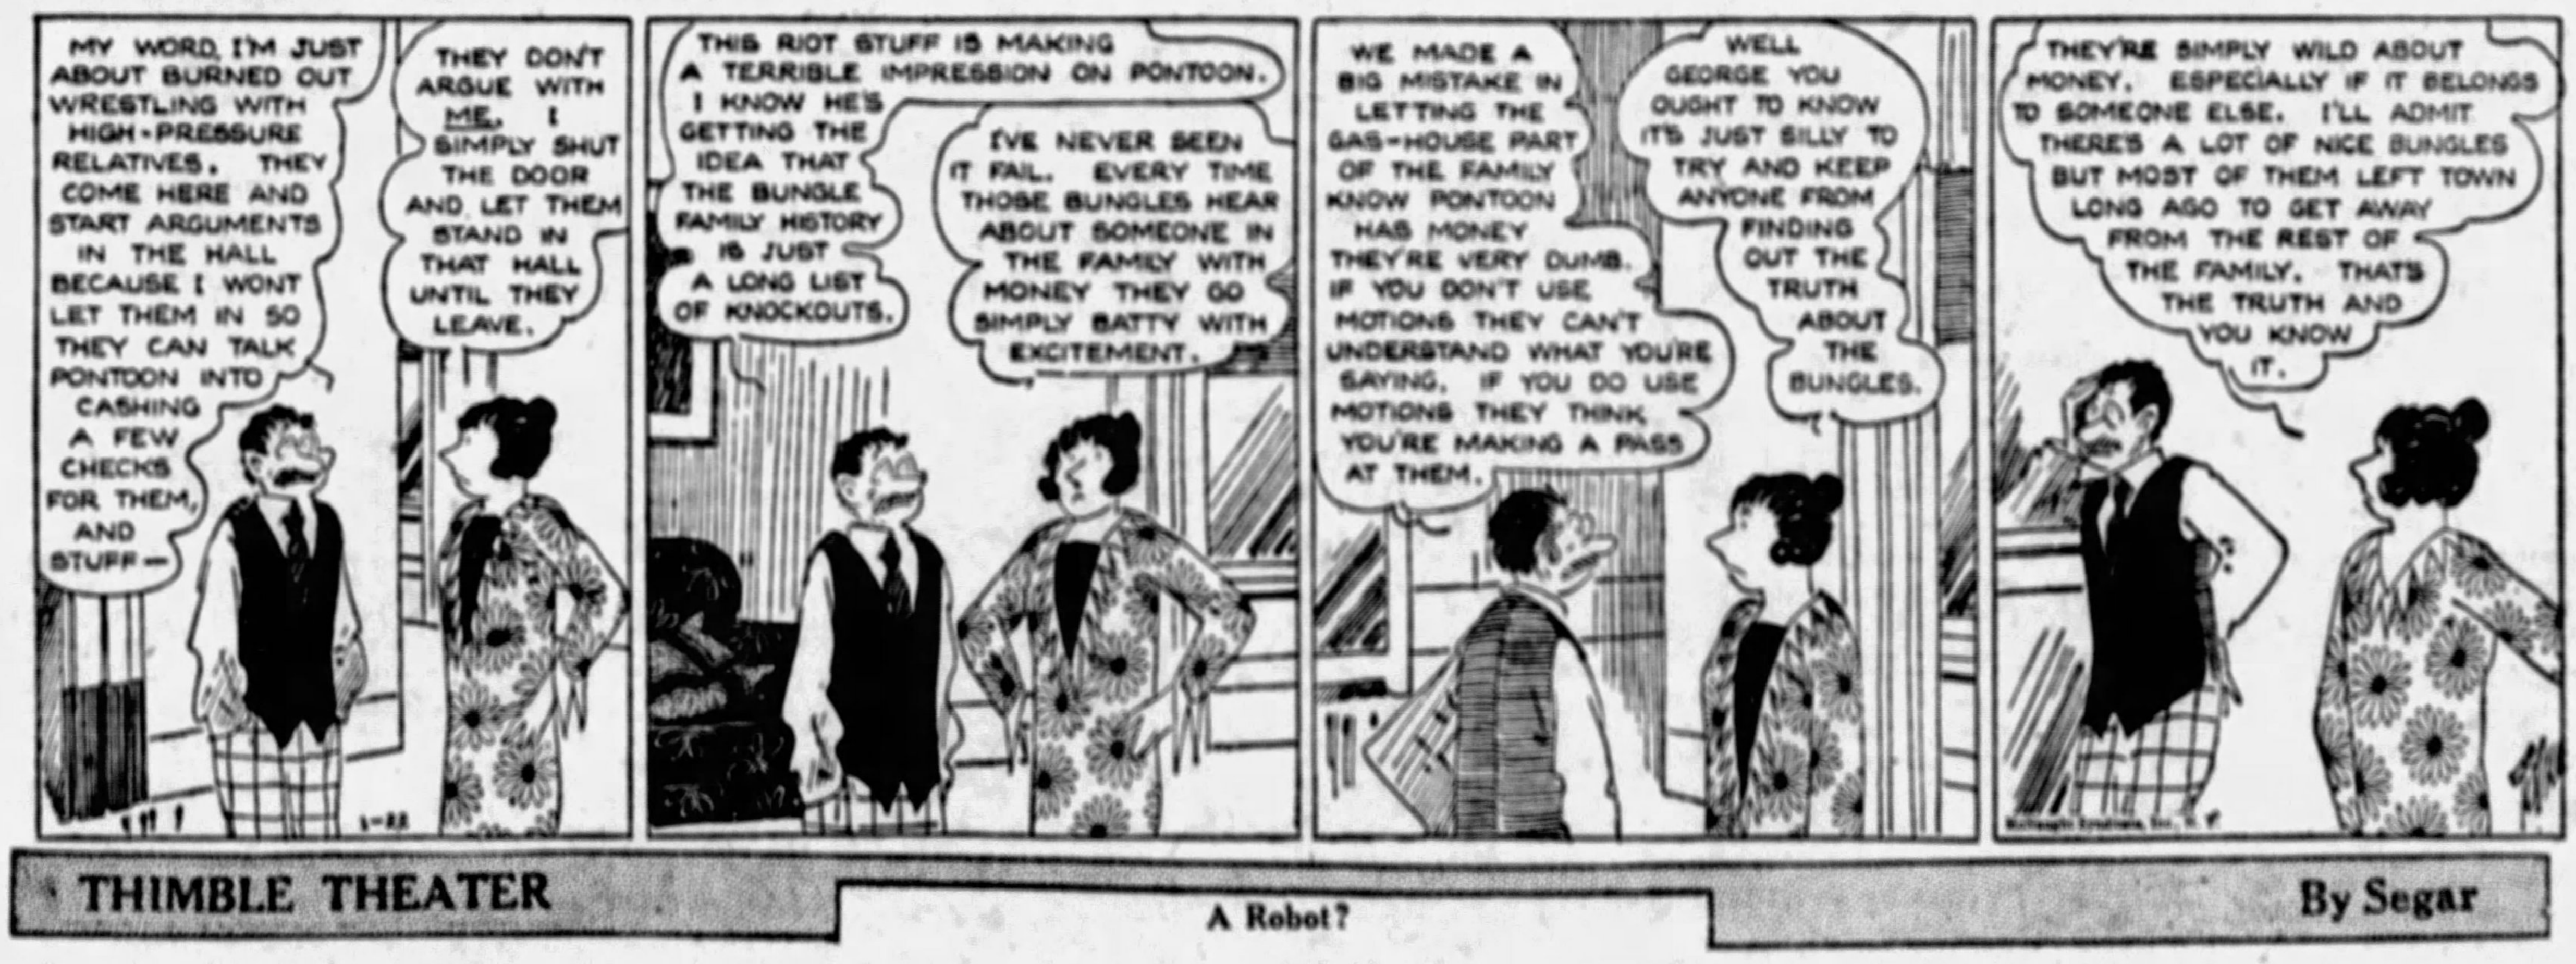
The Bitter Truth



MY WORD, I'M JUST ABOUT BURNED OUT WRESTLING WITH HIGH-PRESSURE RELATIVES. THEY COME HERE AND START ARGUMENTS IN THE HALL BECAUSE I WONT LET THEM IN SO THEY CAN TALK PONTOON INTO CASHING A FEW CHECKS FOR THEM, AND STUFF—
THEY DON'T ARGUE WITH ME. I SIMPLY SHUT THE DOOR AND LET THEM STAND IN THAT HALL UNTIL THEY LEAVE.
THIS RIOT STUFF IS MAKING A TERRIBLE IMPRESSION ON PONTOON. I KNOW HE'S GETTING THE IDEA THAT THE BUNGLE FAMILY HISTORY IS JUST A LONG LIST OF KNOCKOUTS.
I'VE NEVER SEEN IT FAIL. EVERY TIME THOSE BUNGLES HEAR ABOUT SOMEONE IN THE FAMILY WITH MONEY THEY GO SIMPLY BATTY WITH EXCITEMENT.
WE MADE A BIG MISTAKE IN LETTING THE GAS-HOUSE PART OF THE FAMILY KNOW PONTOON HAS MONEY THEY'RE VERY DUMB. IF YOU DON'T USE MOTIONS THEY CAN'T UNDERSTAND WHAT YOU'RE SAYING. IF YOU DO USE MOTIONS THEY THINK YOU'RE MAKING A PASS AT THEM.
WELL GEORGE YOU OUGHT TO KNOW IT'S JUST SILLY TO TRY AND KEEP ANYONE FROM FINDING OUT THE TRUTH ABOUT THE BUNGLES.
THEY'RE SIMPLY WILD ABOUT MONEY. ESPECIALLY IF IT BELONGS TO SOMEONE ELSE. I'LL ADMIT THERE'S A LOT OF NICE BUNGLES BUT MOST OF THEM LEFT TOWN LONG AGO TO GET AWAY FROM THE REST OF THE FAMILY. THAT'S THE TRUTH AND YOU KNOW IT.

Police Dodging Duty in Taxicab Strike Trouble

They Are Pledged to Keep the Peace and Prevent Disorder, With Strict Neutrality.

For more than a week an important part of Pittsburgh's transportation facilities has been out of operation because of a strike of taxicab drivers.

Seemingly settled by vote of a large majority of the drivers attending a meeting for the purpose of considering terms suggested by Secretary of Labor James J. Davis and a joint committee, the struggle was renewed yesterday when the cab companies manned a number of vehicles and attempted to operate them.

Violence was the response. Cabs were stoned and drivers were beaten and the owners of the vehicles caused them to be returned to the garage.

Why should the public be put to such a great inconvenience?

What are the police doing about it? Sleeping, it appears.

They are said to be under orders to arrest those engaging in disorder, but so far as the public knows, there have been no arrests, although there was violence in the early part of the strike and again when the cab companies were warranted in believing the trouble was at an end, as indicated by the five-to-one vote to return to work.

The minority, instead of abiding by the decision of the greater number, organized an insurgent movement which is said to have been responsible for the recurrence of disorder, possible only because of non-interference by the police.

When the taxicab companies tried to gouge the people of Pittsburgh by slipping over a raise in fares, it was the Sun-Telegraph that campaigned most energetically and helped to beat that scheme. Now, the shoe is on the other foot, and this paper emphatically asserts the right of the public to get taxicab transportation when it desires and to insist that its hired servants, the police, put down disorder WITHOUT TAKING SIDES in any strike dispute.

The public should promptly let Mayor Kline and Director Clark know that it desires to have the police make a sincere effort to prevent further trouble. The present attitude of the police appears to be that of strike sympathizers. They may have the right to extend their personal sympathies where they will, but in the matter of DUTY it is altogether different. That is something in which they must be impartial. They are sworn to protect property and persons.

A second ballot, last night, showed a big majority of taxi drivers had had a change of heart and their former acceptance of the Davis peace proposal was repudiated, 881 to 116. "The strike will continue and there will be no disorder," said a spokesman for the strikers. If that pledge is carried out the public will not complain. But past experience has shown that attempts to run taxicabs have invariably caused slugging and the police have countenanced this violence, encouraging it by their non-interference. If this dodging of duty by the police is continued, the public will demand important changes in the department of public safety.

Mayor Kline might well consider the possibility of starting municipal buses in the present emergency. That might eventually bring real bus service to Pittsburgh, at rates far below the outrageous 25-cent fare now charged by the street car bus monopoly.

If the public had sufficient transportation facilities, it would not care how long the taxicabs remained off the streets. It insists, however, on its employes in the police department doing their plain duty of impartially keeping the peace.

"Wealthy" Working Girls

Their Grandmothers Were Wealthier.

Contrary to the usual belief, women have a thin time in this industrial age, the Department of Labor at Washington thinks. Their grandmothers were happier, working no harder and getting more real value for their work. Also, chivalry was alive then, now it is dead.

Says the Department:

"The double standard of wages and the absence of chivalry have resulted in the unscrupulous exploitation of the potential motherhood of the land. The majority of employed women are at a great disadvantage, either because they do not care to bargain for a job for fear of losing it altogether, or because they are too young and inexperienced to choose or bargain among the jobs available."

Marriage, the department finds, is seldom a solution. The higher cost of living for families forces young wives to work outside the home, their earnings often being the last line of defense against poverty or actual starvation. Nor are husbands always to blame. On present wages scales, many of them cannot make enough to keep a family alive.

It is a gloomy picture the department paints, the gloomier because TRUE. Seldom is it held up to view by those who broadcast the story of America's unexampled prosperity.

America is prosperous, but the prosperity is not very evenly distributed.

The effect of this on the future mothers of America and their children disquiets those that think about it.

Not many think about it, acting on the good old axiom "This is the best of all possible worlds," and ours is the best of all possible countries.

A Short History

Mr. Coolidge Can Write It.

Mr. Calvin Coolidge, who since he left the White House has become the highest paid magazine writer in the United States, is asked to tell the history of his country in 500 words.

He may use fewer if he chooses.

This tabloid history will be carved in gigantic letters on the granite face of Mount Rushmore, in the Black Hills of South Dakota, accompanying colossal sculptured figures of Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln and Roosevelt. The inscription, geologists say, will be legible for half a million years.

Mr. Coolidge will make no charge for his services, and if anybody can condense American history into 500 words he can. Economy of language, as of money, is in the very fiber of his being. But it is a difficult assignment.

It seems less difficult, however, when you remember that the story of creation was told in 200.

It is time Intelligence

"Bugs" Baer Says:

An Amateur Addict

GLANCE over the dry enforcement records indicates that nothing has been lost by evaporation.

"Bugs" Baer

The Treasury has turned the job over to the Coast Guard.

After that the Bureau of Agriculture will wrestle with it—why not allow the Army to enjoy it for a while?

Seven new bills have bloomed in congressional halls which we will discuss before going off to a well-earned oblivion.

The most important amending of an amendment is the bill which seeks to differentiate between the amateur and the professional bootlegger.

We will tell you the difference right now. It's in the price.

The amateur or collegiate hootchrunner is the guest of honor under the proposed new law. He will be subject to small fines and instalment imprisonments until he learns his trade.

After that he becomes a professional and cannot play on the American tennis team.

The attempt to establish a dotted line of demarcation between the youthful rumhopper and the semi-pro Scotchster will be very difficult. This is one case where your nose doesn't know and your stomach is the ballot box for some deadly votes.

The man with the hip poison is not to be classed with the inter-urban merchant who runs a truckload of blistering rye through the smiling farmlands and happy villages of the north. If he repeats his offence he will be gently reprimanded by the presiding judge. And if he insists on getting everybody drunk he will be sent to the children's court.

The question of dividing the sheep from the contented cows will be difficult. Suppose a thoughtful barber rubs bay rum on your face?

That ain't a bad idea for most faces. It is possible to absorb nourishment.

Then, actuated by a spirit of referendum and recall, you stick out your red, red tongue and lick that bay rum off your own face?

Does that make your barber a bootlegger?

Does that make your face a public carrier?

Do you get a wholesale term for continued violations or does the discerning justice take one judicial look at you and decide that your face is merely a misdemeanor and not a felony?

It is a very fine point in law which we would like to have cleared up by the Supreme Court on its next round of golf.

THEY RUSTED ON THEIR LAURELS

By Herbert Kaufman

THE radio business is in the peculiar plight of suffering from PERFECTION.

Radio, not content with mere ANNUAL refinements, switches models as fast as the LEAST chance for revision is detected.

Manufacturers are improving their goods so CONTINUOUSLY that the cut-price market can scarcely absorb discontinued models.

These bargain machines embody all of today's best principles of reception. There's nothing WRONG with them except that the NEWER ones are immeasurably BETTER.

The telephone, after half a century of high-pressure promotion, hasn't YET reached as many homes as this infant prodigy.

No industry ever before gave the public such liberal service and unstinted money's worth.

Which mainly explains why the entire nation has been put on the air within less than a decade after the first wireless song rang out in space.

THAT couldn't have happened in any other AGE, even if the needed inventive capacity and materials WERE just as available then as NOW.

The outstanding weakness of past prowess was a tendency to pause a CENTURY to celebrate the performance of a DECADE.

The Adamsons aren't as much entitled to CREDIT for their amazing ingenuities, as CENSURE for wasting so MUCH time in achieving them.

Hannibal might have fought with Big Berthas and armored tanks, if his immediate ancestors hadn't been so MIGHTILY pleased with the quality of Carthaginian spears and war chariots.

The ancients learned to temper bronze, and erected skyscrapers with techniques that modern science hasn't yet probed. Then concluded to call it a day and suspended thinking for the next dozen generations.

B. C. mathematicians evolved calculation systems that STILL exclusively serve the astronomer, engineer and surveyor. Then, deciding that nothing FURTHER was attainable with numbers, shut down the works.

Intelligence isn't a RECENT manifestation. Judging by the scant records snatched from sepulchre, MSS. and rubbish heap, it seems certain that our present ingenious estate was LONG ago within the capacity of human reasoning.

Homer and Aristophanes left behind them masterpieces that make us blush for subsequent literary genius.

Pythagoras, who never saw a microscope or Crookes tube, was quite aware of the atom.

ARCHIMEDES easily cracked hard nuts that might have broken the mental teeth of Bramah, Tyndall or Edison.

There isn't a living geometrician of Euclid's prodigious stature, an architect comparable to the unknown creator of the Parthenon, or a sculptor, hereabouts, fit to be MENTIONED in the same breath with Praxiteles.

The roads that Caesar laid are as sound at this minute as when they felt the tread of Roman legions.

Hero, the Syracusan, constructed steam engines, and Ptolemy's surgeons wouldn't have the slightest inferiority complex at a 1930 medical convention.

Yesterday was no fool; it simply didn't PRESS its opportunities.

Our grandsires, in the yonder, cut bait TOO SOON; they weren't such PERSISTENT anglers of possibility as the RADIO crowd.

If history has had any pet piece of advice to offer, it would probably be: "There are much bigger fish waiting to be hooked than any on the gaff. Keep casting."

∴ LISTEN, WORLD! ∴

By Elsie Robinson

JANUARY . . . Nineteen Hundred and Thirty—

Where will you live this year?

No, I'm not trying to discover your address. Your street and number are comparatively unimportant, for that isn't where you really live. The place where you live is . . . you.

Your thoughts, your desires, your prejudices, your attitudes . . . They are your abiding place . . . They are the house by which men judge your station in life. And according as they are wide or cramped, beautiful or ugly, so will your life be for this next year.

Once a poet wrote these deathless lines—

"Build me more stately mansions,
O my soul,
As the swift seasons roll!
Leave thy low, vaulted past!
Let each new temple, nobler than the last,
Shut thee from heaven with a dome more fast
Till thou at last are free,
Leaving thine outgrown shell on life's unresting sea."

What will you build this year . . . where will you live?

Is the home of your spirit a white temple, set high above the turmoil of the world, with windows open to the wind and sun and stars?

Is it a friendly place, warm with sympathy, gay with mirth, where all who pass may find rest and delight?

Is it a tight walled, windowless tower, set proudly on some peak . . . but dark within . . . sealed by your egotism from the cleansing air and quickening storm of experience? A tower of SELF?

Is it a careless, untidy litter . . . cheaply thrown together . . . at the mercy of every chance gust of emotion?

Is it a low roofed hovel, dark with the cobwebs of hate, suspicion, ignorance and fear?

Or a silly, papier-mache affair, built of the unsubstantial trash of dreams?

Whatever it is, you have bodily dwelling place, but you yourself, are responsible for the house of your spirit. And, as you have made it, so it will make you.

If you live in a cell you will live as a prisoner, no matter how proud your walls. And, little by little, life will pass you by.

If you live in a hovel you will be poisoned by your own darkness and disorder.

If you live in dreams you will starve on dreams and break your heart on dreams, for you will be shut away from reality.

But if you live in beauty and friendliness all that is fine in life will come to your door . . . and sometimes, when all is quiet, you may glimpse God.

And make no mistake . . . Wherever you live, the world will know it and judge you by your house. You may hide your street and number from men, but you cannot hide the house you have built for your spirit, for that goes with you everywhere. And men will honor you in just the same measure that you have honored yourself in your building.

A beautiful mansion . . . will you inhabit that this year?

Or will you still cling to those "low vaulted" rooms where so much sorrow came to you in the past?

BE A PITTSBURGH BOOSTER
To Your Friends in Other Cities

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. WELLS

In Collaboration With

Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

THE Nemertine worms are thread-like or ribbon-like creatures, ranging in length from under an inch to 25 meters. Most of them are marine, creeping under stones and among seaweed; some are able to swim.

One or two species live in fresh-water and a few are terrestrial; one or two are transparent and leaf-like and swim like marine butterflies at the surface of the sea. For the most part they are carnivorous. They are in a phylum by themselves.

H.G. Wells

The Rotifers, or wheel-animalcules, another phylum, are minute but highly organized animals, found chiefly in ponds, gutters, damp moss and the like, and a great source of delight to those fortunate enough to possess a microscope.

The rotifers are neither useful nor harmful to man; their interest lies almost entirely in this microscopic aesthetic appeal.

The Polyzoa, including the so-called sea-mats, are aquatic and most of them are marine.

At first sight they look like the hydroid nolyps to be presently described, for they are small animals living in colonies, and each individual has a circlet of tentacles surrounding its mouth; nevertheless they are very much more elaborately organised than hydroids, although most people take them for plants.

Their colonies are supported by horny, limy, or gelatinous skeletons, generally intricate and often beautiful when seen through the miscroscope. There are an enormous number of different species.

Polyzoa are very common on the seashore, forming encrustations of sea-weeds, rocks, crabs and the like; the fresh-water forms, by clogging the pipes and filters of water-works, may become a serious nuisance.

The Brachiopods or lamp-shells are marine animals having a shell that looks at first sight like the shell of a bivalve mollusc.

A lamp-shell leads the life of an oyster or mussel, lying at the bottom of the sea, collecting suspended particles of food by means of ciliated sieve that works like the gills of a clam or the pharnyx of a sea-squirt, snapping together the two shields if any danger threatens.

Nevertheless their organization is very different from that of bivalves. The two halves of the shell, for example, correspond to the back and front of the creature and not to its right and left as they do in bivalves. And the food-filter is made in a peculiar and characteristic way.

At one time they were classified with the molluscs, but now they are either put in a phylum by themselves or with the polyzoa in the phylum Molluscoidea.

At the present day there are about a hundred species of brachiopods living in the sea at various depths, but they are only the survivors of a group that flourished and attained a rich variety of forms in the Palaeozoic era, and has declined steadily in numbers ever since. Slowly for some reason as the world aged the oyster and the scallop and the mussel took their place.

But one genus, Lingula, living in the mud of warm seas, has continued the even tenor of its existence from a nearly incredible antiquity. It is the senior genus of the world of life.

BOOK TWO.
Chapter Four.
Less Individualized Animals.
1. A Preliminary Note on Individuality.

We are accustomed to think of ourselves as individuals, for our bodies act and feel as single undivided things; we are in this sense the units of which our species consists.

Nevertheless we are also cell-communities, and these cells can behave with remarkable individuality and independence.

We may indeed distinguish two entirely different grades of individuality—the conscious, actual individuality of our bodies and the potential, suppressed individuality of our constituent cells.

Perhaps the most independent cells that we possess, excepting, of course, our spermatozoa, are our white blood corpuscles, ranging more or less freely in our blood and lymph and playing the part of scavengers, consuming and destroying bacteria or other undesirable objects.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—Comes another day of mental sterility when one fondles the old office axe with an odd gleam—hoping one of the bright idiots will pop in to inquire: "What else do you do besides write a column?" You'd be astonished how many are running around loose.

Writing a daily column looks easy, but stop whatever you're doing and try to write one and you'll get a sketchy idea. I, for instance, bounded out of bed this morning with a head, as heads go, fairly clear. A cold plunge added to the stimulation.

In my absurd conceit I felt chock full of ready and superlative "copy." And after breakfast I fairly skipped—tra, la—to my typewriter, and this is how I started off: "Hundreds of New Yorkers studying under Yogis, have gone vegitarian and mumble strange credos between bits of lettuce."

Lolling in a fit of wakefulness last night, there seemed to be the nuceleus of a dandy article on the Yogi faddism, which has again flowered into several colonies around town. But in the midst of the writing it occurred to me: Who cares? And here I am—out on a limb.

The way to write a column is to dash it off and forget it. The minute you try to dope out what is called "reader reaction" you are sunk. Well, anyway after the Yogi idea curled up I began to scan the dope sheet—a little pad upon which ideas are jotted down from time to time.

I came upon such triviata as these: "The army of bank vice presidents, Hugh Walpole's cat, the facial cream shops, a $1,000 toy, Frisco's story about the midget." Every notation seemed at the time worth printing. But all proved hopeless duds.

Don't pity me, anything but that—but try to go on. A misplaced rung of a chair in the corner caught my eye. I tried to jiggle the end back into its socket and did, but for my pains carried away a dime-sized blood blister on my off typewriter finger. What to do? What to do?

More chin cupping and staring into space. Then I discovered one of the desk drawers, after acting up for some time, refused to open at all. After prying at it with a desk ruler, I hauled off and gave it a blamed good kick. And the ruler, in three pieces on the floor, has ruled its last rule.

* * *

Maybe there are a few lines again in taking an inventory of my desk. Thus: A calendar pad from an auto insurance company, a turtle paper clasp from Catalina, two pocket lighters, a combination paper weight and desk clock from Joe Toplitzky, two gummy fountain pens and a black onyx inkwell, a tube of paste, two pencil sharpeners, a three-foot-high stack of clippings and letters, a copy of "Who's Who" and an ash tray with a painting of Eiffel Tower.

* * *

The telephone just rang. A lady wants to know if I am the McIntyre who used to work on the Chicago Tribune and if I was what time did the Iroquois fire take place.

* * *

Still in the throes of a vacuity I looked out a window and watched a steel worker on the end of a beam 10 floors in the air—a study in utter placidity. Stevenson's line about no person being so tranquil as [illegible] living on the edge of a crater came to me. But even if it did, what am I going to do with it?

So I went for a walk with my dog and found, mesdames et messieurs, this bright spot in a dull columnar day:

John Buck is a blind news-dealer at Sixty-sixth and Columbus avenue. I stopped to chat with him. "There is a lot of kindness in this world," he observed. "Look at that sign over my hutch. I can't see it but I've felt it a hundred times."

The sign was made, presented and hung up by Patrolman John Nicoletti, shield 15,123, and in bright green letters spells out: Blind News Dealer.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

YOU may not like people who have what you call "an impenetratable crust of reserve."

Perhaps it might be better for you if you were more reserved. You may be too free and easy, too easy to get acquainted with.

At times you wish for more poise.

While you may censure those who appear to fully control themselves at all times and under all conditions, do you not envy them their poise?

Your happy-go-lucky, hail-fellow-well-met manner is more the natural line with you and you have permitted it to have its sway.

Can you not recall many instances when this manner of yours has brought you some embarrassment?

Deep in your heart you have greater interest in a person who appears to be master of himself.

You admire the person who is slow to form new friends and acquaintances.

You feel that to be a friend of such a person would be more valuable than filling such a place with one who literally extends the glad hand to all.

Notwithstanding, you go on being too free a[illegible] too little reserved and not trying hard enough to be the person you most admire.
